MEXICO CITY, Nov. 26.—The Mexican Government has answered the American State Department's demand in regard to Consular Agent Jenkins, and has refused to release him. The text of the reply, made through the Under Secretary of Foreign Relations, is as follows:

"Mexico City, Nov. 26, 1919.

"Mr. George L. Summerlin, Acting Chargé d'Affaires for the United States of America.

"I have instructions from the President of the Republic to answer your note No. 1,535 of Nov. 20 that Your Excellency has addressed to the Mexican Government by instructions from the Department of State.

"I should not hide from Your Excellency that the attention of the Mexican Government is strongly called to the fact that no legal foundation and no principle or antecedent of international right and not even slight reasoning has been invoked to demand the liberty of Jenkins, who, as Your Excellency knows, is at the present moment under the authority of the Judge of the City of Puebla. The Government cannot find what could be the base of the demand and believes that it is not only strength of power that makes it, as the United States has been characterized as wishing to show on a number of occasions that right and justice will be the base of its diplomacy and its respect for weak nations the base of its international relations on the continent.

"I attribute the wording of the note that we are answering to faulty knowledge of our penal laws. The imprisoning of Jenkins is not unjustified nor arbitrary as charged by the note, Jenkins having made signed declarations which have been found to be contradictory about the kidnapping of which he was the victim. The judge has found evidence enough to support a responsible charge of perjury in a judicial declaration which justifies detention.

"However, this does not mean in itself that Jenkins is guilty, as that fact can only be established by a definite sentence. Your Excellency knows that the Mexican penal proceedings are of three classes: Prison detention when a person is suspected to have criminal responsibility for a crime; formal detention when there is a sufficient charge, in the opinion of the Judge, that suspect is responsible; ordinary prison, when a definite sentence has been made as punishment for the crime after the guilt of the suspect is clearly proved.

"The first two classes of imprisonment are not legally punishment, but only restrictions of liberty of the accused as a means of establishing the truth of the charges. Jenkins has suffered preventive detention seventy-two hours and afterward formal imprisonment. The fact that he was rearrested is the fact which is considered by the United States as persecution or a series of persecutions which are unjustly inflicted on Jenkins. During the examination at whatever moment the accused may ask he is granted liberty on bail. Mexican law is very liberal in granting bail, as it is enough to show the

Jugoslav Delegates Delay Signing of Austrian Treaty

PARIS, Nov. 26.—Contrary to expectations, the plenipotentiaries of Jugoslavia did not sign the Austrian Peace Treaty this afternoon. The reason given by them was that they found they did not have the requisite powers to sign the different annexes.

The plenipotentiaries have eight days within which to procure the necessary powers, and it is believed here that this authorization will be received within that period.

The annexes provide for the protection of racial minorities, reparations concerning Italy, and a financial arrangement regarding the sharing of expenses in the liberation of the former Austrian-Hungarian monarchy.

The time for the signing of the Bulgarian Peace Treaty has been definitely fixed for 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. It will take place in the Hotel de Ville at Neuilly.

ANGELES EXECUTED; BRAVE TO THE LAST

CARRANZA DEAF TO APPEALS

Hundreds of Prominent Persons Here and in Mexico Sought Reprieve for Noted Soldier.

CHIHUAHUA CITY, Mexico, Nov. 26, (Associated Press.)—General Felipe Angeles was executed at 6:35 A. M. today inside the barracks of the 21st Regiment of Cavalry by a firing squad. Many spectators were present. General Angeles died without visible emotion or fear.

General Angeles himself chose the north wall to stand against to be killed, and arranged details of his execution with Carranza officers and men detailed to the task.

Opposite the revolutionary leader stood five soldiers with rifles ready. They fired one volley into the breast of Angeles. Angeles fell forward. He then was lying on the floor of the barracks. An officer stepped up to the already dead man and delivered the "coup de grace." This was a shot from the pistol of the Carranza officer. It entered behind the right ear of Angeles.

A military surgeon arrived and performed the legal autopsy. Later the body was taken to the home of a friend and buried from there.

General Angeles spent the few hours between the time of being sentenced and the time of execution with friends and a priest. During most of the night they discussed philosophy, mathematics, politics, and religion. The General appeared to have little concern in the fate awaiting him.

He slept the hour and a half between 3 and 4:30 o'clock. Arising, he dictated letters to Mrs. Angeles and his sons, Albert and Manuel Calero. He wrote personally letters and autographs for friends to be delivered after death, which he carried with him to his execution.

Unmoved At Trial.

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 26.—General Angeles was sentenced to death by four Carranza Generals in the Teatro de los Heroes ("Theatre of the Heroes"), at 10:45 o'clock last night. He was immediately taken from the building through a rear entrance to await execution, which was set for 7 A. M. today.

General Angeles was entirely unmoved apparently as sentence was passed. Throughout the trial the military leader had presented a smiling countenance to his accusers.

The trial was the most sensational ever held in Chihuahua City, where Angeles and two companions were brought after their capture near Parral by State volunteer troops on Nov. 19.

Four companions were captured with Angeles after their discovery in a cave in a hill that faces San Tome, Mexico. Two of these already had been executed by Carranza troops. Of others in the small party with General Angeles five were killed trying to escape the State troops.

The two remaining companions, Major Nostor Enciso de Arce and the soldier Antonio Trillo, were joint defendants with their chief before the court-martial. Major de Arce also was sentenced to death, but his sentence was commuted to twenty years' imprisonment. Trillo, a 17-year-old boy, was sentenced to serve six years and eight months in prison.

The trial began at 8 A. M. on Monday and continued until sentence was passed at 10:45 o'clock last night with the exception of very short recesses.

Doors to the Theatre of the Heroes were opened to the public and the place immediately filled to overflowing with persons of all degree, anxious to see the famous leader tried. Excitement was

BERLIN, Nov. 25—The political parties are only a few months away from a general election, and the Pan-German agitation must be largely regarded as a manoeuvring—clumsy enough, in all conscience, and provocative—for position. As for the alleged secret army, the extent of Germany's armed forces is a matter for the Entente commissions to determine. It is hazardous to put a figure to that strength, but it is safe to say that Germany at the present moment possesses no army ready for war.

As for the German army in the Baltic Provinces, on which, too, some fears have been founded, that is melting away in disaster. The latest reports tell of a terrible state of affairs. The famous Iron Division is in hurried, disorderly retreat, faced every hour with the prospect of being entirely cut off by the attacking Letts and Lithuanians. These straggling forces are in terribly bad condition, owing to lack of food and to ragged uniforms. The news regarding Avaloff-Bermondt's forces is no better. They suffered severely a week ago, when the Letts, supported by allied warships, attacked Grobin, six miles from Libau. The German losses are said to have been over 300 killed.

Unequipped hospital trains continue to roll with loads of wounded toward the German frontier. Six hundred have arrived in Königsberg, and they bitterly complain of the way in which they have been treated by those responsible for the mad Baltic adventure which has now broken down in so disastrous a manner. The German forces in the east are now a danger only to the villages and towns through which they pass, starving, cold, and angry, in their disorderly retreat.

The papers here have commented a great deal on the problem of America and the Peace Treaty. Government and political circles are chary of expressing opinions, but there is a good deal of secret rejoicing. One must remember the mentality of the people here when one listens to or reads statements in which the view is expressed that America is coming around to the German side, and that time will bring its revenge by placing Germany and the United States against the Entente. Some people and some papers see Germany being able to snap her fingers at the Entente, with America on the fatherland's side. Views are often founded, too, on very scanty and often contradictory news services.

Vorwärts thinks that the falling away of one nail from the Versailles structure will make necessary changes which will not be the last. It does not believe that the European situation will be in any way altered by America's not signing the treaty, though it sees a probable worsening of the world position, in that England will be head of the League of Nations, with Japan as a powerful ally. If America remains outside the League of Nations, Vorwärts says, the question of her relations with Japan will always contain potential danger.

RIGA, Nov. 24.—Lettland's great problem today, now that the Germans have been expelled, is what to do with the Balts. The Balts are descendants of Germanic invaders, the famous "Knights of the Sword," who conquered Courland 700 years ago. With their retainers they settled in feudal pomp on the conquered territory, and right up to the outbreak of the world war their rule had been mediaeval in its absoluteness and, in many cases, its cruelty.

As time went on the Balt ranks were

Clemenceau Urged to Visit Us and Appeal on Europe's Behalf

PARIS, Nov. 26.—That Premier Clemenceau should go to Washington and appeal to Americans in the interest of Europe is the suggestion put forward today by the editor of the Paris Midi. His article, appearing in La Presse de Paris, says:

"There are not only French people, but Americans as well, who would be glad to see Clemenceau take a steamship and go over there on a mission in the interests of our alliance.

"He is today the only European statesman whom America places on a pinnacle. In him is incarnated victorious France. His age commands respect. The habit he has formed of throwing himself upon the enemy, interior or exterior, is a habit which appeals to the American people. Speaking English, he can appeal to the greatest audiences across the sea.

"Let him go to Washington, and let him speak there in the name of Europe as well as in the name of France. It will not be necessary for him to make a wearing tour of speech-making, like that which almost killed President Wilson. A few words spoken in the right tone will suffice, probably, to produced the desired effect. For Republicans love France as well as do Democrats, and before such an emissary would not wait until the end of his speech to take off their hats.

"M. Clemenceau ought to pack his grip."

PARIS, Nov. 25.—If the American Senate ratifies the German treaty with reservations, and the reservations are accepted by the Allies, China will ask that she be allowed to sign the Versailles treaty with a reservation on Shantung. There is already in existence in Paris a tentative draft of a note embodying this request, which will be presented to the chief allied powers in case they approve the American reservations.

In June China asked that she be permitted to sign the Versailles treaty, reserving her acceptance of the Shantung settlement. This privilege was denied, as were similar requests from other minor powers to make reservations on various points affecting their peculiar interests. China thereupon refused to accept the treaty unless the reservation was allowed adopting a position somewhat analogous to that of the American Senate.

Inasmuch as one of the American reservations refers to the Shantung settlement, the Chinese diplomats think that they have an especially strong case in their demand for the privilege of signing the treaty with a reservation on that point and thereby obtaining membership in the League of Nations and the other privileges which go with the signing of the treaty.

The Chinese delegation followed closely the course of the Shantung debate and reservation in the American Senate, and did not conceal their pleasure when the reservation was adopted by the Senate. They still have their eyes on the situation in Washington, and they are very frank in saying that they hope the Lodge reservation, with the preamble requiring action by the Allies, will be adopted along with the American ratification of the treaty.

Whether this move by the Chinese gives them the coveted privilege of signing the treaty with reservations or not, they are counting on it to be of great propaganda value in bringing the Shantung issue more forcibly to the notice of all the world. They make it clear that without the reservation they will never sign the Versailles treaty.

Says Japan Started Fukien Riots.

The Chinese Peace Delegation issued a statement this afternoon, asserting that the Japanese Government was sending warships to Fukien under the pretense of protecting Japanese subjects. According to the Chinese, the Japanese are responsible for the disorders which precipated this action. Fukien lies down the Chinese coast south from Shantung.

The Chinese statement, which is based on a cable received today from the Peking Government, says:

SEEK 500 FRIENDS OF REDS

Police Work on Membership Rolls Found in Raid—Gambling and Immorality on Ellis Island.

Prosecution of the fight against Bolshevism and other virulent forms of radicalism was continued through four different channels in New York yesterday, when a great amount of evidence was gathered.

Before members of the House Committee on Immigration at Ellis Island letters were produced which had been sent to ex-Commissioner Frederic C. Howe by Emma Goldman and Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, both notorious agitators, who wrote friendly appeals for the release of colleagues under detention there. It was asserted at the hearing that immorality and gambling existed on the island under the Howe administration and that of 697 suspected or convicted radicals sent there in the last two years the majority had been released. Mr. Howe is to be called as a witness later.

Joint investigation by the police and Federal agents of evidence obtained in Tuesday's raid at the Russian Workers' headquarters in East Fifteenth Street showed that the explosives secreted there were sufficient to do untold damage. Ledgers containing the names of 300 active radicals were scrutinized. Their contents were not given out, but it was stated that many of the men implicated by the evidence were now at Ellis Island. It was stated also that in some cases they would be removed from the immigration station not for deportation but to be sent to prison if possible.

Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, the Soviet "Ambassador," who was to have been questioned by the Lusk Committee at the City Hall about the foreign sources of income of Red organizations in this country, was excused until Dec. 4. Dudley Field Malone made a violent attack on the committee.

Dr. Misiig, Treasurer of Novy Mir, a Russian newspaper, testified that he knew Trotzky, but had not been in communication with him recently. He admitted that the ultimate aim of the Bolsheviki was to extend their theories of government to other countries.

Dynamiters Pleaded for Man.

David Kaplan and Matthew A. Schmidt, dynamiters of the McNamara gang which blew up The Los Angeles Times, intervened successfully with the immigration authorities in 1915 in favor of a white slaver, Joseph Goldberg, who had been their prison mate, according to letters and testimony before the House Immigration Committee at Ellis Island yesterday.

Kaplan and Schmidt appealed to Emma Goldman, who wrote an urgent letter to "My Dear Fred Howe" in favor of Goldberg just as he was about to be sent to France because of proof that he had been engaged in this country in exporting women to Africa. She begged Commissioner Howe, as a "big" man, to interfere to "save that poor boy from the horrors of war," which would be his lot if he were forced to go back to his native country of France. On the recommendation of the Commissioner Goldberg was released on his promise to go to Spain. Whether he ever went there was not shown.

This was one of several hundred cases in which men sent here from all parts of the country for deportation as anarchists or white slavers succeeded, in one way or another, in getting released on this community. Byron S. Uhl, Assistant Commissioner of Immigration, admitted that under Howe, Ellis Island was tending to become "a forum for the preaching of Bolshevism," a gambling den, and a disorderly resort. According to members of the committee, Commissioner General Anthony J. Caminetti has stated that he had asked for the removal of Howe many times in the last five years, but had no power to act, because Howe was removable only by the President or by impeachment proceedings.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The Treasury Department made public tonight an official statement containing figures obtained from the income tax returns of coal operators. It has particular importance at this time on account of the charges made by William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, on Monday, that the income tax returns of coal operators showed enormous profits, with earnings on capital stock in some cases as high as 2,000 per cent.

The statement reads:

MEMORANDUM—Furnished to the Secretary of the Treasury by experts of Internal Revenue Bureau as to profits of coal operators.

Coal operators generally in the United States in the year 1914 and 1915 lost money when normal depletion and depreciation are taken into consideration. What is meant by this is that a proper item in fixing costs is depreciation of plant and depletion of the cost or value of the coal in the ground.

In the latter part of 1916 all coal companies in the United States, save those in the extreme West, began making money with the result that the operations for the year 1916 generally show a profit of from 10 to 35 per cent. on capital invested.

In 1917 all bituminous coal mines east of the Mississippi River made what might be termed fabulous profits, the general average being from 100 to 150 per cent. on invested capital, the range being from 15 to 800 per cent.

In 1918 conditions were not so good in the Appalachian and central competitive districts, profits generally being reduced 25 to 30 per cent. less than for the preceding year, the range being from 15 to 300 per cent. on invested capital. In the West conditions in 1918 were better than in 1917, the profits in the Rocky Mountain district ranging as high as 400 per cent. on invested capital.

Unofficial figures for 1919, incomplete, of course, indicate that profits of the operators are less than for 1918, some of the operators claiming to have actually lost money.

TROOPS SEIZE 52 AS MINE AGITATORS

ACT UNDER MARTIAL LAW

Miners in Two Camps Vote to Return to Work After Arrests by Soldiers.

Special to The New York Times.

SHERIDAN, Wyo., Nov. 26.—Fifty-two foreigners from Carneyville, a coal mining camp on the outskirts of this city, are lodged in the guardhouses at Fort Mackenzie tonight, following their arrest today on the general complaint that they were agitators and were conspiring to continue an unauthorized strike as well as intimidating miners returning to work.

The arrests were made by troops of the Fifteenth Cavalry from Fort Mackenzie, headed by Major Warren Dean. No warrants were issued. Sheriff Thomas, four deputies, and United States Deputy Marshal Sevey accompanied the soldiers.

Major Dean announced that the arrests were made under the jurisdiction of the Sheriff and in accordance with the proclamation issued by Brigadier General Poore of Fort D. A. Russell, Wyo., which placed the State under military control. The proclamation was issued at the request of Governor Carey.

It was not believed tonight that formal charges would be filed against the miners now under arrest. This, it was explained, is up to the Department of Justice. The men are held by virtue of the powers created under the military proclamation, which virtually amounts to martial law. Federal troops are in control because the Wyoming National Guard is inadequate to cope with the situation.

Troops entrained for Carneyville in special cars this morning after a siren had been blown to summon the local militia company to mobilize at Fort Mackenzie as reserves. When the troops disembarked at Carneyville they fixed bayonets and charged down the street, surrounding a pool hall where strikers had congregated.

These men were put under guard while the other troops were dispatched on a systematic house to house canvass. All male occupants were ordered to go to the middle of the street and assemble at the pool hall. The miners obeyed without protest, many being frightened by the appearance of the bayonets.

When the entire male population had been assembled, fifty-two miners were put under arrest and marched to cars under guard. The remaining miners were then asked if they would return to work Friday morning, and all replied in the affirmative.

Troops then entrained for Monarch, where all miners were rounded up by the soldiers and marched to their hall. The men then voted on whether they would return to work, the soldiers remaining outside. The vote was taken and it was announced that all the miners had voted to return to work.

With this assurance, Major Dean ordered his men to entrain for Sheridan. The fifty-two prisoners were taken to Fort Mackenzie because the county jail

SHOW COAL PROFITS, INSISTS M'ADOO

Country Is Entitled to Full Information, He Says in Reply to Operators.

AVERAGE PRICE NOT ISSUE

He Maintains Returns on Capital as Shown by Tax Reports Show True Figures.

The rejoinder of the bituminous coal operators to former Secretary W. G. McAdoo's statement about their "shocking profits" yesterday drew another broadside from Mr. McAdoo. The ex-Cabinet member said in his telegram that he wasn't surprised that the operators regarded his first statement as in "bad taste," but he assured them he would "never hesitate so long as I have a voice to raise it in behalf of the public."

Mr. McAdoo's message was as follows:

"T. T. Brewster,
"A. M. Ogle,
"T. W. Guthrie,
"Washington, D. C.:

"Your telegram just received. The question at issue is very simple and must not be obscured. It is whether or not the coal operators are making such large or excessive profits on coal that they should be permitted to increase the price of coal to the overburdened public in the event the increase of wages is given to the miners.

"How can the coal operators' profits be quickly shown? By publication of their income tax returns to the Treasury Department for the years of 1917 and 1918, as I have already suggested. These income tax returns are made under oath and they show the profits which each mine operator made on his capital stock as well as upon what he claims to have been his invested capital for the years in question. I repeat that in the year 1917 the tax returns of the coal operators showed profits ranging from 15 to 2,000 per cent. on capital stock before deduction for excess profits taxes. This is an understatement rather than an overstatement of what these returns disclosed.

"The mine operators claim that their invested capital frequently exceeds their capital stock, and, of course, this will be given consideration in a final determination of profits. The point is that on the most favorable basis to the mine operators the income tax returns for 1917 disclosed extraordinary profits, and I have said that if such profits were maintained in 1918 and 1919 any increase of wages to the miners should not be put upon the already overburdened consuming public, but should be borne by the operators themselves.

"These income tax returns should be published. The country is entitled to this information before it is made to suffer further burdens, and I can think of no reason why the public, which has a vital interest in this situation, should be deprived of all the facts. The statement in your telegram that the average margin per ton on all coal mined in 1918 was 46 cents has no bearing upon the issue. These averages are frequently used as convenient smoke screens to obscure the facts.

"The question is: What were the profits on the capital employed by the mine owners regardless of the average profit that may have been earned on

MINERS SCOFF AT PROPOSAL

Stick for Secretary Wilson's 31 Per Cent., Ask If He Is Repudiated.

PLAN IS ONLY TEMPORARY

Board of Review Suggested, with Lane as Chairman, and Both Sides Represented.

SHARP CONFLICT IN SIGHT

Miners' Representatives Bitter After Long Conference When Terms Are Announced.

Negotiations Will End Today, Say Miners, Forecasting Clash

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—William Green, Secretary of the United Mine Workers, said tonight that tomorrow would see the end of all negotiations as "the miners cannot proceed on the figures given by Dr. Garfield."

Many of the miners said they agreed with Alexander Howat, President of the Kansas miners, who announced that "if we are unable to receive a wage here that will guarantee us a decent living 365 days in the year we will go home and fight for a while."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26—The Government, through Fuel Administrator Garfield, granted the coal miners of the central competitive district tonight an average wage increase of 14 per cent., and at the same time announced that the price of coal to the public would not be increased and that the Government would continue for the present in control of prices.

This negotiation, he said, would stand by itself, but he urged that a permanent advisory body, headed by Secretary Lane, and with an equal representation of miners and operators, be formed to get information as to the industry to govern future disputes.

The operators have accepted the decision and are willing to carry out the terms, but the miners, headed by John L. Lewis, Acting President of the United Mine Workers of America, refuse to give the offer consideration, and stand firmly behind the proposal of 31.61 per cent. increase in pay made by Secretary Wilson.

The dramatic climax to the long negotiations was reached tonight when Fuel Administrator Garfield appeared at 8:30 o'clock before an open meeting of the miners and operators at the Red Cross Building.

Miners Laugh at Proposal.

Opposition to the Garfield proposal was at once voiced by acting President Lewis and Frank Farrington, speaking for the miners, who said that acceptance of the plan would mean starvation wages for many miners. There was laughter and sneering among the representatives of the miners. Dr. Garfield stated the position of the Government and the attacks upon the offer were couched in bitter terms.

The situation was more complicated than ever tonight as a result of the decision.

In stating that he thought that a general increase of 14 per cent. should be accepted, pending a full investigation of the situation, Dr. Garfield said that in his opinion this increase would bring the miners up to the level of workers in other industries. He said that the decision of the Government was final. He listened to the arguments of representatives of the miners, but remained firm.

The coal miners denounced the decision and demanded of Dr. Garfield if it meant an open repudiation of Secretary Wilson.

Dr. Garfield refused to answer this, simply saying that questions to that effect by the representatives of the miners misrepresented the situation. He pictured the situation rather as one in which there had been a difference of opinion and where the stand taken by the Fuel Administrator had prevailed, pending further investigation. But he was none the less firm in stating that his offer was one which the miners could accept or reject as they saw fit, but behind which the Government would stand.

Text of Garfield's Statement.

Dr. Garfield's statement to the joint conference of miners and operators was as follows:

"On the 24th instant I announced that the public must not be asked to pay more than it is now paying for coal, unless it is necessary to do so, in order to provide reasonable wages to the mine workers, and a reasonable profit to the operators. Careful investigation forces me to the conclusion that, in accordance with this and the other principles set forth on the 24th instant, the public ought not to be required to pay any increase in coal prices at this time.

"The prices fixed by the Government on coal were calculated to increase production for war purposes. Coal was basis, and the increase in production was imperative. The operators are now in receipt of margins which were necessary to effect that increase of production, but which are larger than are required under present conditions. It was estimated that the production needed for 1919 was 600,000,000 tons. The estimate for 1919 is 500,000,000 tons.

"Applying the principles set forth in paragraph two of the statement of Nov. 5, when the average increases in wages since 1913 for the various classes of mine workers are deducted from the increase in the cost of living since that time, we arrive at the amount of additional increase in wages justifiable at the present time.

"I have taken the figures of the Bureau of Labor Statistics for both cost of living and for the weighted average of wage increases. According to those figures the cost of living has risen 78.8 per cent. since 1913 and the amount necessary to bring the average wages of mine workers up to this point at the present time is 14 per cent.

"Readjustments heretofore made since 1913 were such as to give certain classes of mine workers an average increase in excess of the increase in the cost of living, and certain others an average increase below the increase in the cost of living.

Would Maintain Relative Basis.

"This form of adjustment was made in order to establish or preserve certain relative basis in the mining industry. I do not think this condition, however, ought to result in giving to mine workers as a whole, and in consequence imposing upon the public, a total average increase in excess of the total average increase in the cost of living, because if this course be adopted the result would be that the total increased burden placed upon the mining industry will be far in excess of the increase in the cost of living.

"If this principle were applied in industries generally it is obvious that the resulting cost would be passed along to the general public and the increased wages would increase in a rapid spiral, taking as a minimum the percentage of increase in the cost of living. In the long run this would add many new and serious burdens to the cost of living of the entire public, and would fall more injuriously upon the working classes than upon any others.

"It seems to me that the reasonable way to deal with this situation is to give to the industry as a whole an average increase commensurate with the increase in the cost of living, and then let that amount of increase be apportioned in accordance with the wage bases that are acceptable to the employers and the employes.

"Control of prices by the Government will be maintained for the present.

"The present negotiation stands by itself, but it is far from disposing of the fundamental controversy between operators and mine workers. That controversy is bound to be a continuing one as matters now stand. It involves living conditions and conditions in the mines, as well as wages and profits, and the general relation between operators and mine workers. Therefore, to aid in applying the principles which have governed us, and which should govern in reaching conclusions in the future, it is urged that a permanent consultative body, with purely advisory powers, be set up consisting of the Secretary of the Interior as Chairman and of an equal number of representatives of the operators and of the mine workers, chosen in such manner as they may each determine from time to time.

Would Collect Facts on Industry.

"In order that the data necessary for the consideration of this consultative body may at all times be available, it is urged that the Congress make provision for collecting definite and trustworthy information concerning the coal and coke industry and for the tabulation of the same in quarterly reports showing:

"1. Production, distribution, storage and stocks of coal and coke.

"2. The cost of production and distribution and of maintaining suitable stocks, and any other data concerning the industry deemed necessary.

"3. The cost of living in the several coal fields.

"4. The selling prices and profits obtained by the operators, middlemen, and retail dealers.

"5. Export requirements and the conditions limiting them.

"The settlement of the present controversy on the wage and price basis above indicated must be considered in the light of the proposal to set up this permanent consultative body. While it will not have powers of decision, it will hardly seem possible to a reasonable man that in the light of its conclusions demands for exorbitant profits or unreasonable wages can be successfully maintained, or that conditions unfavorable to the American standard of living will be tolerated."

There were many who felt tonight that, in face of the Garfield announcement, Secretary Wilson might offer his resignation, thus accentuating the differences of opinion in the Cabinet over the coal strike. It has been generally reported that Secretary Baker has been among the minority members, supporting a larger increase to the miners, but he has refused to comment upon the matter.

Warm Contest in the Cabinet.

The controversy in the Cabinet between the Garfield faction and the one headed by Secretary Wilson was taken up again this morning when the Cabinet met at 11 o'clock. Dr. Garfield made it known that he had not receded from his position of yesterday, when he held that the terms of settlement, suggested by Secretary Wilson and backed by former Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, were based upon a wrong hypothesis.

There ensued a warm debate from 11 A. M. until 1:30 P. M. Then Secretary Wilson left the Cabinet room, a frown upon his face. He told the reporters that he had nothing to say. Dr. Garfield and Attorney General Palmer, who was said to have backed him up in the Cabinet, appeared a few minutes later, smiling. They rode away in the same automobile.

Mr. Palmer remarked that he had nothing to say at all.

Dr. Garfield said that a decision had been reached and that the miners and operators would be called together later to hear it.

At 5 P. M. the miners and operators assembled at the Red Cross Building and waited for Dr. Garfield. At 5:15 o'clock a messenger appeared from Dr. Garfield's office and stated that there would be delay and that Dr. Garfield would not be able to appear until 8:30.

Frank Farrington, representing the miners, arose when T. T. Brewster of the operators, Chairman of the meeting, made the announcement.

"I don't know about the others," he said, "but as for myself, I am tired of waiting on Dr. Garfield. I would like to know if it is agreed that all of us are wanted to come back here." There was a murmur of surprise at this statement, Mr. Brewster declaring it out of order.

Miners and operators awaited the statement by Dr. Garfield tonight with ill-concealed interest.

The operators were satisfied after they heard Dr. Garfield; the miners openly rebellious. Acting President Lewis was on his feet the moment Dr. Garfield stopped talking and his voice had a cynical tone.

"Do I understand," he said, "that what you have stated means that you recommend but a 14 per cent. increase for the miners?"

Dr. Garfield assured him that that was the purport of his statement and that it was the decision of the Government.

Explains Wilson's Proposal.

Lewis wanted to know what had become of the proposal by Secretary Wilson.

"The miners came to Washington," he said, "at the request of Secretary Wilson, who is authorized under the law to arbitrate disputes. We understood that he represented the Cabinet and, indirectly, the President himself. Acting in his official capacity Secretary Wilson offered the miners an advance of 31.6 per cent. Does the Government intend to repudiate the act of its authorized agent or abide by it?"

"There is no gentleman in the Cabinet I respect more than Secretary Wilson," Dr. Garfield replied. "His powers are clearly defined. Among other things his duties are to effect conciliation. But under the labor act the President was empowered to control prices and that duty was conferred upon the Fuel Administration. You cannot fix prices without affecting wages and you cannot change wages without affecting prices.

"Both Secretary Wilson and I frankly realize this difficulty, but I cannot allow it to stand in the way of doing my duty. It is not my understanding that Secretary Wilson made a definite offer to either the miners or operators, but that he merely suggested a basis on which you might get together."

Before the meeting was over Dr. Garfield said that his statement was not mandatory.

"I'm not making a proposition," Dr. Garfield said. "I'm only telling you what the facts are, that an increase of 14 per cent. will raise the average wage to meet the increased cost of living and that the public must not bear the burden. A higher wage increase would not be equitable. I'm not saying anything about the arrangement you may make with these gentlemen, the operators. I can only say the price to the public must not increase."

"If we do not resume work will we not be regarded as lawbreakers, a class of workingmen inimical to the country as a whole?" asked Farrington.

"That is stronger language than I would use," was Dr. Garfield's answer.

"This is time for strong language," cried Farrington. "Let's call a spade a spade. It is no time to mince words."

"Your question implies that the Government wants to force unwilling miners to work; but the Government has never said that," said Dr. Garfield. "It has only said it would protect the men who did return."

At the conclusion of tonight's meeting the Scale Committees of the operators and miners went into session.

Before the meeting Acting Chief Lewis said that the miners would not accept the offer of 14 per cent.

Operators Ready to Proceed.

Late tonight the Executive Committee of the Bituminous Coal Operators of the Central Competitive District issued a statement, based upon Dr. Garfield's statement before the miners and operators:

"The Executive Committee of the Coal Operators, Central Competitive District Scale Committee, announces that their position in regard to what might constitute a justifiable wage advance to the miners has been sustained by the Administration. They point out that Dr. Garfield in his statement had emphasized the fact that he had used the increased cost of living figures of 79.8 per cent., submitted by the Secretary of Labor, which was the highest submitted from any source in determining the amount of advance now to be allowed the miners.

"Other" official and authoritative figures ranged substantially below this, some being as low as 59 per cent. If this latter figure had been used (and undoubtedly the increased cost of living since 1913 in the coal mining field has not exceeded this figure) there would have been no advance suggested for the miners.

"Dr. Garfield and the Cabinet therefore went the limit in generosity in order to do full justice to the miners. They point out that no figures, showing the current year's margin for the operators were available, and that it was necessary for Dr. Garfield to use the 1918 margin in deciding what advance in price should be allowed the operators.

"The margin in 1918, he had already pointed out, was 46 cents, which margin included income and excess profit taxes, totaling 30 cents, as well as other items of cost, and not including interest on investments. During the current year, owing to reduced production, costs have advanced readily, while selling prices have declined. The margin, therefore, has been greatly reduced and in many fields entirely wiped out.

"The operators say that the country needs coal, and in the present crisis they are ready to proceed on the basis suggested by Dr. Garfield and the Cabinet."

Sub-Scale Committees Held Session.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (Associated Press)—After a three-hour conference at which representatives of the miners openly declared the new scale submitted by Dr. Garfield was "insulting" and sharply questioned Dr. Garfield, the sub-scale committee, composed of miners and operators met to consider the settlement plan, and quickly adjourned. Another meeting will be held tomorrow.

The miners' refusal to accept, while not announced to Dr. Garfield, was taken by the operators to be definite. Thomas T. Brewster, Chairman of the Coal Operators' Association, declared the Garfield 14 per cent. statement formally eliminated Secretary Wilson's proposal for a 31 per cent. increase.

"The operators are ready to negotiate a new wage agreement," Brewster said, "despite Dr. Garfield's statement that the Government will not permit an advance in the price of coal."

While the sub-scale committee will give consideration to the proposition the full committee, representing both sides, will remain here to receive any plan of settlement that might be agreed upon.

Dr. Garfield declared at the meeting that the miners, without the proposed increase of 14 per cent., were better off than other classes of employment.

Dr. Garfield said that the lowest wages paid to miners was $4.75 a day, and that, working 200 days a year, the minimum average annual return amounted to $950. This sum, he added, "is a little higher than wages in other employment, and this is without considering the 14 per cent. increase."

William Green, Secretary of the United Mine Workers, asked if $950 was sufficient to maintain American standards of living.

"That depends on circumstances," said Dr. Garfield. "There are very few who get more than $80 a month. I won't admit that a decent American standard isn't permitted."

KANSAS BURNS OLD BUILDINGS.

State Has No Coal for Thanksgiving —Governor Opens Strip Mines.

Special to The New York Times.

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 26.—With the temperature 10 degrees above zero, Northwestern Kansas faces Thanksgiving with empty coal bins. Many towns are without coal and old outbuildings are being razed for firewood. Mayor Millirons started a municipal wood pile for Concordia today. Men and boys will bring in wood, which the city will saw and sell at cost.

Governor Allen returned to Topeka today to complete the arrangements for assembling volunteer workers for the Kansas coal mines, and to arrange for blankets and beds, food, and buildings in the mining district.

The Governor expects to be able to start all the strip mines Saturday morning and hopes that within a day or two the mines will be turning out coal at the rate of 10,000 tons a day.

Asks Kansas City Schools Be Closed.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 26—The local Fuel Administrator this afternoon asked the Board of Education to close the schools until the fuel situation improves. This measure was decided upon at a meeting today of the local Fuel Administration after receiving reports on the situation.

BROTHERHOODS TAKE NO ACTION TO STRIKE

Cleveland Convention Debates Hines's Slow Freight Offer, but Fails to Reach a Vote.

MEET AGAIN THIS MORNING

Firemen's and Trainmen's Request for a General Wage Increase Was Also Discussed.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 26.—No action looking toward a railroad strike by the four railroad brotherhoods was taken today by the 500 general Chairmen meeting here to act on Director General of Railroads Hines's offer of time and one-half for slow freight service, and no vote was taken on the proposition, although a motion to vote on it was adopted. The conference adjourned late this afternoon and will meet again tomorrow morning. Discussion of the proposition and the request of the firemen and trainmen for a general wage increase occupied this afternoon's session.

The morning session adjourned at noon for luncheon, and one of the Brotherhood chiefs announced that a vote on the overtime proposition had been taken, but it later developed that this was an error and that only a motion to vote on it was adopted.

When the conference reassembled this afternoon the Director General's offer was again taken up. Many amendments were offered by the delegates, and further requests were sent to Washington for explanation of its workings in connection with the elimination of arbitraries and allowances, as stipulated by the Director General.

It was learned from an authoritative source tonight that the delegates are opposed to accepting the proposition if all the arbitraries and allowances existing in many schedules at present are eliminated, figuring that the loss of these arbitraries and allowances is nearly equal to the amount gained by the overtime offer.

Many delegates claim the members of the four railroad brotherhoods have been discriminated against, it was said, in the recent granting of increased wages to other railroad employes.

The General Chairmen and chief executives of the firemen, conductors and trainmen were in session tonight working on figures to show how the time and one-half for overtime in slow freight service, with the elimination of arbitraries and special allowances, will affect their members.

Await Action in Cleveland.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 26.—The local members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen are today, to all appearances, waiting for the Cleveland conference to act on the wage demands. In the event it fails to demand an increase, a strike may be called here.

"We have not heard even a threat of a strike," a railroad official said today. "Perhaps plans for one, in view of the Federal Court's intervention in the coal strike, will be kept secret until the minute the brotherhoods are ready to act."

A rumor that the Kansas City Southern trainmen would go out tonight was denied by an official of one of the local brotherhoods.

Local railroad men could not explain why Kansas City trainmen should be the first in the country to demand a strike. Conditions here are not different from conditions elsewhere.

PLEA FOR NEW COUNTRIES.

Labor Congress Warned of Economic Rift Between Old World and New.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The International Labor Conference provided today for equal representation by the European countries and the new countries on a commission to consider regulations for workers migrating from one State to another and the protection of interests of wage earners residing outside of their native State.

The resolutions adopted by the conference also included a draft convention providing for the collection and distribution of information on labor problems, the maintenance of free employment bureaus, and the adoption of a system whereby the workers in a foreign country may receive the same insurance benefits as granted in their own countries. This resolution was proposed by William Gemmill, the employers' delegate from South Africa.

Archibald Crawford, the workers' delegate from South Africa, also supported the amendment, and called attention to increasing evidence of the existence of opposing economic interest between the Old World and the New.

"If this conference is going to succeed," he said, "it is essential that far more consideration be given to the newer countries."

Mr. Crawford urged the delegates to dispel the impression that Europe was dominating the situation.

The discord that developed among the Japanese delegates over the failure of the Government delegates to support the workers' delegate in his effort to have the eight-hour law apply in Japan became so strained today that two of the advisers to the workers' delegate offered their resignations.

ANTHRACITE MINERS QUIT.

Workers in Hazleton, Pa., Insist Coal Inspector Joins Union.

HAZLETON, Pa., Nov. 26.—Thirteen hundred miners employed by the G. B. Markle Coal Company are on strike today. The trouble started two days ago at the Jeddo No. 7 colliery over the refusal of a coal inspector to join the union.

Today it spread to two other collieries. Still another may close if the trouble is not speedily settled.

URGES DEMAND FOR TREATY.

Bishop Wilson Wants People to Insist Upon Reconsideration.

Bishop Luther B. Wilson, speaking last evening in Metropolitan Temple, said that the American people should demand that the treaty be reconsidered and that steps be taken that would put America in her rightful place. He spoke at a Methodist Episcopal Thanksgiving meeting.

"I do not believe that many of us regard with pride the action that was taken the other day in the Senate and I doubt whether those who were in sympathy with the objects accomplished by the act were proud of the way in which they were accomplished, a minority of the Senate taking action that was clearly contrary to the will of the people."

He said that this country should take steps that will put her where she can help other nations. The Bishop spoke on prohibition and he said that people were coming to recognize the fact that the greatest agency for evil that ever existed had been destroyed. This, he added, is one of our greatest causes for thanksgiving.

serious incident at Nantai, Fukien, in which several scores of armed Japanese subjects attacked some Japanese Y. M. C. A. people and wounded five of them by stabbing and beating and another by shooting. The Chinese police were hastened to the scene to restore order. A quarrel ensued, and one policeman was shot and badly injured. It was with great difficulty that the police finally succeeded in arresting three armed Japanese.

"At the same time seven Japanese police guards of the Japanese Consulate stirred up trouble in a restaurant by shooting at and stoning passersby. The Chinese authorities at once caused the offenders, together with three other armed Japanese, to be brought to the Japanese Consulate.

"Four days before the occurrence of this incident the Japanese Consul had, it was reported, notified the Chinese authorities of a case in which some Chinese students compelled Japanese engaged in clandestine trade in explosives to have them destroyed. He stated that should another quarrel ensue and blood be shed he could not be held accountable therefor. On the day when the incident took place many Japanese were seen prowling here and there down the streets of Nantai. In Fachow Japanese residents, according to the Chinese press, paraded into the city without previous notice to the local authorities.

"The Japanese Consul at Nantai has now requested the Tokio Government to send to Fukien warships, which are on their way from Japan. The Chinese people are very much excited."

GERMAN WARNS THE SENATE.

Says Isolation from Europe Means Lack of Safeguards Against Japan.

BERLIN, Nov. 26, (Associated Press)—Professor Otto Hoetzsch, the Kreuszeitung's writer on world politics, in a long article on the United States Senate's action, expresses the opinion that the chief factor animating the Americans is not that they want to rely more upon themselves, but that they do not want "the super-state organization of the League of Nations, with its restriction on sovereignty." He says: "The Republicans naturally do not desire the Democratic Party to enter the elections with a wonderfully successful President."

Professor Hoetzsch argues that in isolating themselves from European affairs Americans are leaving themselves isolated against Japan, and asks whether it is mere chance that just at the time of the critical discussions in Washington the Japanese Government should begin negotiations for a renewal of the Anglo-Japanese Treaty, and whether Japan hopes to profit by "the isolation to which the American Republicans themselves are steering."

CHURCHMEN CONDEMN DEFEAT OF THE TREATY

Peace Union Assails Putting "Safety First" in the "World's Dreadful Need."

The officers of the Church Peace Union issued last night the following statement with regard to the failure of the Senate to ratify the Peace Treaty:

"We view with concern and indignation the lamentable lack of statesmanship that has led to the failure of the treaty in the Senate. On so weighty a matter, fraught with incalculable consequences to humanity, it ought to be possible for patriotic and fair-minded men, regardless of partisan or personal prejudice, to get together in working out a safe and full co-operation of this country in a real international order. Political partisanship on such an issue is shameful and inexcusable.

"We covet for this country the true greatness of unlimited service. We long to see America first in helpfulness, in courage, in eagerness for a new and better order, in largeness of soul. More than any other danger, we fear the danger of losing, through reactions of selfishness and timidity, the unequaled opportunities the present offers our country.

"We urge the members of the United States Senate, regardless of party or of past position, to unite in speedy ratification of the treaty, with such reservations only as may leave unimpaired the covenant of the League of Nations and provide for America's entrance on just and equal terms, without special privileges or exceptions.

"And we urge all in this country who have faith in God and love for their fellow-men to exert at once all the influence they possess, in word, in prayer, and in act, to avert from our beloved country the deep disgrace of abandoning the ideals for which we fought and the shame of putting safety first in this hour of the world's deep and dreadful need."

The statement was signed by the Rev. Henry A. Atkinson, the Rev. Arthur Judson Brown, the Rev. Frederick Lynch, the Rev. William Pierson Merrill, the Rev. Charles S. MacFarland, and George A. Plimpton.

SENATORS ADRIFT ON TREATY ACCORD

EXPECT PUBLIC PRESSURE

Belief Grows at Washington That a Few Major Concessions Will Bring Agreement.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—With all but about a dozen Senators away from the city for the Thanksgiving holiday, there was a decided lull today in the discussion over the treaty with Germany and the prospects for its ratification at the next session of Congress, which convenes on Monday. The disposition of the Senators remaining in the capital was to "let the treaty drop" until the end of the week.

Not until Senators who have gone home return to the capital and conferences are held among leaders of the opposing sides will there be any definite indication as to what procedure there will be regarding further consideration of the treaty. Much depends upon the attitude taken by President Wilson in his conference next Saturday with Senator Hitchcock, the acting minority leader.

The impression seemed to grow at the capitol today that the Administration forces might suggest a way to compromise based on elimination of the Lodge preamble, which requires acceptance of the Senate reservations by three of the four principal signatories, and a change in Article X. Until Senator Hitchcock sees the President the policy of the Administration forces will not be disclosed.

Democratic Senators express the opinion that the majority of members of the upper house will come back to Washington eager to reach an agreement, spurred by what these Senators believe to be a powerful sentiment throughout the country for the prompt ratification of the treaty.

The Democrats are not at all inclined to accept the insistence of Republican leaders that the minority must "go to the majority" with terms of compromise. They believe that concessions must be made by both sides and that there will be no great delay in reaching an agreement.

LODGE SEES VICTORY FOR THE RESERVATIONS

"Willing to Acknowledge" He Is Fighting Wilson—Approves Coolidge for President.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 26.—Senator Lodge, who is here during the recess of Congress, declared today that the Senate would yet pass the Peace Treaty with the reservations attached.

"When the treaty is again presented there will be votes enough to pass it," he said.

He indicated that when President Wilson resubmitted the treaty to the Senate it would be referred to the Foreign Relations Committee and kept there until the Democrats decided that they would not again send it down to defeat.

"All we demanded was that the treaty be Americanized," Senator Lodge said. "I have always stood for peace with Germany and a League of Nations, but I stood for an honorable and victorious peace and a League of Nations that would not sacrifice America, its Constitution or its sovereignty.

"I have grown accustomed to misrepresentation and abuse, but I care more for my oath as Senator than for the plaudits and caresses of those who would hand the United States over to a foreign tribunal to steer its political and economic course."

Callers poured in on the Senator today, most of them to congratulate him on his treaty fight in the Senate. To several of his friends he stated, smiling, that at any time when President Wilson would accept the reservations, the treaty would be adopted.

"I am fighting President Wilson, that I am willing to acknowledge," he asserted, in continued reference to the treaty.

Senator Lodge voiced his approval of Governor Coolidge as a candidate for President. "I would do all I could to aid him," he said.

It is expected that Mr. Lodge will head the State delegation to the National Convention next year, and Governor Coolidge is likely to be a delegate. In accordance with Bay State custom, the delegation will go "uninstructed," though it now appears that Coolidge will be its "favorite son" candidate. In that event Senator Lodge will ask the privilege of putting the Governor in nomination.

"Thus far," said the Senator, "I have taken no part in the contest for the Republican nomination, though two of my associates on the Foreign Relations Committee, Johnson of California and Harding of Ohio, are candidates."

Former Senator John W. Weeks was among those who conferred with Senator Lodge today.

each ton of coal? Whatever the margin per ton was, if it resulted in excessive profits on the capital employed then clearly the public should not be made to pay higher prices for coal and the mine owners should absorb the wage increase to the men. There need be no controversy about the matter, because the income tax returns speak for themselves.

"You state that the bituminous coal operators will welcome the publication of just as full current tax returns for the bituminous coal industry as are published for any other industry. The publication of returns for any other industry has nothing to do with this case. Coal is vital to the life of the American people and basic to every industry in the country. Before the coal operators are permitted to increase the price of coal, which would mean taking toll from every factory, every business, and from every domestic fireside in America, it should be clearly demonstrated that the increase is justified.

"Under the law, the Secretary of the Treasury may publish these returns with the President's approval, and I hope for the sake of the American public that such publication will be made. I am convinced that the increased wages proposed by Secretary Wilson for the mine workers are just and reasonable because they equalize the miners' wages with the present increased cost of living as shown by Secretary Wilson's figures.

"I ignore the offensive tone of your telegram because neither personalities nor questions of motive should be permitted to obscure the issue. I am not surprised, however, that you think it bad taste for me as a private citizen to express my opinion upon an important question concerning the general public, but even a private citizen still has as much right as mine owners to express his opinions in free America.

"The long suffering public has a right to be heard and considered. I shall never hesitate, so long as I have a voice, to raise it in behalf of the public whenever I think it proper to do so.

here is not large enough to accommodate them.

No statement could be obtained as to how long the prisoners would be held. Prosecuting Attorney Blake stated that he had received no request from the Sheriff to file charges against them and that he did not believe any State law applied to their cases.

The Wyoming coal strike was settled two weeks ago on an agreement reached by miners and operators in Cheyenne that the same wage scale which is agreed upon in the central competitive fields will prevail in this State. All mines then reopened, but Monday a new strike broke out in the northern Wyoming fields. Major Dean went to the mines early in the week and addressed meetings of the miners, warning them to go back to work.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Secretary Baker said today it was "inconceivable" than an army officer would order the arrest of coal miners for their failure to return to work, as was reported from Sheridan, Wyo. He added that he could take no action until he had received an official report on the incident.

MALONE ASSAILS LUSK COMMITTEE

Lawyer Ceases Violent Attack After Officer Had Been Called to Eject Him.

TROTZKY'S FRIEND CALLED

Dr. Mislig Says Bolsheviki Aim Ultimately to Spread Theories Outside Russia.

Dudley Field Malone, who figured in some testimony given on Tuesday before the Legislative Committee investigating seditious activities as the recipient of $1,000 from Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, unrecognized envoy of the Soviet Russia republic, for legal services, appeared unexpectedly before that body yesterday morning, demanding to be heard and prepared to give the committee a piece of his mind.

After Mr. Malone's demand for a hearing had been granted and he had been sworn, he launched an exceedingly bitter attack against the committee and Attorney General Charles D. Newton, its counsel, denouncing the conduct of the investigation as "immoral, cowardly, and un-American."

What Mr. Malone objected to appeared in the record of Tuesday's proceedings before the committee as part of a question asked the Soviet envoy by Attorney General Newton for the purpose of learning from the witness whether the $1,000 or part of it, was not compensation for propaganda conducted by Mr. Malone to promote the recognition by the Federal Government of the Soviet republic and its envoy. Mr. Martens on the stand denied that the money had been paid for anything but legal services.

When Mr. Malone began denouncing the investigation, Attorney General Newton shouted at him to stop.

"You have no right to interrupt me; the Chairman may," said Mr. Malone, hotly.

"Then I will assume that right," said Mr. Newton.

Assemblyman Peter P. McElliggott, who interceded with the committee to give Mr. Malone his hearing called upon him to be respectful toward the committee and the Attorney General. Mr. Malone said that the insinuations embodied in Attorney General Newton's questions on Tuesday had gone unrebuked; that they had been spread in the newspapers and that he insisted on his right to denounce such statements.

Newton Reprimands Malone.

"If he wants to dispute the testimony of any witness given here, I am willing he should have that opportunity," said Attorney General Newton. "But his attack on the committee and its actions is unwarranted, indecent and improper."

Mr. Malone made rejoinder that he had come not to reflect on the committee, but to seek redress. He added with a smile that he already had given copies of the statement he intended to read to the newspaper men present, and declared that he proposed to read it to the committee, too.

"Is the Sergeant-at-Arms here?" demanded Vice Chairman Louis Martin.

"Charley" Hotaling advanced toward Mr. Malone.

"When you are in a frame of mind to treat your fellow citizens with respect, you will be heard, but not until then," said the Vice Chairman.

Mr. Malone took one long look at the burly form of Mr. Hotaling and said:

"I am in a frame of mind to speak to you with great courtesy.

"I condemn the methods of this committee and the Attorney General and counsel. I have given the statement to the press, anyway."

"We have heard all we want from you," said Vice Chairman Martin, severely.

"You'll hear more, if there are any further insinuations," said Mr. Malone with his hand on the doorknob, and then made a hurried exit.

The rest of the session yesterday was occupied by the examination of Dr. Michael Mislig of 155 East Eightieth Street, a friend of Martens and of Leon Trotzky.

Dr. Mislig said he was Treasurer of the Novy Mir, a radical newspaper published in the Russian language in this city, and also of the Russian Federation which recently has become an integral part of the Communist Party, centres of which throughout this country have been raided recently by agents of the United States Department of Justice as hotbeds of seditious propaganda.

Dr. Mislig, in reply to questions from Deputy Attorney General Samuel A. Berger, said he had first met Mr. Martens in the office of the Novy Mir, in which publication both were financially interested before Mr. Martens became head of the Soviet Mission.

Mr Berger questioned the witness closely with regard to checks issued by him to the order of Novy Mir, aggregating $1,193 from January to June this year, while Martens has been the Soviet envoy and the Novy Mir an aggressive advocate of recognition of the Soviet Government and lifting the blockade against Soviet Russia. Prior to the introduction of the checks, Dr. Mislig had testified that he had donated some $50 to the Novy Mir and that $200 or thereabouts had been loaned by him to the publication during that period, but he had frequent lapses of memory when questioned regarding the checks making up the total in excess of the $250.

"To what purpose was the Novy Mir dedicated?" asked Mr. Berger.

"To teach the Russian masses the theory and philosophy of Socialism," the witness replied.

"And it has come out frequently and strongly in favor of the Bolshevist form of government?"

"In Russia, yes," said Dr. Mislig.

"Is it not a fact that the paper is the official Russian language organ of the Russian Communist Party in America—yes or no?"

"I don't know," said the witness, later admitting that it had imprinted on it the seal of the party, but remarking that other papers had that seal, too.

"Tell me frankly, is it an organ of the Communist Party in America, official or unofficial?" persisted the Deputy Attorney General.

"It is an organ of the Bolsheviki. It is a Bolshevist organ," said the doctor.

"And you are an American citizen?"

"Absolutely, and as good as any one in this room," said the witness.

"Did you know Leon Trotzky?" asked Mr. Berger.

"Yes, sir," said the witness.

Q. Are you in communication with him? A. No, sir.

Q. Either in writing or by courier or in any other way? A. No, sir, not I.

Knew a Dozen Soviet Leaders.

From testimony which followed it appeared that Dr. Mislig knew a dozen or more dignitaries in the Soviet Government when they were working, some of them in very humble positions in this city. One—Bokhardin—later Under Commissary in the Soviet was editor of the Novy Mir. Others had been painters, watchmakers, carpenters before, they became factors in swaying the fortunes of Soviet Russia. Many of them, the doctor testified, had been killed during the first bloody days of the Soviet uprising.

"When did you last have any communication with Trotzky?" the doctor was asked.

"Just before he left. I never corresponded with him."

Q. You are interested in his success? A. Absolutely.

Q. You are doing all you can to make his venture successful? A. I would not put it that way. I would not call it a venture, but I wish he is successful as far as Russia is concerned.

Q. It is the further object of your society to extend the theory of that Government outside of Russia into other nations? A. Not at the present moment but ultimately.

The witness refused to answer a question as to whether he was a member of the Communist Party, not on the ground that his answer would tend to incriminate and degrade him, but because he thought he had a right to decline to answer. Dr. Mislig was instructed to return on Dec. 4 and bring with him all books and documents that would shed light on his financial transactions with Martens and other radicals.

POLICE AFTER 500 RED SYMPATHIZERS

FEDERAL AGENTS ASSIST

Chemicals in Secret Cache the Most Dangerous Collection Unearthed in a Long Time.

"The most deadly and most dangerous assortment of explosives and bomb ingredients I have seen in many a year," was the description given yesterday by Inspector Owen Eagan of the Bureau of Combustibles of the quantity of TNT, the abbreviated name for trinitrotoluol, and acids and chemicals used in the manufacture of high explosives, which were seized in a secret chamber in the headquarters of the Union of Russian Workers, 133 East Fifteenth Street, late Tuesday afternoon.

The raid, which had been made by Department of Justice agents and detectives of the bomb squad, under Detective Sergeant James J. Gegan, for the purpose of serving warrants on certain radicals wanted by the authorities, has furnished the investigators with valuable clues which they indicated yesterday would aid them in running down the perpetrators of the bomb explosion at Judge Nott's home last June, the infernal machines sent through the mails to prominent citizens under Gimbel Brothers' label, and other recent outrages.

Three large books of the ledger type, confiscated also from the secret room, were found to contain the names of 500 men and women of extreme radical sympathies, it was definitely learned yesterday. While officials of the Police Department and the Department of Justice were reluctant to give out any details in regard to these membership rôles they made no effort to conceal the importance they placed on the finding of them. A large force of city and Federal investigators, it is known, is conducting a search for the men and women whose names appear in the books. From a reliable source it was learned that several of the names are those of alleged anarchists, now awaiting possible deportation at Ellis Island.

The question of whether or not the officers of the Union of Russian Workers, held by the immigration authorities, could be held responsible for the storing of the explosives and chemicals was discussed in conference yesterday by the city and Federal representatives. The police admit a hesitancy to take them into custody unless evidence can be obtained showing that the stuff had been placed in the cache in the East Fifteenth Street headquarters by the time the officers of the organization were arrested. There is a possibility, the police point out, that comrades on the outside constructed and equipped the secret bomb laboratory since then.

H. B. Campbell, an inspector of the United States Bureau of Mines and Explosives, went to Police Headquarters yesterday, and with Inspector Eagan examined the container marked TNT and thirty-five bottles and phials taken in the raid. They pronounced the contents of the bottles labeled muriatic acid, sulphuric acid, ammonia hydrate and glycerine sulphate as genuine. All of the other bottles and phials were found to contain the constituents of powerful bombs.

After pronouncing it the most dangerous assortment of bomb ingredients he had examined in a long time, Inspector Eagan declared that infernal machines requiring neither fuse nor fire to ignite them could be easily made from the materials on hand. He expressed the opinion that more than one hundred bombs could have been manufactured from the contents of the thirty-five bottles and phials. It was possible that such chemicals and acids as taken in the raid may have been used in the preparation of the bombs sent through the mails last May, Inspector Eagan said.

One thing was certain, according to the bomb experts, that the bottles had not been standing idle for any length of time. Some of them were stained on the sides when the contents were spilled. Further reason for this belief was given by the fact that none of the bottles or phials was more than half filled.

The chemist's scales found in the raid were of an expensive make and of the type used only by experienced men. The name of the maker was stamped on them, and the police have hopes of obtaining a clue from him leading to the arrest of the purchaser. The scales appear to be comparatively new.

Detective Cornelius Browne of the Bomb Squad, to whom credit is due for the accidental discovery of the secret chamber, was praised yesterday by his superiors. Browne, according to his fellow-members on the Bomb Squad, has been instrumental in obtaining many valuable clues in the search for bomb plotters.

HOWE DENIES CHARGES.

Says He Released No One Except on Orders from Washington.

Ex-Commissioner Howe said last night at his home at Yonkers:

"The statements made by Mr. Uhl at the Congressional inquiry to the effect that there were gambling and immorality on the island relate to charges which are three years old, which were investigated by Congress two years ago. It is a reverberation of the food contract fight of two years ago. Those charges were all disproved at the time. Since then the island has been used successfully as an internment camp for German sailors, a quarters for enemy aliens and a naval hospital. During this period, nothing of the kind suggested could occur, and there has been no suggestion of anything of the kind. The Chinese gambling case referred to is three years old, at least, and there is no foundation for it, even at that. Where you have a great many men in one dormitory, gambling cannot be entirely stopped.

"If it has been charged that I have released radicals or any one else held for deportation, the charges are entirely false. I had no power to release anybody and did not release anybody. All releases were made at Washington.

"Regarding the letter said to have been sent to me from Emma Goldman, I have no recollection of the subject at all. My understanding is that in that case the Department of Labor sent the man to Spain instead of France, which is a thing often done, and, in my opinion, perfectly proper. But, as far as I recollect, I took no part in the case whatever. The case, in which I was appealed to by Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, occurred three or four years ago and I have only very vague recollections of it. In the case of the men who were brought here from Seattle, a number were released by order of Federal Judge Hand, who found that they were not proper subjects for deportation under the law. As for the others, they were dealt with by the Department of Labor, and I had not the slightest jurisdiction over their cases. I have never released any one on bond or on parole except by orders from Washington.

"Are you a friend of Emma Goldman?"

"I have seen her only three or four times in my life. I don't remember seeing her at all, except at meetings at the People's Institute."

"As to the statement that radical literature was allowed to circulate on the island, it is true that The New York Call was allowed there and that they received publications from Seattle and elsewhere by mail. I never heard of any anarchist publications coming to the island. Their reading matter was looked over by a Department of Justice man down there, before it went to them.

"In regard to the men from Seattle, I will say that the men held for deportation said that they had not had a fair trial and asked for counsel. I allowed them to have lawyers."

INDICT LARKIN AND GITLOW.

Several Bills Against Others on Anarchy Charges Returned.

James Larkin, the Irish agitator, and ex-Assemblyman Benjamin Gitlow were indicted for criminal anarchy by the Extraordinary Grand Jury yesterday afternoon for their connection with The Revolutionary Age, a publication in which they printed the manifestos of the Communist Party, which they were accused of helping to draw up. They were arrested three weeks ago by the Lusk Committee in a series of raids on Communist Headquarters, and held by Magistrate McAdoo in bail of $15,000. They were recently released on bail.

The Grand Jury also returned indictments against several others accused of criminal anarchy. Bench warrants were issued for their arrest, but their names were not made known. Justice Weeks directed the Grand Jury to continue the Red investigation, and said:

"Consideration of further matters of criminal anarchy, I assume, will be in charge of Mr. Rorke, and from my information the Grand Jury will be well satisfied with this. I know that the indictments are handed up after very careful consideration."

PETERS MOVES TO LINK FORCES FIGHTING REDS

Boston Mayor Calls Federal, State and City Officials to Meet for Co-ordination.

BOSTON, Nov. 26.—Mayor Peters issued a call today for a conference next Monday of officers and agencies engaged in combating anti-Government radicalism, with the view of co-ordinating the forces on the side of law and order for an intensive drive against the radicals. Representatives from the Federal Department of Justice, the State police, the Boston police, the Intelligence Bureaus of the Army and Navy, the State Adjutant General's office, and the Bureau of Immigration will attend.

In discussing the need for co-ordination of effort, Mayor Peters said:

"Federal authorities are not 'co-operating with the State and local police, and when the Army and Navy get anything they send it off to Washington, where it lies for a week or ten days and is stale when it gets back here."

GERMAN ADMITS MURDER.

Shot Ohio Dentist Because of His Patriotic Activities.

NORWALK, Ohio, Nov. 26.—Charles Rehfield today confessed the murder of Dr. Horace A. Benson, a prominent dentist, according to the police, saying he shot Benson with a dum dum bullet through a basement window while the dentist was attending to his furnace.

Rehfield is also said to have admitted making a previous attempt to kill Benson Friday night and that he had planned "to get" Dr. Carl Schneerer, a physician, because both had been prominent in fighting pro-German propaganda during the war, Rehfield having been interned for some time because of his alleged seditious utterances and actions.

Rehfield had dum dum bullets and a rifle when he was arrested. "I could have killed the posse, too, if I had had time," he is alleged to have told the Sheriff.

SEIZE 7 AS RED AGITATORS.

Federal Agents Arrest Leaders in West Virginia.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Nov. 26.—Seven persons, alleged to be radical leaders, were today arrested by agents of the Department of Justice at Wendel, a mining settlement in Taylor County, near here. Large quantities of literature, said to be revolutionary, were seized.

The Government agents, who went to Wendel from Fairmont in a special train, were still at work this afternoon in a search which, it was said, would include every home in the village.

Wendel has been known in northern West Virginia as a centre of radicalism.

ARREST 2 VIRGINIA REDS.

R. V. Goldblatt and H. Smith Are Held in $10,000 Bail at Portsmouth.

PORTSMOUTH, Va., Nov. 26.—Federal officers today raided what they said were I. W. W. headquarters here and arrested R. V. Goldblatt and H. Smith, who were held in $10,000 bail. A quantity of communist literature and books containing names of persons contributing to the organization were seized.

Goldblatt told the officers the organization was purely a fraternal one.

Herbert Du Puy Operated On Again.

Herbert Du Puy, late Chairman of the Crucible Steel Company, who recently underwent a serious surgical operation at the French Hospital, was operated on there again yesterday by Dr. Charles H. Peck of 30 West Fiftieth Street. It was said that Mr. Du Puy's condition is regarded at the hospital as encouraging.

CARRANZA WON'T INTERFERE

sum demanded to the Judge. Jenkins declined to use this right notwithstanding he has been invited a number of times. The Judge had named the sum of 1,000 pesos.

"Jenkins cannot be called the victim of difficulties which he personally causes. On the other hand he has been shown all attention and given all privileges warranted by the conditions.

"It being found then that he was submitted to proceedings in which are used all legal rights, under the jurisdiction of a Judge, whose proceedings are not secret, but are continually watched by the opinion of the public, which is interested that the truth shall be established, the Government of Mexico sees that in this case it cannot grant the demand for liberation as contained in the note. It has for this strong reasons, based upon the rights of man and considerations of a constitutional character.

"In the first place I believe that no Government can make a diplomatic representation for one of its citizens in a foreign country except in a case of miscarriage of justice or an unjust sentence, which under international law is a case of miscarriage of justice. Invariably they have observed the practice of waiting until the courts which have the cases of foreigners have pronounced sentence which being notoriously unjust would be the only one that could be the basis of representations.

"Arguing from a constitutional viewpoint our political constitution establishes the fundamental principle of separating the rights of the Executive Department and those of the Judicial Department. Moreover, the autonomy of the States is guaranteed under our charter and it is part of the construction of the Federation Mexican republic that the executive power cannot interfere in such cases as that of Jenkins, which corresponds properly and exclusively to authorities of the State of Puebla. This is the reason why the executive cannot order the judge who has charge of the case to place Jenkins at liberty, as this official would with all right decline to obey in case that was ordered. The executive would be unfaithful to the duty of all government which he always has tried to observe, that is, respect for the laws of the country to make them respected.

"This conduct in the opinion of the Mexican Government cannot affect the friendly relations, which exist between Mexico and the United States, especially when treating a case so simple, in which, by the observance of a simple legal demand Jenkins will be liberated. It never can be a motive of friction between two countries in which the laws of each one are applied equally to foreigner and native. In the United States, on several occasions, Mexican consuls have suffered imprisonment for some acts on the opinion of the authorities of the country. The Mexican Government even though when it thought imprisonment was unjustified, never has shown the slightest indication of attempt to influence so that the laws of the United States should not be applied in each case as its custom invariably has been to respect foreign laws and not pretend that Mexicans in foreign countries may use the name of Mexican as a title of privilege or exemption.

"Neither in the United States nor in Mexico can a citizen on trial be released by order of the executive. It would be strange if in Mexico an American citizen had more rights than he enjoys in his own country or more than a Mexican in his own country.

"The Government of Mexico cannot concede to American citizens more rights than Mexicans enjoy in the United States.

"The Government of the United States seems to be convinced of the absolute innocence of Jenkins, although the Mexican Government is now investigating this case without pretending to maintain that Jenkins is guilty.

"It limits itself to submitting anterior considerations to the United States, expecting that the Department of State will suspend opinion until the courts pronounce their decision with the assurance that on the part of the Government officials there does not exist a purpose to cause difficulties or to persecute Mr. Jenkins, but only a true desire to proceed with justice.

"HILARIO MEDINA,
"Sub-Secretary of Foreign Relations."

Washington Waited All Day.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Up to a late hour tonight no sign of an answer to the note to Mexico had reached the State Department.

It was evident that the delay of the Mexican Government in making its answer had served to increase the dissatisfaction in official circles, and the advisability of sending a second note was understood to be under consideration. Having failed this morning to hear from Carranza, the State Department issued this announcement:

"The Department has not yet received the answer of the Mexican Government in the case of Consular Agent Jenkins. A dispatch from Mexico City announces that the Mexican Senate, at an executive session, Nov. 24, decided to ask President Carranza for full information on the Jenkins case. The Mexico City press quoted the Sub-Secretary of Foreign Affairs of Mexico as saying that public opinion in the United States is being excited by certain newspapers, but that the serious newspapers are treating the subject calmly and carefully, that the Mexican authorities are continuing their investigations in Puebla and the Mexican Foreign Office is receiving reports constantly for use in preparation of its reply to the American note which, according to the press, was expected to be handed to the American Embassy at Mexico City Nov. 25."

high during the trial, and, according to reports reaching here, Federal officials feared attempts would be made to rescue Angeles and his followers.

Heavily armed guards surrounded the buildings and were placed about the theatre and on the stage.

At times persons in the auditorium halted the proceedings with pleas for clemency. Many hundred women were present and from among these a coterie of social leaders, headed by Mrs. Revilla, Mrs. Galvan, and Miss Ignacia Ramirez, several times interrupted the court to plead for Angeles. Many pleas for clemency also were sent to President Carranza at Mexico City.

All Efforts Fail to Save Him.

A delegation of French citizens, residents of El Paso, Texas, waited upon the court and presented a petition for clemency because of his many services to France and the Allies during the world war, in recognition of which he had been made Chevalier of the Legion of Honor. The petition had first been made to the Second Criminal Court, but was overruled, the court declaring it had no jurisdiction because the offense alleged against Angeles had been committed against the commanding military officer of the district.

Attorneys for Angeles yesterday tried desperately to save him. They appealed to the Federal court at Juarez, Mexico, and to the Supreme Court at Mexico City. They tried to change the proceeding on a writ of amparo, similar to habeas corpus proceedings in the United States, but differing in that while proceedings are stayed the defendants must remain in jail pending decision on the amparo appeal.

This action led court officials at Juarez to announce the trial had been completed. Appeal of the French residents also went to Mexico City.

An answer to these petitions was received late on Tuesday evening from Mexico City saying the Supreme Court was in recess, and, therefore, the petition should be filed with either the District Court, the County Court, or the court-martial itself. The District Judge at Juarez, according to Chihahua advices received today, also refused to act. The County Court answered likewise.

Thus the courts were closed to the accused men, and the only avenue of legal escape was by action of President Carranza. Petitions were forwarded to Mexico City by telegraph from Chihuahua by the French colony there, by other foreigners, and many Mexicans. Many hundreds of names were signed to the petitions.

A delegation of citizens arrived from Parral to intercede for General Angeles. It was composed entirely of prominent citizens who at different times had been saved from death at the hands of Francisco Villa or his followers by General Angeles. They were too late to be heard by the court.

Several students from the military colleges of Chapultepec, the West Point of Mexico, from which General Angeles was graduated, were permitted to have a confidential talk with him. The former students went to the military college while Angeles was assigned there as an instructor. When they were ushered into the prison room where their former professor was under guard they surrounded him and, holding him close in their arms, they wept for several minutes, too overcome with grief to talk. When they left the General's eyes were still wet with tears.

At 9:45 P. M. the court closed, and one hour later the judge announced the verdict as follows:

"General Felipe Angeles, you have been found guilty of rebellion, and are condemned to death.

"Major Ernesto Encisco de Arce, you have been found guilty of rebellion, not including the charge of desertion against you; you have been condemned to death, but your sentence is hereby commuted to twenty years' imprisonment.

"Antonio R. Trillo, you have been found guilty of rebellion, not including the charge of desertion against you; you are sentenced to serve six years and eight months."

The prisoners then, in accord with the findings of the court-martial, were delivered to the military commander to carry out the sentences.

The outcome before dawn proved the petitions for clemency unavailing.

Senora Angeles Very Ill.

Señora Felipe Angeles, wife of the Mexican revolutionary leader, is gravely ill at the home of friends here and has not been notified of his execution. Friends with whom she is stopping stated that she was in a very precarious condition, and they feared to give her the news at this time.

FEAR REIGN OF TERROR BY VILLA IN REVENGE

Border Americans Expect Ruthless War Now—Many Friends Mourn Angeles.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Nov. 26.—The execution at Chihuahua this morning of General Felipe Angeles will, in the opinion of many well-informed border citizens, probably result in a campaign of terrorism on the part of Francisco Villa and his followers.

When Angeles joined Villa in November, 1913, he insisted that Villa should stop the wholesale executions that had previously marked the operations of the Chihuahua chieftain. Villa consented and since then the rules of war, so far as they protect prisoners and civilians, have to a certain extent, been observed by Villa. Now, that the restraining hand of Angeles is removed, it is the opinion of a great many persons, some of them in official position, that Villa will again become the ruthless leader he was before.

Angeles was without question, so far as the border Americans are concerned, the most popular Mexican in Northern Mexico.

Expressions of deep regret at his tragic end were heard on all sides today. Army officers, rangers, and civilians who had known him eulogized Angeles as a Mexican who had been sincerely pro-American and pro-Ally at all times. For a long time he lived in El Paso, where he numbered his friends by the hundreds. From what these friends of the dead Mexican said today it would appear that nothing Carranza has ever done will lose him more friends than the execution of Angeles.

Reports tonight from Chihuahua would also seem to indicate that a large part of the population of that great Northern State was incensed as a result of what happened in Chihuahua this morning. The people did not look upon Angeles as a rebel or a bandit, but as a high-minded, highly loyal Mexican who believed that the salvation of his country depended upon its rescue from the Carranzistas.

Federal officials are trying to get a complete stenographic report of Angeles's last address to the Carranzista officers who comprised the court-martial.

This speech required three hours in its delivery, and is said to have been a fervent plea to his countrymen to exert themselves to restore law and order in the country, rather than a plea by Angeles for his own life. On several occasions Angeles referred to the United States as a great country whose people had the welfare of Mexico at heart.

"Felipe Angeles," said Judge D. M. Jackson, one of El Paso's leading citizens and a former attorney for the dead Mexican officer, "met death just as we, his friends, knew he would do when the time came. I want to go on record as saying that he was the finest man in Northern Mexico, a soldier and a gentleman, who was so sincerely pro-American that he was almost a real American."

"I don't know when I felt so deeply about anything as I do about the death of Angeles," said Captain William M. Hanson, the commanding officer of the Border Rangers.

GOLDMAN WROTE 'DEAR FRED HOWE'

berg, who is to be deported to France, and, as you can readily understand, the trenches or the battlefield, unless he can furnish a bond of $1,000. As it happens, he is not a New Yorker and it is therefore impossible to get any one to go his bond, although I have tried very hard. Yet it is a terrible thing that, just because he is poor and friendless, he should be turned over to what means sure death.

The man has been recommended to us by Matthew A. Schmidt and David Kaplan, of whom you have heard from Lincoln Steffens, the two men who are on trial in Los Angeles for their lives. It would seem almost comical to take us a recommendation as valid, but I know you are big enough to understand that, if men of principle, like Schmidt and Kaplan, recommend some one, he must have something in his favor.

They met Joseph Goldberg in the county jail of Los Angeles, a poor victim of unscrupulous politicians. He had the choice of becoming an informer, or where he is now. Because he refused to squeal, our friends in Los Angeles thought there must be something to him, and from what Baginsky tells me, who has visited him often, Goldberg seems to be a decent chap.

I don't know what you can do, but I hope you can do something. I know you will, if there is a possibility, to save that poor boy from the horrors of war. Please look into the matter, and anything that you can do in his behalf I will appreciate as a great favor.

I hear about you a great deal, even though you are among the high muck-a-mucks to Americanize America. I was rather surprised to find your name there, but one in your position, I suppose, must participate in a lot of foolish things. I hope, however, that your fine spirit and good taste will not be carried away by cheap nationalism, which is raising its sinister head in America today. I hope you and Marie have been well. Please remember me very kindly to her. I leave for a two weeks' tour tomorrow, which I will take as far as St. Louis and back.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

Mr. Uhl, who was the assistant under Mr. Howe, and is now Acting Commissioner, said that Emma Goldman had visited the island while Mr. Howe was there, and had interviewed comrades awaiting deportation. Many other letters to Mr. Howe, asking for the exercise of his good offices in behalf of certain Reds, were found by the committee in the files on Ellis Island. According to an official of the island, who talked outside of the committee room, Commissioner Howe on his infrequent visits to his office spent much of his time with radicals who called there in behalf of their friends.

Elizabeth Gurley Flynn Writes.

A frequent visitor, it was said, was Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, who intervened, the correspondence showed, to save from deportation an agitator who had been a power within the I. W. W. ranks during the mine strike in 1916. This letter was as follows:

Duluth, Minn., July 24, 1916.

Dear Mr. Howe:

I write to call your attention to the case of Andreytchine, who is being taken to New York City for confinement on Ellis Island subject to a decision from Commissioner Wilson on his deportation. I don't know whether you can do anything more than take a friendly interest in this young man, who is a remarkably bright Macedonian.

We have 16,000 iron ore miners out here just now, and Carlo Tresca and eleven others are in jail, charged with murder, a mere pretext. Andreytchine left his position and joined the strike. He developed into a remarkable, efficient leader and agitator, and then only were deportation proceedings commenced. He is a subject of Bulgaria, and if deported must either go to war or be shot.

Surely some action can be taken to prevent such a climax. I have written to Leonard Abbott, (head of the Ferrer School of Anarchy in New York,) Mrs. Cram, and others about it. I believe Simon Pollock and his League of Political Refugees could take it up. Our hands are full here and we can do no more. We have wired protests to Commissioner Wilson, &c. We rely on our liberal-spirited friends in New York and count you among the first to see that this young rebel is not sent to certain death. With all good wishes I am,

Yours cordially,

ELIZABETH GURLEY FLYNN.

Andreytchine was released on parole through the efforts of Mr. Howe. Another letter on this case was introduced showing the manner in which wires were operated in Washington to obtain the release of this friend of a friend of Commissioner Howe.

Lincoln Steffens Mentioned.

Among the letters in the files of Commissioner Howe was the following, which was sent by Dante A. Barton, Vice Chairman of the Committee on Industrial Relations, to Miss Helen Marot in this city, in care of The Masses, and turned over to Commissioner Howe:

Committee on Industrial Relations,

Aug. 4, 1916, Washington, D. C.

Dear Miss Helen:

Mr. Andreytchine came in this morning. Lincoln Steffens and George West came in shortly after, and we talked the whole thing over. I called up Louis Post, Assistant Secretary of Labor, who is now in charge with Secretary Wilson out of town.

Incidentally, also, the Solicitor of the department, J. B. Densmore, has rendered an opinion, as I told you in my brief letter of yesterday, that under the Turner decision Andreytchine's statement that he was an anarchist, no matter of what kind, Tolstoian or otherwise, makes it compulsory on the department to send him out of the country.

Of course, we know that it is a rotten legalistic, "rat-eyed incarnation of attorneyism" of the Solicitor, but whether Secretary Wilson will agree to that is a question. Possibly, altogether we can scare him into agreeing.

I think we can feel pretty sure that Fred Howe will continue his parole and thus give him and all of us a longer time in which to decide what to do and find out what Secretary Wilson's final order will most likely be, if put up to him, and to make such a stir throughout the country by our committee's fight and all the help we can get from the N. E. A. and other newspapers and the whole radical bunch.

DANTE A. BARTON.

Howe's Letter to Mrs. J. S. Cram.

Another letter in the correspondence on the Andreytchine case, which was produced at the hearing, was the following:

July 31, 1916.

Mrs. J. S. Cram,
Care of the Colony Club.

Dear Mrs. Cram: This is in answer to your telephone message in regard to George Andreytchine recently brought from Duluth, Minn., for deportation. I find the Department of Labor at Washington has consented to his request to go voluntarily to South America, but when delivered here he was without funds and was not held on Ellis Island. It was understood that he was to secure funds from parties interested in him, and that he would advise this office of the intended date of his departure, so the same might be verified. It is our understanding that, if he does not do this, he will be subject to arrest.

Sincerely,
FREDERIC C. HOWE,
Commissioner.

The records in the case showed that Secretary of Labor Wilson had not been "scared," as was suggested by friends of Andreytchine, into ordering his release, but that the deportation order had been canceled in the Secretary's absence by Solicitor J. B. Densmore, who became prominent later in connection with the Mooney case. The findings of his secret investigation at San Francisco were the basis for President Wilson's attempted intervention in behalf of Mooney. Attacks were made on Densmore in Congress later when he refused to appear and testify before the Grand Jury in San Francisco. The final disposition by Densmore of the Andreytchine case was an order making him a free man without reference to his trip to South America.

Anarchist Thanks Howe.

Afterward Andreytchine wrote this letter to Howe:

The Masses,
New York City, Aug. 22, 1916.

Frederic C. Howe, Ellis Island N. Y.

Dear Mr. Howe: I have no words to thank you with for your appreciation and support. As you probably have heard, the warrant for my deportation was cancelled last Saturday by Acting Secretary Densmore and I was turned loose to enjoy the prosperity and freedom of your dear country.

From now on I will do all I can to foster the coming of the golden age for which millions have fought and died.

I remain yours and ever,
For the emancipation of mankind,
GEORGE ANDREYTCHINE.

Mr. Howe wrote back a brief letter congratulating Andreytchine and suggesting that he call.

"Evidently," said Congressman J. E. Baker, Democrat, of California, "this man was then turned loose to continue teaching his doctrine of Bolshevism."

Congressman Siegel of New York brought out the fact that scores of Reds, picked up in other cities for deportation and taken to Ellis Island en route, had been turned loose here, on parole, in the custody of their counsel or on a nominal bond. While the correspondence mentions Howe as paroling Andreytchine, prior to the quashing of the whole proceeding against him, it was shown that the parole or release on bail was usually confirmed at Washington, on recommendation from the Commissioner at this port.

"Is there any warrant in law for releasing a man on parole or on bond?"

"I don't believe there is," said Mr. Uhl. "I have examined the law, and find no authority for it."

"I know that it is entirely illegal," said Congressman Siegel. "I had a great deal to do with the revision of the law in 1917, and there is not a word in it to justify such an occurrence."

Acting Commissioner Uhl said, in reply to questions, that it was true that Frederic C. Howe, while Commissioner, had permitted the free circulation of Mother Earth and all kinds of radical literature on the island.

"Was it the desire of your predecessor to make this a place for personal rule and personal government?"

"Pretty nearly so, yes sir."

"Wasn't this institution conducted in such a manner as to make it a gambling den and a disorderly resort?" asked Chairman Albert Johnson of the committee.

"I don't think I would be justified in saying that, but conditions here were very lax."

"Were not women, held here for deportation because of immoral character, allowed to go freely about the island?"

"They had a good deal of freedom here?"

"Didn't employes on this island gamble with immigrants who were held here and win money from them?" asked Congressman Siegel.

"I have heard that report, but I don't know whether it is a fact."

"Didn't the crew of a Chinese steamship lose $3,000 here gambling while detained on this island?"

"Yes. I believe that is a fact."

Ellis Island Report Suppressed.

When Congressman Siegel was asked afterward what had inspired these questions, he said:

"Oh, we learned a lot from the record of an investigation of conditions on the island made by the Labor Department. That investigation showed that gambling and immorality were rife, but the department suppressed the report, in order to avoid having a scandal.

"The Department of Labor is very largely responsible for the growth of the Red propaganda in this city because they have dumped about 500 of them here in the last two years instead of sending them abroad, or sending them to the parts of the country in which they were seized for deportation. If they had acted in 1917, the conditions, which were allowed to grow up in this city since the armistice would not have developed. It is due simply to a failure to enforce the law."

Congressman Siegel said that the cases of the Reds, which were appealed in 1917 and have not been decided since by the Department of Labor, seemed to have been held up through some disagreement between the Washington officials and those on Ellis Island.

Commissioner Howe, who resigned after his course had been criticised in Congress, will be called as a witness, Congressman Siegel said.

"This inquiry started," Mr. Siegel added, "when a movement got under way in the House of Representatives to tack a clause on an appropriation bill providing that no part of it should be paid to Howe. Some thought that this was not a good way of doing business, and so it was dropped.

"After I had made a speech on the subject in the House, calling for an investigation, Mr. Howe called at my office in this city, and asked what the trouble was. I told him that we were tired of complaints of the circulation of Red literature on the island and of his long absences from duty. He said that during his six months in Paris he had not drawn his salary as Commissioner, but had been paid from the contingent fund of the Secretary of State. I told him that this absence was but one thing in many. He told me that he was going to resign in a short time, because he had decided to give all his time to advocating the Plumb plan.

"One thing that we found was that, while it took months or years for the deportation of radicals the machinery works with remarkable speed in cases where good, honest people, who should be admitted, are ordered excluded under a rigid interpretation of the law."

Bianki An Avowed Anarchist.

The committee yesterday investigated the case of Peter Bianki, the leader of the hunger strikers on Ellis Island at present. He was rearrested in the recent raid on the Russian People's House after being released from Ellis Island on the recommendation of ex-Commissioner Howe pending his appeal. The record of his hearing at Ellis Island was obtained, in which he frankly explained that he was one of the number of radicals who had formed a definite plan to set up a proletariat dictatorship in this country, one group of Reds being organized to deal with the police and officials, while another seized the lands and property. This hearing was on Feb. 26 of this year, and shortly afterwards Bianki was freed on appeal on the recommendation of Mr. Howe.

The committeemen were amused in the case of John De Lucca, who was sent to Ellis Island from the Federal Prison at Fort Leavenworth as a "white slaver" and was subsequently released on his own recognisance and has not been heard of since. Howe suggested that the man should be released, saying that he had heard that Henry Ford would give employment to such men.

After their talk with Commissioner General Anthony J. Caminetti members of the committee stated positively that the policy of temporising with Reds was at an end and that their movement toward Russia and other countries would begin very shortly. Congressmen said that Mr. Caminetti was co-operating with the committee to the fullest extent, and that the responsibility for conditions on Ellis Island was not to be laid at his door because of the fact that he had no power over Howe and no way of enforcing his policy in immigration matters.

Hunger Strike Goes On.

The hunger strike at the island went on yesterday, sixty of the sixty-six Red prisoners having refrained from eating for a day and a half. The critical period of the strike, it is expected, will be tomorrow afternoon, when an elaborate turkey dinner is served on the island to all who will eat.

'LIBERALS' MEET IN ST. LOUIS

Propose to Save Country Both from Bolshevism and "Morganism."

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 26.—More than 200 new members were recruited to the ranks of the proposed new political party to be organized next month at a meeting held today. Percival Chubb, leader of the Ethical Society, presided, and the meeting was called at the request of the Committee of Forty-eight of New York.

The meeting did not resemble a political assemblage and there was no enthusiasm displayed among the 500 men and women present except when Howard F. Williams, assistant secretary of the Committee of Forty-eight, told that 93 per cent. of the answers to questionnaires recently sent out were opposed to the espionage law.

"There is no real leadership in America," Mr. Williams asserted. "We are a vast bewildered body of people. We are hysterical. We are more hysterical than the French or British. The people are not partisan, yet we are divided into partisan political groups. We want to get together as American citizens and discuss our own affairs.

"We are interested in the getting of money and of spending it. What we should seek in forming the new civilization is to do the minimum of work necessary to acquire the necessities and comforts of life, so that we will have ample time to cultivate and develop our minds and social conditions.

"The time has come for liberals to get together and save this country from Bolshevism on the one hand and Morganism on the other hand."

The party now has a membership of about 250,000, Mr. Williams said. He expects an attendance of about 700 at the organization meeting to be held on Dec. 9.

Laborite Wins By-Election.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—John Lawson, Laborite, has been elected to the House of Commons in the by-election in Chester-le-Street, Durham County. He polled 17,838 votes as against 5,313 cast for his National Democratic opponent, David Gilmour. The election was held on Nov. 13.

Corn meal, prepared in ways suitable to its qualities, is singularly good to eat.

It probably formed the chief food on which Daniel Boone, Henry Clay and Abraham Lincoln grew up.

Real Virginia Cornmeal Cakes are one of the griddle specialties at CHILDS.

BALTS A PROBLEM TO VICTORIOUS LETTS

By WALTER DURANTY.

swelled by an influx of German traders to whose efforts Riga undoubtedly owed its great prosperity. Before the war this magnificent city, whose parks, public buildings and private houses place it on a par with Stockholm or Copenhagen, had a population of nearly 750,000, now sunk to a little over 200,000. Practically all business, finance and industry was in Balt hands, and immensely rich Balt barons owned a greater part of the land, some of their estates running over 100,000 acres. Some of them had become citizens of Russia, others still owed allegiance to the Fatherland, but all united in oppressing and maintaining in virtual servitude the Lettish population as "hewers of wood and drawers of water."

During the great war there is no doubt whatever that the Balts as a party did their utmost to gain Courland for Germany. Openly when they dared and secretly always they were in collusion with Russia's enemy, and when the German troops entered Riga in 1917 they received from the Balts an enthusiastic welcome.

Fought as Germans Against Reds.

When later Bolshevism broke over Lettland the Balts formed a White Guard, called the Landswehr, and dressed in German uniforms and armed with German guns, to fight it. With the help of the German Iron Division they were successful early this Summer in recapturing Riga and the whole country from the Reds. Bitter reprisals followed, directed nominally against the Bolsheviki, but in point of fact Letts were slaughtered indiscriminately by the hundreds. In June, thanks to pressure by the allied commissioners, the Germans withdrew from Riga and a Lettish Government was set up in which, it was agreed, there should be three Balts and one Jewish member. However, only two Balts and no Jew actually found places in the Cabinet.

Meanwhile the Landswehr were in command of a British officer, Colonel Alexander. When Bermondt and von der Goltz attacked Riga it was feared that the Balts would join them. They did not do so, largely owing to the efforts of the allied representatives, and the Landswehr force, numbering some 5,000 men, were transferred, albeit rather unwillingly, to the Bolshevist front, where they still are.

There seems to be little doubt that though the Landswehr did not dare to bolt, or were restrained from bolting, to the enemy, many of their leaders were intriguing with the latter, and the Lettish military authorities now allege that they have discovered at Mitau documents compromising them seriously. The actual gist of the Balt situation appears to be that the party as a whole—it numbers about 4 per cent. of the total population, but this proportion is very much higher in Riga itself—is paying or may pay for the sins of two of its minority sections—first, the genuine Barons, confined to a comparatively few families formerly possessing immense power and influence, and continually intriguing, and, secondly, to a rather larger element which went out for Germany against Russia, Lettland, or any one else. The remainder, numbering perhaps two-thirds of the total Balt population, are, for the most part, inoffensive people, who are only too anxious to resume business, which is now practically in a state of stagnation.

Letts May Retaliate.

It is to be feared, however, that the Letts are not sufficiently advanced in the science of government to be able to make this distinction and to work in harmony with the very people who can do most to reduce the already great unemployment and bring about stability generally. What has occurred in Esthonia, where the Balts were expropriated by wholesale and without mercy or compensation, may be copied here, though I am in a position to state that the allied commissioners, the harmony of whose work is a model of co-operative action, are doing their utmost to urge wiser counsels. But Lettish exasperation is very great and not to be wondered at when one considers the atrocities the Germans committed and the continual aid and encouragement they received from the Balts.

The American Children's Relief Commissioner, Captain Orbison, told me today that Colonel Ballod's statements regarding atrocities were in nowise exaggerated, and showed me a photograph of the body of the unfortunate Lieutenant Figstenburg, who had been tortured to death on the Dvina bank. In six months of traveling through Lettland, in the course of which he successfully carried on the work of feeding children of all nationalities, no matter what fighting was in progress, Captain Orbison saw enough of the Germans and their Balt supporters to form the opinion that if the Balts as a body are now alarmed, as they undoubtedly are, their uneasiness is that of guilty consciences, and they have their leaders to thank for anything that may happen to them.

Orbison scouted the suggestion that anything in the nature of a massacre was to be feared; indeed, he expressed surprise at the Lettish moderation, considering the provocation they had received and the state of ignorance and servitude in which they have been kept until so lately. He added that his personal experience, which, by the nature of his work, has perhaps brought him closer to the facts than any other allied representative, justified Colonel Ballod's assertion that the Balts are not being punished by death or imprisonment unless they are found legally guilty.

Meanwhile it cannot be denied that the Baltic situation is not pleasant, coupled as it is with rumors of pogroms and the imminent recrudescence of Bolshevism. These rumors, of course, are absurd, but show the anxious state of public feeling.

ESTHONIANS REPEL BOLSHEVIST ATTACKS

Moscow Soviet Claims Capture of Ten Towns from Denikin's Southern Army.

REVAL, Nov. 25.—Demands by the Esthonian Government that the Northwestern Russian Government cease activities within the boundaries of Esthonia have been acceded to, according to information in official circles here.

Bolshevist forces continue their attacks against the Esthonians in the direction of Narva, using heavy forces in the fighting, which is very severe. New Bolshevist regiments are constantly being sent against Esthonian positions, but the Esthonian morale is said to be good and, being in fortified positions, their losses have been small compared with those suffered by the Reds.

Bolshevist peace agitation is reported not to be influencing the rank and file of the Esthonian Army.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—General Denikin's army in Southern Russia is retreating, the Bolsheviki having captured ten towns in three days, according to a wireless dispatch received here from Moscow. Bolshevist troops are still advancing and are entering Ukraine, where they intend to stay, the dispatch says.

Admiral Kolchak's forces in Central Siberia are retiring rapidly, according to the dispatch, and the Reds have reached a point eighty-seven miles east of Omsk.

Another Moscow wireless message reports a speech by Tom Paine, characterized as "the representative of the American Bolsheviki," delivered before the Moscow Soviet, in which Paine reported the "growth of influence" of the Communist Party in the United States. Paine told the Soviet, says the message, that the American Government found difficulty in supplying Admiral Kolchak with munitions because of the opposition of the workers.

CITY READY TO SHARE REAL THANKSGIVING

From Private Feasts to Dinners for Derelicts, the Festival Spirit Will Prevail.

SERVICES IN CHURCHES

Salvation Army to Conduct "Raid" —Wounded Soldiers Not Forgotten Big Meal for Charity Inmates.

Although the price of turkeys is sky high, sugar scarce and precious, and only a few will escape the regulations of wartime prohibition, New York City is going to try to enjoy a real old-fashioned Thanksgiving festival today. The poor and needy in the city, the men and women in the correctional institutions, as well as the soldiers and sailors here and the general mass of citizens will revel just as if there were no such thing as the high cost of living, the coal strike, or the differences of opinion regarding the League of Nations and the Peace Treaty.

Last year's celebration of the great Fall festival of the Pilgrims was perhaps a little more noisy and strenuous than the present occasion will be. The nation was then just out of a terrible war. But then most homes numbered one or two members missing, either in camps at home or cantonments abroad, while this November sees families reunited.

There will be no one outstanding feature of the day's festivities. The churches will hold services as usual, returning thanks for blessings received throughout the year. The city's charitable institutions and welfare organizations, while not specializing as at Christmas in merry feasts, will see to it, so far as in their power lies, that no man, woman or child in New York goes hungry today.

At the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, there will be a service at 11 o'clock this morning. Services will be held at the same hour at Trinity Church and St. Patrick's Cathedral. St. Patrick's on Mott Street, the Marble Collegiate Church and the Five Points Mission on Madison Avenue will also hold services.

Salvation Army to Feed Derelicts.

The Salvation Army does not celebrate Thanksgiving as it does Christmas, but it was said at headquarters last night that the hungry would be fed at the various "Army" institutions around the city.

Colonel William McIntyre, provincial officer of the Salvation Army in charge of all work in New York City, will supervise this afternoon the army's annual round-up of drunkards, drug addicts, and other human derelicts. Fifth Avenue buses will tour the Bowery, Battery, and Hell's Kitchen at dusk in order to gather in the men and women whom drink has mastered. In past years upward of 1,000 men and women have been gathered into the Salvation Army Headquarters, on West Fourteenth Street, as a result of the Thanksgiving "raids."

Asked if nation-wide prohibition would not bring down the number of the rescued, Colonel McIntyre answered in the negative. "Prohibition may be here, but our people know where to go to find the boozers, just the same," he said. "Anyway, we'll find plenty with booze appetites, even if there aren't so many drunks in sight."

The wounded soldiers at Fox Hills have been remembered, and the day for them will be made as happy as can be possible where the men are away from home. From all over the State baskets of good things to eat have been pouring in at the hospital, and they will be distributed today. This morning a large party of men will be guests of the National League for Women's Service for an all day dinner and entertainment at the New York Athletic Club. The rest will not find it unpleasant to remain in the hospital on Staten Island.

Dinner for Charity Inmates.

The Department of Correction has provided for about 4,000 men and women housed in charitable institutions to enjoy a dinner with less expensive chicken substituted for turkey, but with cranberries, mince pies, and all the rest of the traditional feast present. On Blackwell's Island B. F. Keith's Troubadours will give a special entertainment on a stage improvised in the chapel of the island. The show will be staged there in the morning, after which the inmates will sit down to their Thanksgiving dinner.

At the Bowery Mission there will be an entertainment, described as a "show given by home talent." This will be staged in the afternoon after which will come a dinner served for several hundred.

Families of soldiers who died in France will not be forgotten during the day. At the People's Hospital, Julian Goldman, President of the Downtown Chamber of Commerce, will distribute 200 baskets of delicacies of all sorts to ex-service men who will deliver them to the fathers and mothers, or the wives and children of comrades who fell in battle.

The Ancient Harvest Festival, the celebration of gratitude for bountiful crops which corresponds in English Rural Communities to the American Feast today, was celebrated yesterday by a service in St. Paul's chapel in connection with a Thanksgiving Eve Service. The Rev. Joseph P. McComas, Vicar of the chapel, conducted the services, emphasizing in his address the bonds of friendship between this nation and Great Britain.

GIVE THEIR THANKS TO FRANCE IN PARIS

HEAR AMBASSADOR WALLACE

If All Accept the Gospel of Work, the World Will Be Saved, He Says.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—Three hundred Americans celebrated Thanksgiving this evening by dining together at the Hotel Quai d'Orsay, some of their distinguished French friends joining them. Alexandre Millerand, Governor of Alsace, had accepted an invitation to represent the French Government, but as he was detained in Strasbourg, Louis Barthou, former Premier, spoke in his stead. M. Barthou expressed warmly France's appreciation of America's intimate friendship. A detachment of troopers of the Republican Guard, in dress uniform and with drawn sabres, was stationed behind the guest tables. Dr. Ernest H. Lines, President of the American Club of Paris introduced the speakers.

Hugh C. Wallace, the American Ambassador, after alluding to his thankfulness for the progress of President Wilson toward recovery, said:

"To my friends of France I would recall that after the battle of Salamis, which saved the civilization of the West from an eastern attack, the Commanders of the Greeks voted to choose from their number him who had most contributed to the victory. Each Commander apparently voted for himself, as is the wont of human nature, but all voted for Themistocles. While perhaps each of the allied and associated powers might feel constrained to say a word in behalf of itself, they would, after the first and second Marne battles, acclaim France, just as the Greek Generals acclaimed Themistocles. France did not want war. She withdrew her troops ten kilometers from the frontier in order to prevent a border incident, but when an implacable enemy forced her in self-defense to draw the sword, she drew it without hesitation and offered herself a willing sacrifice. The sacrifice was tremendous, the victory overwhelming.

"We were grateful to France, which sustained the cause of liberty in the United States. The world is grateful to France, which has sustained the cause of liberty in the Old World and throughout the world. Truer is it today than ever before, and it has been recognized ever since Thomas Jefferson first said it—every man has two countries, his own and France; and in addressing you and congratulating you and thanking you I find it difficult not to address you as my fellow-countrymen."

Ambassador Wallace, in conclusion, said that the fruits of victory must be gathered by work. "If we all," he declared, "in our several ways accept the gospel of work, your world and my world will be saved, for today as never before our salvation is not only prayer, is not only faith—it is work."

George Gordon Battle will preside at the meeting, and with him on the committee are Dr. Hermann M. Biggs, State Health Commissioner; Dr. Felix Adler, Colonel Michael Friedsam, Cornelius Bliss, Dr. Royal S. Copeland, City Health Commissioner; Jesse I. Straus, Joseph P. ONE DEAD IN BROOKLYN FIRE

Policemen and Firemen Rescue Twenty-two Persons.

Twenty-two persons, most of them children, were rescued by policemen and firemen at two tenement house fires in Brooklyn yesterday.

Mrs. Catherine Berick, 70 years old, was burned to death in the basement of a three-story frame dwelling at 89 Montor Street before firemen could reach her.

Patrolman Frank Centner of the Herbert Street Station, rescued four persons from the top floor before the firemen arrived. He saw Harry Ward, his wife, and two small children, at a window on the third floor. Escape by the stairway was cut off. Calling to them to remain where they were, Centner ran into an adjoining house, made his way to the roof, and swung to the burning house on a rainpipe. He then assisted the Wards to safety, one by one.

Firemen and police rescued three other families from a burning house at 200 North Tenth Street. Eighteen persons were carried from the building, including Mrs. Lillie Tosarno and her eight children. The property loss was about $25,000.

EXPECTS GERMANS TO RETURN TODAY

Paris Suspects Their Intention Had Been to Delay Peace.

BERLIN IS CONCILIATORY

Hint from German Capital at a New Policy Intended to Win Over the Allies.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—Herr von Simson, the head of the German Protocol Commission, is expected to return to Paris tomorrow or next day, bringing a reply to the Supreme Council's demand for an explanation of Germany's delay in putting into effect the Peace Treaty. There is no definite opinion among the Allied diplomats as to what move Germany is about to make.

Great interest was shown in a dispatch from Berlin today, which declared that Germany would not recognize treaty commissions without American membership, and therefore would do her best to hold up the formal ratification of the treaty as long as America had not ratified it.

There is one theory that Germany will flatly refuse to sign the protocol until the question of payment for the Scapa Flow fleet has been decided by the German National Assembly. No one knows how long this will take, and in the meantime the treaty will probably come again before the American Senate.

This is only the guess of some of the diplomats here. There are others who look at the matter from another angle. They say that, while it is true that Germany would like to have Americans on the Reparation Commission, she would also be in a position to gain an advantage if the Senate finally rejected the treaty and then declared a state of peace between the United States and Germany.

As these diplomats explain the situation, Germany would then be in a position to resume trade relations with the United States, and every time the Reparation Commission took action affecting German-American business Berlin could use the opportunity to foment discord between America and her late allies, and in this discord would seek to be the gainer.

But all these predictions are guesses. Frankly, the diplomats do not know what Germany is planning to do. They hope to learn this week.

The eyes of diplomats here are turned to Washington and the prospects of a compromise between the Administration forces and the Republicans. While there is a goo deal of talk around Paris to the effect that the Allies would rather have the treaty ratified with all the Lodge reservations than not ratified at all, it appears fairly certain that England will not take action in accordance with the preamble requiring the acceptance of the reservations by three of the allied powers as long as the reservations stand as they are. Certainly Japan is not to be expected to agree to the Shantung reservation; and thus it would appear a difficult undertaking to get three great allied powers to accept them.

Frank L. Polk, head of the American Peace Delegation, has returned from London. He says the American delegation will leave Paris on the evening of Dec. 5 on its war home.

Hint of Conciliation from Berlin.

BERLIN, Nov. 25 (Associated Press).—According to the Berliner Zeitung Herr von Simson, who went to Paris as head of the mission in connection with the protocol to be signed prior to formal promulgation of the Peace Treaty, will not return to the French capital. Baron Kurt von Lersner, the chief representative of Germany in France, has received fresh instructions which will lead to the resumption of the interrupted negotiations, the newspaper says.

The new instructions, the Zeitung adds, are calculated to prove to the Entente that the German Government sincerely desires to fulfill its obligations.

A rumor that the German Government, fearing trouble over the stern note on the question of German prisoners written to the protocol mission at Versailles by Premier Clemenceau, held up the note for ten days, is denied by the Tageblatt today. The newspaper says it learns that this note was not handed to Herr von Simson, head of the German mission, until after his second conference with Paul Dutasta, Secretary of the Peace Conference, after which the German plenipotentiary and his party immediately left Paris, not having any instructions as to a final determination of the question of prisoners.

With reference to the note the Tageblatt says that once more Premier Clemenceau uses his repellant tone, "charged with unquenchable hate." The article concludes with speculation as to whether the note indicates that the German prisoners will be returned after the formal ratification of the treaty, or whether it is intended to hold them indefinitely.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—Any delay which may eventually be found necessary in the exchange of ratifications required to put the German Peace Treaty into effect will not change the plans of the American peace delegation, Frank L. Polk and the other American delegates will leave Paris on the evening of Dec. 5 and will sail from Brest Dec. 6. Only two experts will be left here for the purpose of completing the work in hand.

The subsequent participation by Americans in the work of the Peace Conference, according to the view here, will probably be extremely limited unless there are indications early in the December session of the Senate that a satisfactory ratification of the treaty is in sight.

MUNICH, Nov. 26.—According to official information received here the Holy See has taken steps to ask France that the repatriation of the German prisoners shall take place between the present time and Christmas.

GERMAN OPERA IS DROPPED.

Astoria Performance Fails to Start When Ex-Service Men Rally.

The North German Society of Queens and the Plattdeutsche Verein of Long Island City did not give the operetta, "Der Weisse Hirsch," in Hellingers Hall, Astoria, last evening. Their reasons for not doing so were two lawyers with a strong disinclination to hearing German music and 150 members of the Astoria American Legion Post, who gathered outside the hall under the leadership of the Rev. Herman L. Lonsdale, rector of St. George's Episcopal Church. Just before the time for the curtain to go up and while the audience waited, it was decided not to give the performance.

When it became known yesterday that the societies were to give the operetta in German, former District Attorney Ira L. Darrin and Charles A. Wood, a lawyer, went before Supreme Court Justice Isaac M. Kapper and asked for an injunction. The Justice expressed his sympathy and advised that an appeal be made to Police Commissioner Enright. This was done, with the result that a policeman was sent to tell the promoters of the enterprise to admit no one but members to the hall.

The news that the performance was to be held in defiance of public opinion aroused the former service men, and about the time for the curtain to go up they began to gather about the hall. News of this latest gathering traveled to the Astoria police station, and soon the police reserves began to gather in another spot in the vicinity of the hall.

There the matter rested while the former District Attorney and Mr. Wood went inside and asked for a conference with Daniel Ehntholt, Superintendent of the Bureau of Street Cleaning in Queens, who is President of both societies. They pointed out to him and other officers that not only were the men outside angry but they were further aroused by this line on the program: "In German Spirit and Heart We Are One." After an hour's conference it was decided not to hold the performance.

NEW ORLEANS WET BY COURT DECISION

Saloons Open When Federal Judge Grants an Injunction Against Volstead Law Enforcement.

HOLDS EMERGENCY IS OVER

President's Veto Regarded as a Declaration That Army and Navy Are Now Demobilized.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 26.—Holding the Wartime Prohibition act unconstitutional, Federal District Judge Foster today granted an injunction restraining Government officials from interfering with the sale by the Henry Leisor Liquor Company of bonded liquor held in warehouses here.

An hour after the injunction was granted many saloons in New Orleans resumed the sale of liquor and did a land-office business. The Federal District Attorney announced that if the Supreme Court held the wartime law valid those now selling liquor would be prosecuted.

Judge Foster, in granting the injunction, said:

"The act of Nov. 21, known as the Wartime Prohibition act, is certainly without effect now, as the provisions it required have been fulfilled. The emergency which it provided for has ceased to exist, and the President declared the army and navy demobilized in his veto of the Volstead Wartime Enforcement bill, which he sent to the House of Representatives Oct. 28, 1919. The war was formally at an end when Congress adjourned without rejecting the Peace Treaty."

WARHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Whether constitutional prohibition will operate to make American passenger lines "dry" has been referred to the legal department of the Shipping Board for a decision.

ASHBURN DEATH INQUEST.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., Nov. 26.—Coroner Phelan reserved decision this afternoon after an inquest on the death of Allan D. Ashburn, the Yale student, who died Monday from a fractured skull, following a collision in Darien of the automobile in which he was riding and a horse and wagon driven by Andrew Szeakel.

Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, owner and driver of the automobile, testified that the horse suddenly walked in front of the car and that he had not time to avoid hitting it. Szeakel asserted that the automobile hit the horse when the animal was on the right side of the street. The testimony of Sanford Adams, an eyewitness of the accident, corroborated Whitney.

LLOYD GEORGE OPEN TO 'DRY' ARGUMENTS

SKEPTICAL OF PROHIBITION

But He Expresses Satisfaction That the United States Is Making the Experiment.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Premier Lloyd George said today that he never had thought the introduction of prohibition in Great Britain possible, even during the war, but that he was watching the American experiment sympathetically, with a mind free from preconceived opinions.

The Premier's reply to a temperance deputation, to which he made this remark, is taken as foreshadowing legislation before Christmas in connection with the control of liquor.

The Premier did not give details of the intended temperance legislation, but indicated that it would be entirely experimental. The intention of the promised bill seems to be to replace the existing Liquor Control Board by a number of commissions, whose function will be to perpetuate the powers of the Control Board to make investigations and to advise Parliament with regard to further legislation, as well as to establish a scientific branch to watch the experiments proceeding not only in England but in other countries, notably the United States.

The Premier explained that the Government was aiming to proceed along lines of agreement rather than provoke hostility. Declaring his belief that a policy of prohibition could not succeed in England, the Premier said:

"The Americans have attempted very drastic means of rooting out the drink evil. It is very important that we should not attempt to make up our minds whether it will succeed or fail. Don't let us watch the experiment with prejudiced eyes.

"This is a bold and extremely courageous experiment, which, even if it fails, will have revealed some other and better method of dealing with the problem. Therefore I am glad that it had been tried."

MAGYAR REDS ON TRIAL.

Commander of "Lenin Boys" Puts Blame on Bela Kun.

BUDAPEST, Nov. 24.—The trial of Communists charged with crimes during the Bela Kun dictatorship began today, Czerny, commander of the "Lenin Boys," being the first of 16,000 to be arraigned.

Czerny pleaded that he had only performed his duty. He denied many charges of executions, and recited several instances in which he claimed Bela Kun gave direct and explicit orders for murders.

As the Hungarian Bar Association refused to defend the accused, the court ordered lawyers present in the court room to defend them.

PUSSYFOOT JOHNSON WORSE

Physicians Now Have Little Hope of Saving His Injured Eye.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The condition of William E. Johnson, the American prohibition worker, who suffered a severe injury of the eye during the course of a "ragging" by medical students recently, is reported to be much worse.

There is little hope of saving the injured eye, it was said today.

ARMENIA ASKS RECOGNITION.

Delegation Says Aid of Our Government Is Needed in Food Crisis.

After a conference yesterday between the Armenian delegation to the United States and the Armenian Reconstruction Committee, the following statement was made public:

"Russian Armenia has had an independent democratic government since May, 1918. It has resisted the attacks of Turks, Tartars, and Georgians, but it cannot resist starvation unless American aid comes immediately.

"Tens of thousands have starved to death in Armenia since the armistice. More will face starvation this Winter without aid. There is enough food to last only a few weeks. The task of feeding these people is too great for relief organizations. Government aid is needed to make it possible for this nation to survive the Winter."

M. Kadjaznuni, ex-Premier of Armenia, and head of the delegation, declared that what Armenia is asking of the American Government can be summed up as follows:

Recognition of the Armenian Republic to give it financial credit; loans for food supplies, seeds and plows, which must go forward in a few weeks so that Spring planting may begin in right season; guaranteeing the use of the railroad through Georgia for transportation of needed supplies.

General Bagraduni, who was on Kerensky's staff, and General Andranik, known as the "Garibaldi of Armenia," took part in the conference.

GARRISON ATTACKS HYLAN AS AGITATOR

Says Mayor Is "Not Interested in Truth" in Handling Traction Situation.

BRIDGE LINE TO SUSPEND

Cars Over Queensboro Structure Threaten to Stop Dec. 15—30,000 Riders Affected.

Mayor Hylan is accused of being "not interested in the ascertainment or statement of the truth," and of treating the entire transit situation "on the basis of politics," in a statement issued last night by Lindley M. Garrison, receiver for the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company. Mr. Garrison infers that the Mayor, with others, is to blame for an impression that the B. R. T. was connected with the controversy over the Brooklyn City Railroad Company's effort to charge a double fare on its Flatbush Avenue line. The statement reads:

"The second-fare controversy in Brooklyn, with alleged attendant disorder on Flatbush Avenue, about which so much has appeared lately in the newspapers, is one relating to the Brooklyn City Railroad Company, which has no connection whatever with the B. R. T. system, since its severance therefrom, and over which the B. R. T. receiver has no jurisdiction whatever. Statements to the contrary tend to create and continue a baseless prejudice in respect of the entire traction situation. This situation must be dealt with properly and in an impartial and unprejudiced manner, if any useful solution is to be reached.

"No reply has been made to the erroneous statement made in this connection by the Mayor, because it is obvious that he is treating the entire situation on the basis of politics, and is not interested in the ascertainment or statement of the truth.

"The Brooklyn public, the newspapers—in fact all persons and parties interested—must realize that the proper solution of this vexed question must come from a sober, sane, and considerate study by those who will give impartial and unprejudiced consideration to it. This cannot be obtained if public opinion is inflamed senselessly, and if those who are engaged in that occupation receive the assistance of the newspapers and of good citizens whose real interests imperatively demand a proper settlement of this question.

"In respect of the fare controversy in question, I have no knowledge. But I wish to have it clearly understood by all persons interested in learning the truth, that it in no way concerns the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system or my duties as B. R. T. receiver."

Eight Trolley Employes Held.

While passengers on the Flatbush Avenue line continued to ride to the ends of their journeys yesterday for 5 cents, Magistrate Geismar, in the Flatbush Avenue Court, held eight company inspectors, charged with assaulting passengers while ejecting them at the Foster Avenue second fare point, in $100 bail each for Special Sessions, after the company's attorney had waived examination for them.

District Attorney Harry E. Lewis of Kings County told the court the company should have sought in the beginning a legal determination of the dispute. Instead of "seeking to settle the question by strong arm methods with the people in the streets." Complaints by company employes against three citizens were withdrawn and their cases were dismissed.

The New York and Queens County Railway Company notified the Public Service Commission yesterday that at midnight Dec. 15 it will discontinue operating its trolleys over the Queensboro Bridge. Its contract with the city expires at that time, and it will not renew the agreement, whereby it pays the city 5 cents for each round trip per car, unless the Board of Estimate allows it to charge an extra fare over the bridge.

The company says that since it made the contract, in 1906, it has paid the city at the rate of $20,000 a year, and that it has become impossible to operate in view of the increased cost of operation and maintenance. Thus far, it adds, the Estimate Board has been deaf to its appeals.

Unless some agreement is reached, about 30,000 persons who use the company's cars between Manhattan and Queens will have to find other means of transportation. In the case of some persons living in villages and towns along the right of way this will mean the payment of two fares.

Interborough Trying to Borrow.

Frank Hedley, general manager, and James L. Quackenbush, general counsel, of the Interborough explained yesterday, that the reiterated need of that company for from $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 by Jan. 1, if the company is to be kept out of the hands of a receiver, contemplated only the payment of its obligations to that date. Thereafter, it would continue to lose at the rate of $8,000,000 a year, judging by the estimated earnings. Mr. Hedley said efforts would be made to borrow the money, and that if the sum were assured, the company would continue under private management.

Asked about the "complexion" of the new Legislature in view of the probable introduction of another bill to empower the Public Service Commission to increase fares, Mr. Quackenbush said:

"So far we have only been dreaming about the legislators, and hoping for the best."

The prospect of a year of peace between the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company and its employes developed out of a meeting, Tuesday night, at which between 4,000 and 5,000 operatives who are members of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America ratified the new wage and hour agreement, which involves an increase in pay of 25 per cent.

DEMANDS SEVEN-CENT FARE.

New Jersey Company Again Asks for Abolishment of Zone System.

The Public Service Railway Company, in an application made yesterday to the Public Utility Commissioners of New Jersey at Newark, asked for the abrogation of the zone fare system and a return to the seven cent fare. Representatives of the company asserted that if the zone system was not abolished the company would be forced into bankruptcy.

Employes of the company also objected to the present system, which, they said, made the collection of fare difficult, and, in cases where motormen were obliged to collect fares, unsafe. The employes testified also that the zone system made for slower service.

Two applications for abolishing the zone system have already been rejected by the Utilities Board.

LAWRENCE CAR TIEUP ENDS; JITNEYS MUST GO

Trolley Company Agrees to Resume Service When Council Abolishes Competition.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Nov. 26.—This city will be without either trolley car or jitney service tomorrow, but the street railway service will be resumed on Friday morning. This arrangement resulted from a special session of the City Council tonight to consider the situation arising from the suspension of trolley service today by order of the public trustees of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway oCmpany on all lines here except two interurban routes.

The trustees took this action, they said, because jitney competition had resulted ina loss in operatin the lines. By action of the City Council tonight the jitneys were virtually legislated out of business.

The council passed an ordinance effective immediately and understood to be acceptable to the trustees, which provides that no jitney may be operated over the same or any part of a route traversed by a street railway line and that no jitney may operate o nany other route except with the express permission of the street railway trustees. In addition, bonds will be required of jitney operators to the amount of $5,000 for a car of eight passengers or less, and of $500 additional for every passenger in excess of eight.

The ordinance, it is understood, was drawn up at a conference in Boston today among the trustees and representatives of the city government and business interests of Lawrence. The trustees promised, according to Councilmen who attended the conference, to restore service on Friday morning if the ordinance was adopted, and also provide lower fares, effective Dec. 7, by selling sixteen tickets for $1. The present fare is 10 cents.

Jitney operators did not indicate whether they would fight the new ordinance but said they would furnish no service tomorrow.

FOG DELAYS FERRY BOATS.

Harbor's General Traffic Also Hampered by Bay's Mist Covering.

The Staten Island ferry service to the Battery and the traffic of the harbor generally was delayed yesterday morning for some hours by a dense fog which covered New York Bay. Steamships anchored at Quarantine had to wait until it lifted, and outbound vessels remained at their piers.

The Hamilton and Atlantic Avenue ferries, running from South Ferry to Brooklyn, did not suffer as much delay as the Staten Island service because the boats have been operating for so many years that the pilots say they can get to their slips by instinct. The Jersey City ferries were also operating on slightly delayed schedules. The fog had lifted before noon.

24 Below Zero in North Dakota.

GRAND FORKS, N. D., Nov. 26.—The lowest November temperature in fourteen years was registered here early this morning when the mercury sank to 24 degrees below zero, at the Government weather observation station at the State University. On Nov. 30, 1905, a minimum of 35 below zero was registered.

The Magazine of a Remade World

NO American writer of this generation has a finer feeling for the glories of his country's romantic life and achievement in the open than Stewart Edward White. His splendid novels "The Riverman," "The Blazed Trail" and "The New Dawn" recall to thousands of readers hours of delight in their reading that for two years they have wished might be repeated.

When Mr. White returned from service overseas, he wrote "The Killer," which begins in the December number of THE RED BOOK MAGAZINE—a serial in which is reflected all the magic mystery and romance of that West which still provides the brave tradition upon which the America of our present day is builded. A story of reckless daring in the wide places of the old West, its spirit links yesterday with today, for its hero and heroine might well have been the parents of a boy who fought on the fields of France.

THE RED BOOK MAGAZINE impresses itself upon every reader as the one magazine in which all that is best and truest in our modern life is reflected in fiction—the sole literary form which reaches the human heart. Every feature of the December number has been selected for a reason—that it best illuminates the impulses and achievements of real men and women in doing the things Destiny has given them to do. Real American life is truthfully reflected in the December number not only by Mr. White in "The Killer" but by—

Courtney Ryley Cooper in his thrilling story of the I. W. W. "T. N. T. Plus"

William Dudley Pelley in his heart-touching love story "They Called Her Old Mother Hubbard"

Forrest Crissey in his labor story of today "The Man Who Was There"

Peter Clark Macfarlane in his splendid story of the new West "The Pink Mule"

Paul Annixter in his powerful underworld story "Spike"

It is for all this that THE RED BOOK MAGAZINE has been awarded by an increasing number of thinking men and women in America each month its appellation—"The Magazine of a Remade World."

THANKSGIVING.

Our "wise and pious ancestors," as the Massachusetts Constitution says, who ordained Thanksgiving and Fast Day and, with the Massachusetts Constitution, the essential modern ideas of American policy, had, as a rule, mighty little reason for being thankful, in the material and ordinary sense. In the seventeenth century they were thankful, or said they were, because the Tawnies had not scalped them. Toward the end of that century they were thankful because the powers of darkness and the Horned Devil had been beaten, in spite of many visitations, and not without a certain number of hangings and one pressing to death. These things are not mentioned here with any intention of disrespect to the inventors of Thanksgiving. They had, as we have, the beliefs and opinions of their generation. To the men and women of two and three centuries hence, doubtless, many of our own settled creeds of thought and action will look as strange as theirs.

The main thing to remember in regard to these energetic and masterful lords of the thought of their day is that they lived amid the rudest conditions. They had to endure continuous privations. The poorest of their descendants is richer in material comfort, if less rich in spiritual hope. They were men and women who, saying the bitterest that can be said against them, lived hard, strong, brave, honorable lives, in a world wherein there wasn't much to be thankful for. These people, rather fasting than feasting, inured to thrift, to constant labor, to personal self-sacrifice, and to a steady service, civil and military, to the State, are still a model hard for us to follow.

The easy gormandising, the abundance of turkeys in the old time, the "turkey shoots," the good old not too ancient custom of "shaking for turkey," the pumpkin pies, the cranberries, the recent additions of celery, and what not—all the processes by which the Puritan Thanksgiving was reconciled with and became, in a way, a precursor of the Christmas which the New England patrons of Thanksgiving hated so much—shouldn't blind us to the fact that their Thanksgiving was a brave challenge to their actual life. Often, in a temporal and material way, they had small reason for public expression of thanks. Looking back on their dreary and honest history, the soft Campanian student might say that almost every Thanksgiving Day might just as well have been a Fast Day.

Some things, though, they always had to be thankful for: their public spirit, their civil and martial courage, their vital power to subserve all the purposes and be equal to all the emergencies of their common polity and life. It would be easy to spread out a thousand platitudes, showing what reasons, and they are great and many, for individual and national gratitude, the American people have this November. It will be enough for many of us to look back to the State where Thanksgiving began; to remember that in, perhaps, the most serious contest that our time has seen between American orderly freedom and the forces of exotic disorder, it was given to CALVIN COOLIDGE, Governor of Massachusetts; to EDWIN UPSON CURTIS, Police Commissioner of Boston; to Mayor ANDREW JOHNS PETERS of Boston, to defend and to vindicate triumphantly the essential American principle of obedience to the law. A couple of these men are Republicans. One of them is a Democrat. It is difficult to make an even division of three. On this great Puritan festival some of us will salute this year the symbol and the glory of Americanism, the same in the twentieth century as in the seventeenth. Let us eat and drink and be merry; but it was stout hearts, not well-lined stomachs, that ordained Thanksgiving. Wherever men and women of American feeling and thought are together today about the "board" that reminds them of the old home of some of the beginners of our civilization, there should be, and there will be, remembrance of and thanksgiving for the strong and good deeds of men of authority in Massachusetts. What there was thought and done will be done and thought everywhere, if the need comes, in the United States. So, if today we stuff ourselves with the "stuffing" and eat some imitation of the eighteenth-century pie, the good old ceremony, handed down from what forgotten guild or Worshipful Body of Aldermen, will not hide from us the fact that the virtues of the seventeenth century are still as strong among us as its digestion has had to be.

LETTS AND GERMANS.

The commanders of the Lettish troops pursuing the remains of the German Baltic army back to the Prussian frontier have received a wireless, purporting to come from the Interallied Military Mission sent to study the Baltic problem, ordering them to stop the pursuit. Since the Letts have a good chance to annihilate the German forces, what is described as "an exceedingly painful impression" has naturally been created. The Supreme Council has made no announcement of such an order, and it is possibly a forgery which may have been sent out by a German wireless station in the hope of saving the remnants of the Baltic crusaders. Some such suspicion may have occurred to the Letts, for they seem to be disregarding the order.

The mishandling of the Baltic situation by allied authorities gives some ground for suspicion that the message may have been genuine. At first the Allies actually encouraged the organization of General VON DER GOLTZ'S army on the ground that it protected the Baltic coast against the Bolsheviki. When it was discovered that the Germans on the Baltic were doing no fighting against the Bolsheviki, but were making much trouble for the new Baltic republics that were fighting the Bolsheviki on their other front, the Supreme Council began to order the Germans to come back. Note after note was sent; weeks passed, and the Germans did not move. The German Government ordered them to retire, but the order was not obeyed; it was perhaps never intended to be obeyed, and certainly obedience was not expected. VON DER GOLTZ was removed, but under a new commander the army stayed in Courland, and finally made the assault on Riga which led to disaster. All this while the Supreme Council had done nothing but write notes, and finally to appoint a commission to go to the Baltic and "supervise the evacuation" of the Germans. How the commission would have compelled this evacuation has never been explained. The Letts did compel it by hard fighting, and it would be both ungracious and unwise for the commission to interfere to prevent the Letts from completing their task.

The commission may fear that the Baltic republics will open the way to Bolshevism. This is by no means likely; even if it were, Bolshevism is, and always has been, a less serious menace than German military ambition. The germ of Bolshevism can do no great damage in a healthy body; but German imperialism, which built such great hopes on the new venture that began with the assault on Riga, can be beaten only by fighting. In this case the Letts did our fighting for us, and we ought to show a certain appreciation of their services; if Riga had fallen, we might by this time have a somewhat better understanding of the importance of the Baltic, but we should have bought our knowledge at too great a price.

COAL WAGE CALCULATIONS.

Whatever decision may be reached in the coal wage controversy, the only test by which its merit can be tried is the production of coal. There is no known method of compelling some hundreds of thousands of men to work against their wills. And it is not endurable that the country should go without an article of universal necessity because less than one-half of 1 per cent. of the population calculate the average wage payment differently from the officials. The coal wage should be sufficient to attract the unionists to the work, or to attract other workers in default of union labor. Such a mode of settlement averts compulsion of mine labor, or domination by mine labor, and would leave the least sense of grievance anywhere. Unionists could not fairly complain if the country supplied itself with coal at wages satisfactory to the workers. That is the manner in which the railway strike was settled in England. Volunteers appeared and demonstrated that the railway men were not indispensable to the working of the roads. The beginning of such a demonstration has been made in Kansas, where the miners refused to assist the Governor in producing coal, and he has asked for volunteers to relieve distress. In some places work has been resumed upon the basis of the general wage decision when reached. Director General HINES reports that the production of coal in successive weeks of the strike has been 26, 30, and 40 per cent. A few weeks more like that, and the coal strike would fade away like the steel strike, and the strikers would be unable to find fault with any one except their leaders.

The miners are so little distressed that they do not work full time when work is offered. In that they resemble other wage earners, who are so well paid that they indulge themselves in holidays and are asking for more pay when there is distress through deficiency of their production. Director General HINES has stated that the increase of railway wages has been followed by decreased efficiency and the need of employing more workers. Yet it is known that wage earners never before had such pay. In this city it was announced yesterday that a $10,000,000 building operation was abandoned because even unskilled labor was asking $7 a day at a time when the lack of housing distresses the community. No one would desire that labor should receive less than it earns, or should be exploited as "wage slaves," to use the expression of the agitators who thrive on unrest, and whose occupation is gone when the workers are satisfied with fair treatment. On the other hand, when wages are so high that they cease to stimulate production, it would seem that labor itself has shown that it is overpaid in the sense that it is paid more than the standard of living requires. When building laborers work three days a week because they feel no necessity of working longer they are "exploiting" the public. When strikers are able to sacrifice millions in wages they feel themselves absolved from the necessity of earning their living through reliance upon strike funds accumulated for the purpose of dominating their employers. Sooner or later all economic movements culminate beyond artificial stimulation. The wage rise is near culmination when it reaches the point where it is fed by the sacrifices of those more necessitous than the organized workers. The needs of the world are so great that the present level of prices may be maintained for a considerable future time if production is maintained in accordance with costs. But waning production and rising costs cannot long continue, whatever forces are marshaled in their support.

THE MAN AND THE MACHINE.

As regards the "sweating" of machines, Lord LEVERHULME'S advice is more apposite to his countrymen than to us in America. Until quite recent times it was the English practice to guard mechanical equipment with the utmost care and to abandon the underpaid workmen to the slums. "They say their prayers to their machinery," as an American manufacturer expressed it, "and give their men to the devil." As a result, the material equipment of the factory often became out of date while still capable of years of service. In America we early learned to "sweat" machinery, realizing that, by the time it was worn out, invention would have furnished a more efficient model. By thus lessening costs and increasing production we were able to pay wages which, according to English standards, were fabulous—and at the same time to compete with Great Britain in her own markets. Germany carried this idea to such limits that production outran even her expanding trade, a fact which had no small part in bringing on the war.

It is with regard to Lord LEVERHULME'S idea of "not sweating the man" that his dictum arrests attention. Is a six-hour day a thing to be striven for? The point of maximum efficiency differs widely in different trades, but wartime investigations in England showed that the average is nearer nine hours than eight. Lord LEVERHULME has been one of the most vigorous advocates of increased production as the prime requisite of our industrial salvation. For the present at least—a present which will necessarily linger out to a lengthy future—he must certainly advocate more machines rather than less labor. And is it certain that, from the merely selfish point of view of labor, it would pay to knock off daily with two hours of prime vitality still left in the workman? The homelier joys still rule the world, and most folk of all sorts would rather earn a third more for the comfort and education of their families. Even an eight-hour day leaves more leisure than most of mankind have ever possessed—or had the means to indulge.

Lord LEVERHULME'S explanation of his failure to introduce the six-hour day in his own factories stands in need of extension. The reason was that the labor unions "feared the result of increased production" and also that "existing factory laws" somehow stood in the way. Any necessary modification of the law should have been the merest matter of form. As to the labor unions, our confusion is worse confounded. Their dearest demand, next to an increased wage, is for shorter hours. Would they refuse so generous a concession merely because the working time of the machines was increased, by the two daily shifts, to twelve hours? Not if we may believe other reports from England. In wartime the British workman learned the truth long known to economists, and amply demonstrated in the United States and Germany, that the fundamental cause of the long and general advance in the returns of labor is increased production by machinery. Last Summer—at the time when, as Lord LEVERHULME tells us, his "plans" were "defeated"—it so happened that a commission of our National Civic Federation was in England studying the labor situation. In its report ANDREW PARKER NEVIN becomes lyric over the general enlightenment on this subject. In order to arrive at the famous "Treasury Agreement," by which the old restrictions put by the unions upon production were suspended during the war, the Government promised the unions that when peace came the restrictions would be revived. But they have not been revived. "Even trade unions," says Mr. NEVIN, "have come out of their "mesmerized trance to a realizing "sense of the importance of expanding and increasing production."

SAVED BY A SENATOR.

According to a sympathetic dispatch, Senator JAMES E. WATSON "broke down the barrier of secrecy" when he informed the members of the American Club of Indianapolis of a terrible danger overhanging this country. The Carranza Government, he divulged, is about to deliver Mexico into the hands of revolutionists who have been organized by the Russian Soviets. Mexicans and Russians are to attack these States and overthrow our Republic; but the aggression will not come from the frontiers, as might be supposed, but from a centre of disaffection in Colorado. The Senator tells us that in Colorado is to be set up the first Soviet government, allied with Mexico and Russia, and that an army of 60,000 men will set forth from Colorado to conquer the rest of America for Bolshevism. All this is to happen within three or four weeks, and if the Senator had not broken down the barrier of secrecy we might have been easy victims.

Mr. WATSON acted with the caution becoming one who possessed such a secret. He asked the newspapers to say nothing about it, presumably fearing that publication would impede the concentration of loyal troops; and as to the centre of the Soviet propaganda, he would say only that it was "a certain city." This is not very definite, but merely by saying that it comes from a city the Senator exculpates his home town of Rushville and leaves the other municipalities of America to point the accusing finger one at the other. No doubt the obnoxious city will be taken by storm as soon as Colorado has been pacified, but Heaven knows what might have happened if the Senator had not imparted his dread secret to the American Club of Indianapolis. "Quick, WATSON! The needle!"

GAS IN WARFARE.

No soldier who has succumbed to chemical gas on the battlefield and survived the experience will be inclined to admit that gas is a humane weapon in warfare. But individual cases of suffering and death, or the total of them unless disproportionately large, do not prove the inhumanity, much less the devilishness, of such an invention as the Germans used so effectively in their "drive" in France in the end of March, 1918. However, there is this to be said: While "mustard" gas employed against an unsophisticated and helpless enemy, for instance against the Sudanese or any wild people, would have to be regarded as cruel and abhorrent, the case may be different when the enemy are soldiers of a civilized and resourceful nation which can bring gas masks and antidotes into play.

General MARCH is therefore right when he says that gas on the front in France was, after all, a humane weapon of war. His proof is that in an estimated total of 74,779 casualties from that cause which the American Expeditionary Forces sustained only 1,400 deaths resulted, or 1.87 per cent. The fact that 27.3 per cent. of the battle losses are charged to the enemy's use of gas, discharged from shells chiefly, and this in spite of protective masks, leaves no room for doubt that a modern army must have a chemical section if it is to hold its own in the field or ever win a victory. Major Gen. WILLIAM L. SIBERT, Director of the Chemical Warfare Service, said on Sept. 21, 1918, about seven weeks before the armistice:

> A nation that has not developed the manufacture of toxic gas and the necessary appliances for administering it to the enemy is terrifically handicapped in warfare. In fact, a nation without toxic gas, and without means of administering it, and without protection from it, will be almost at the mercy of its adversary.

Absolutely, General SIBERT might have said. The worst of the gases used in the war, the so-called "mustard," lingers for a long time in an area that has been drenched with it. No one can safely enter in three or four days without a mask, and to stay very long is to risk burning of the flesh through the clothing. Even if soldiers of the enemy are well supplied with masks, modern tactics require the frequent firing of gas shells, because troops are said to be 60 per cent. less efficient in handling their arms when they wear the impedimenta of masks and other protective devices. It is now an important part of the game of war to hamper the enemy in this way. In stating that the percentage of fatal gas casualties is inconsiderable, General MARCH has said nothing new—the fact was published long before the end of the war—but he has said it officially, and therefore his report will carry weight.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Substitute, Perhaps, for Saloons.

If lots of advertising, and of advertising that money will not buy, will make a commercial enterprise successful, then bright indeed is the future of the Roosevelt coffee houses and great will be the profits thereof. But the idea is hardly as original, nor will the establishments as planned be as much of a novelty here, as the originators seem to think, for there have long been more than a few places on the east side that at least were called coffee houses by their proprietors and patrons, and if coffee has not been the only beverage they offered, it has held the leading position on the list. However, these older coffee houses have appealed chiefly to what is called the foreign element, and very foreign a good deal of it has been, so the other and much more numerous New Yorkers will find the interest of the unfamiliar in the sort of entertainment and sustenance now promised to them.

That the time is favorable for the starting of something that will or may bring men together in the sort of sociability which was for many not the least attraction of the vanishing saloon—that cannot be questioned, and presumably the desire to do this played its part in moving KERMIT ROOSEVELT and his brothers and other relatives to begin their coffee house experiment. Whether the same people that liked the saloons will take equal, or any, pleasure in places whence alcohol is banned—that remains to be seen. Pessimists will doubt it, while optimists will hope, and the latter are more often justified by the course of events than are their temperamental opposites.

It is a little ominous, perhaps, that the model to be followed is Brazilian. The Brazilians are all right, and they know a lot about coffee and its possibilities, but they live under other constellations than ours and their habits and tastes are different.

Its "Poison" Is Just Its Charm.

Among the announced purposes of the new coffee houses, though by admission only an incidental one, is that of teaching Americans how to make coffee properly. That many Americans—whole armies of them—need instruction in that art is true. But whether coffee, as made, is good or bad is a question in the domain of the relational, not of the absolute. In other words, it is largely a matter of opinion, and what passes for perfect coffee in some countries would get no praise in some others. There is no probability, for instance, that the result of the Turkish method of coffee-making ever would become popular here.

Another thing, and of some importance: Nobody is under much obligation to accept with humility lessons in coffee-making from a master who, like the manager of the first Roosevelt coffee house, vaunts his system of extraction because it eliminates or leaves behind what he calls "the poison," meaning the caffeine. That substance may be a poison, in one sense of the word, but its presence in coffee is the one and only reason why people drink coffee, the world over, and if it were taken away, in Brazil or anywhere else, the demand for the gently sedative berry would soon cease. Coffee without caffeine would be about as eagerly sought as whisky without alcohol or tobacco without nicotine.

Possibly a few men have died and worms have eaten them because of the "poison" in coffee, but it is a good creature, none the less, and long and deeply and justly would the nations lament its loss.

Geography So Very Irrelevant.

With characteristic inability to learn or to forget, the political machinists of both parties are expressing now, as so often before, the belief that the vote-getting power of a Presidential candidate is appreciably, and even decisively, affected by what are called "geographical considerations." That is, the political machinists who come so near to determining who shall and who shall not be nominated for President think that it would be bad policy to take a man who lives in a State his party is sure to carry, no matter who is running.

In their opinion the "good" candidate must be the resident of a "pivotal State"—one where an otherwise doubtful electorate can be moved by the pride they take in having the candidate one of themselves to vote as they would not have voted if he were from another part of the country.

Perhaps this theory was sound in some remote period of our barbaric and infantile past, but it is safe to hope, and not difficult to feel sure, that not enough voters to decide or measurably to influence a Presidential election now cast their ballots for a reason so absurd. Only to a fraction microscopically small of any State's inhabitants is it any real advantage that the President should be from their own State. Their number is almost certainly negligible in comparison with that of the people who vote with no regard at all to "geographical considerations," but with very much regard for the candidate's character, ability and likableness.

Weather and News Harmonized.

As if yesterday's fog was not enough to depress the residents of New York City, they all had to suffer a further like effect when they read in their morning papers that a large group of near-exiles on Ellis Island, made desperate by the distrust shown by their guardians, had been driven to start a hunger strike. That was enough in itself to spoil for anybody with a heart even decently tender the very brightest of June days.

It is almost—no, quite—agonising to think that men as amiable and as well-intentioned as these followers of the distinguished LENIN have found themselves forced to a form of protest so painful. Why, in a few days they will be as hungry as everybody in Russia except the Bolsheviki long has been, and to think of that without shuddering horror would be possible only with the aid of such cold and callous depravity as marks the bourgeois mind.

And the tyrant of Ellis Island says that he will not resort to forcible feeding, no matter how long the hunger strike lasts! He snaps his cruel fingers when warned by the victims of this brutal decision that he will be held personally responsible for its consequences by the Russian Government!

Apparently he thinks that few American tears would be shed if all our Reds were to hunger strike and keep it up until—well, until the question of deporting them became purely academic.

THE FATE OF THE TREATY.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your support of the League of Nations is a source of amasement to me. As a member of the rising generation, may I raise my humble and inexperienced voice in feeble protest against your easy assumption of its imperative necessity and absolute desirability from the viewpoint of an American citizen?

I note frequent reference in your editorial articles to the unworthy motives that animate the "Battalion of Death," and you deplore the introduction of "politics" into an issue of such transcendent national and international importance. It is difficult to eliminate the human element from anything in life, and I do not doubt but that the attitude of magnificent isolation assumed by the Administration in the negotiation of this Peace Treaty has alienated much personal affection in the Senate. It is a far call, however, to attribute this opposition to motives wholly unworthy. Could the Republican Party afford to make a national issue of a question that had but one side? If you talk to the man in the smoking car, behind the counter and on the street you will find a great many who believe that the conditions that gave rise to Mr. Monroe's theory in its broadest sense have not materially altered, and that the national altruism of the world has undergone no recent or radical improvement.

HENRY T. CHITTENDEN.
Washington, Nov. 24, 1919.

Wilson or Lodge?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Now that Senator Lodge has publicly announced that he wants the question of a League of Nations held open and made an issue in the Presidential campaign of 1920—an announcement that was entirely superfluous, as his purpose has been known and understood for months—the time would seem to have arrived when all patriotic citizens, regardless of past political affiliations, should make up their minds as to whether they will follow the leadership of Senator Lodge or of President Wilson.

In the opinion of the writer this country has before it an opportunity to render the greatest and most unselfish service to all mankind that has ever been presented to any nation since history began—a service so beneficent and far reaching in its ultimate results and benefits that to refuse to render it would be a crime against civilization. If there ever was a time when this nation should show its devotion to a great ideal—an ideal that if faithfully adhered to is destined to bless generations yet unborn—and stand to a man behind him who, under God, has been the chosen representative of a great people to help negotiate and formulate the instrument through which it may be brought about, that time is now.

By common consent the attitude of the United States will determine whether we shall or shall not have a League of Nations. If we follow the enlightened and forward looking leadership of President Wilson we are likely to be privileged to become the leader among the nations of the earth toward a great ideal and a noble purpose. If, on the other hand, we blindly follow the narrow, selfish and partisan leadership of Senator Lodge, we are more likely to relegate ourselves to an insignificant and humiliating position. Let us all ask ourselves seriously whether we want to be a leader in the onward march of the nations for humanity and progress or merely a selfish trailer.

Today, under the leadership of President Wilson, we enjoy the proud distinction of being trusted by all nations and peoples; we have become the hope and inspiration of a war-sick world longing for peace. Can any well-wisher of his country wish to change this to one of distrust and despair? Are we willing as a nation thus to blight the hope of the world for a selfish interest however great? Let us consider well our duty before it is too late.

"Americanization" Doubted.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Senator Lodge claims to have "Americanized" the league. What he has done is to write Sinn Fein all over it. Incidentally he has done a fine day's work for the revival of Prussian hopes, for red Prussianism as well as the Junker kind. A DISGUSTED REPUBLICAN.
Pittston, Pa., Nov. 24, 1919.

Minnesota Might Learn from Europe.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Senator Kellogg of Minnesota says the "Republicans have Americanized the treaty and the Democrats have killed it." Are Americans so perfect that we can learn nothing from highly cultured Europe? Senator Kellogg is sadly in need of a visit to Europe, which completely outclasses America in more things than one. I am a pure Yankee, my ancestors having landed on the shores of Massachusetts Bay in 1640, but I hope I can see good in others.

A. S. WHEELER.
University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C., Nov. 25, 1919.

THANKSGIVING, 1919.

God has been merciful this year—
Earth has not spared her store,
And folded all away again
Are tents and traps of war.
Yet clamoring in every town
That holds a garnered harvest brown
Who ask for more and more.

Disciples of the new red god,
The god of discontent,
Dark mills and silent factories
Show clear the way they went.
They follow him and have forgot
The God of Plenteousness who wrought
Their being—they remember not
The freeman's covenant!

They seek for plenty without toil,
They ask of Earth her yield,
While yet their engines idle lie
In mill and mine and field.
They cry with many a crimson word—
They ask, but not of God the Lord;
They have forgot His sudden sword
With wrath and justice steeled.

Now is a day ordained for praise
When eyes on Him may wait.
Now is a time to offer thanks,
Humble and intimate.
May God lift up men's hearts again
With gratitude for sun and rain,
With thankfulness to cleanse the stain
Before it is too late!

WEST POINT DESIGNATIONS.

Three New Yorkers Named—Chances for 84 Enlisted Men.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Three New Yorkers were today designated to take the West Point entrance examination to be held the third Tuesday in February, 1920. They are:

Fourth District—James Regan, Jr., 208 Congress Street, Brooklyn.

For the eighty-four vacancies at the United States Military Academy at West Point for which enlisted men of the regular army are permitted to compete the War Department today announced that a total of 252 candidates may be designated for the regular entrance examination to be held beginning on Feb. 17, 1920. These are to be selected from among the successful competitors in a preliminary examination to be held between Dec. 1 and 15, 1919, in the respective territorial departments and tactical divisions.

A preliminary examination will also be held in Germany for the benefit of candidates from among the enlisted men of the American forces there and in Siberia, for the benefit of those there. Candidates have been allotted proportionately as follows:

Philippines, 5; Siberia, 9; Germany, 17; Northeastern Department, 5; Eastern Department, 64; Southeastern Department, 21; Central Department, 36; Southern Department, 46; Western Department, 20; Panama, 4; Hawaii, 5; 1st Division, 5; 2d Division, 3; 3d Division, 3; 4th Division, 2; 5th Division, 2; 6th Division, 3, and 7th Division, 2.

SAY RAISINS ARE TOO HIGH.

Trade Commission Witnesses Attack Control of California Company.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Charles G. Bonner of Fresno, Cal., testified before the Federal Trade Commission today that the California Associated Raisin Company's 1919 price of 15 cents a package for muscat seeded raisins was excessive. It should not have exceeded 10½ cents, based on all legitimate cost factors, he asserted. Packing and growing costs had increased not more than one-quarter of a cent a pound each over 1918, he said.

L. F. Bridges of the National Wholesale Grocers' Association said the 90 per cent. control of the Pacific coast raisin crop by the Associated Raisin Company had delayed shipments and increased prices. Prior to this control Bridges said 17 raisin packing concerns had competed in the Eastern market, while this year his concern had been able to buy "from only six packers." He could get raisins from the Associated Company only on a contract under which the price was left undetermined until set by the Associated concern.

MANY WORLD CROPS BIG.

Wheat, Oats, and Flaxseed, However, Show a Decrease This Year.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Bumper world crops of corn, potatoes, barley, rye, sugar beets, and rough rice for this year are shown in estimates compiled by the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome, made public today by the Department of Agriculture. The production of wheat, oats, and flaxseed, however, shows a decrease from the average for the five years ended in 1917.

Wheat production in fourteen countries, excepting the Central Powers, will reach 2,040,509,000 bushels, 96.5 per cent. of the five-year average. Corn will amount to 3,126,194,000, 14.8 per cent. greater than the crop produced last year and 4.4 per cent. greater than that produced for the last five years. Other crops, the department's cablegram shows, are estimated as follows:

Barley, 550,060,000 bushels, 101.8 per cent.
Oats, 2,085,786,000 bushels, 90.3 per cent.
Rice, 423,375,000 bushels, 83.8 per cent.
Potatoes, 607,632,000 bushels, 101.2 per cent.
Sugar beets, 10,344,000 tons, 114.8 per cent.

800 A MONTH DESERT ARMY.

Less Than 15 Per Cent. Are Apprehended—Consignment Period Cut

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Desertions from the army from March 1 to Nov. 17 of this year averaged more than 800 per month, with less than 15 per cent. of the men apprehended, the War Department announced today.

The average period of confinement in army disciplinary cases has been reduced from 6.63 years to 1.85 years, clemency having been recommended in 81 per cent. of the 7,027 cases reviewed, figures made public today show. In 2,075 cases the entire unexecuted portion of the sentence was remitted.

CALLS ON MAYORS TO MEET.

Detroit Executive Wants to Offset Criticism of Municipal Ownership.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 26.—Mayor James Couzens, a supporter of municipal ownership, today requested Mayors of the principal cities of the Middle West to confer at Toledo next week on the street railway problems confronting several of the cities.

"The reports of the Federal Electric Railway Commission," his communication stated, "are a menace to the municipal ownership idea. The street railway companies, through the Federal Commission, have attempted to crystallize and nationalize their side of the question. The municipalities should make an effort to unify the people's side of the question."

TOLEDO CONFERENCE FUTILE

City and Car Company Now Await Court Action.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 26.—Unable to break the deadlock, the street car conference between city and company officials was adjourned today pending action expected to be taken in the United States District Court on Friday, when it is believed means will be devised for the resumption of street car service.

Henry L. Doherty, whose company controlled traction affairs here until the voters approved an ouster ordinance on Nov. 4, gave notice that he would appeal to a higher court if the local tribunal ordered service restored.

FRENCH PLAN FOR TOURISTS

Seek Private Capital to Erect "Barrack Hotels" on Battlefields.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—Hotel men, seeking fortunes in the expected flood of American and other tourists next year, are planning to erect "barrack hotels" along the battlefront. The National Chamber of Hotelkeepers, co-operating with the Government, is seeking private capital to put up such temporary buildings during the Winter.

Officers of the association said most of the hosteiries now operating at towns on the front have patrons "sleeping in halls and even on billiard tables." The first efforts are being directed toward making habitable hotels that were damaged during the war and inducing owners of places destroyed to rebuild them.

$4,000,000 TO BUILD UP MEDICAL SCHOOL

TO MODERNIZE INSTITUTION

Money Taken from General Treasury, Not from Recent Rockefeller Donation.

The General Education Board, of which John D. Rockefeller is the founder, has appropriated $4,000,000 to Vanderbilt University for the reorganization of its medical school along modern lines, according to the announcement yesterday of Chancellor Kirkland of the university.

The establishment of an up-to-date medical school in Nashville has been urged upon the university trustees by the medical faculty for years and it is promised that the new school will be one of the foremost in the South.

Detailed plans for the school have not yet been developed, but the Chancellor said they will undoubtedly involve the completion of the present Galloway Memorial Hospital, with enlarged facilities for public patients; the erection of an additional hospital unit; the organization of a modern laboratory building, and the appointment of an increased number of professors who will give their entire time to the school and hospital, in both laboratory and clinical branches.

The contribution comes from the general funds of the Board, and not out of Mr. Rockefeller's recent donation of $20,000,000 to promote medical education in the United States, the announcement said. It was added that the gift had been decided upon before it became known that Mr. Rockefeller had made his recent gift.

A statement by the Board gave these facts regarding some of its large contributions for education:

"During the last few years the Board has made the following contributions to university departments of medicine, to enable them to further develop their several medical departments:

Johns Hopkins Medical School, Baltimore	$2,210,874.1
Medical Department, Washington University, St. Louis	1,000,000.00
Medical Department, University of Chicago (one-half contributed by the Rockefeller Foundation)	2,000,000.00
Yale University	582,900.00

"The gift to Vanderbilt University is the largest the board has ever made for this purpose or any other purpose and will suggest to the people of Nashville and to the entire South, as well as to the whole country, the importance which the board attaches to creating in the South at this time a medical school of the most advanced modern type.

"It is hoped (and believed) that the new school will have, not only in the South but throughout the whole country, a stimulating influence. It is impossible to measure the effect on medicine and public health which will be exercised by the creation at Nashville of a medical school which may serve as a practical demonstration of what can at this time be accomplished in this field."

QUAKERS TO AID GERMANS.

Hoover Asks Quakers in America to Receive Contributions.

Americans of German blood who wish to contribute to charitable and relief organizations in Germany were asked last night in a statement issued by Herbert Hoover to make their contributions solely through the Society of Friends. Mr. Hoover said he considered that appeals for aid for distressed Germans were undesirable in this country and that to prevent such campaigns having a political import he had asked the Quakers to take charge of this section of European relief work.

Incidentally Mr. Hoover suggested that the Quaker spirit of pacifism "will do some people in Germany good."

"I have felt," the statement added, "that it is undesirable that such appeals should be carried on in the United States, as it is so easy to slip over the line from pure charity to propaganda.

"The American Friends' Service Committee is headed by Charles J. Rhoads, former President of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia, and embraces among its membership such well-known names as Joseph Haynes, Hollingsworth Wood, Wilbur K. Thomas, and Harry T. Brown, all prominent citizens. Their offices are at 20 South Twelfth Street, Philadelphia."

POSTPONE HOSPITAL DRIVE.

Campaign for $100,000 Bronx Fund Will Begin Dec. 8.

William Hirsch, Managing Director of the Bronx Hospital, announced yesterday morning that the drive for $100,000 which this hospital contemplated starting Dec. 1 had been postponed another week. The drive will officially commence, said Mr. Hirsch, on Dec. 8. Mr. Hirsch explained that the postponement was decided on in deference to the United Hospital drive, which is to be continued for another week.

The Medical Board of the Bronx Hospital met last night at the board's offices, 1,319 Boston Road. A resolution was adopted at this meeting which will make the Bronx institution an open hospital, so that physicians may enter private patients there and treat them without interference. There are only three such hospitals in the Greater City, it was stated.

WILLIAMS SUGGESTS CANDY RATION HERE

TIME FOR EVERY ONE TO AID

Food Administrator Announces Fair-Price Agreement with Coffee Men.

A suggestion that the people of New York City should go on a ration in candy was made yesterday by Arthur Williams, Federal Food Administrator. Mr. Williams pointed out that the price of candy was becoming extremely high, and at the same time, he intimated that some of the manufacturers were paying exorbitant prices for the sugar, thus diverting it from the homes.

The Food Administrator declared that he realized the absolute necessity of keeping open the factories in which thousands of men and women get their living, but he insisted that it was time for everybody to help in the present crisis, and that manufacturers should bear a burden the same as the rest of the community.

"There is plenty of sugar being refined," said Mr. Williams. "Last week 45,000,000 pounds were melted down for this district alone. Investigation by this office has shown that the wholesalers haven't got it. The homes certainly aren't to blame. It looks as if two classes of citizens were to blame—the hoarder, who is breaking the law, and the manufacturer, who, while within his technical rights, must realize that now is his opportunity for patriotic service.

"The hoarders, when we catch them, will be punished. We can only appeal to the manufacturers not to pay high prices for the sugar, even though they need it. If they pay more than 10 cents a pound, which is the price fixed by Government regulation, then they are entering into unfair competition with the householder who needs the sugar for his family. I do not wish to criticise the great bulk of our reputable manufacturers, but it is the man who pays a high price for his sugar and then raises the price of his candy to make the people help him pay the difference.

"If the consumption of candy is suddenly stopped it will not be so profitable to pay 18, 19, and 20 cents for the sugar. I am averse to using a method so drastic as rationing if help can be had by other means. But, with candy that formerly sold for 80 cents and $1 a pound now bringing $1.50 and $2, and with sugar at the same time almost impossible for a private individual to buy, something has to be done."

Mr. Williams announced yesterday that he had finally reached an agreement with the coffee men in this city to establish a fair price on coffee. He said that the crop of Santos coffee, the favorite beverage here, was about one-third the normal. It reaches New York in eight different grades, that known as No. 4 being the most popular. Mr. Williams estimated that a fair retail price for this grade should be about 42 or 43 cents a pound in a store operated on the cash-and-carry plan.

It was announced at the navy yard yesterday that the Government had asked for and received bids for the buildings in the Pelham Bay naval training station. The highest bid was $142,000. Bids will be asked next week for the buildings and equipment at the Montauk Point aerial station. Rockaway Point is the only naval aviation base left in this part of the country, it was stated.

LEGION ENTERS PROTEST.

All Kansas City Posts Against Non-Partisan League St. Louis Meeting.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 26.—A resolution of protest against the meeting of the national conference of the Nonpartisan League in St. Louis Dec. 9 to 12 was adopted today by a committee representing all Kansas City posts of the American Legion.

The resolution, which is signed by Lieut. Col. Ruby D. Garrett, former Division Signal Officer of the Rainbow Division, calls upon the Mayor of St. Louis to prevent the Nonpartisan League from holding its proposed conference in St. Louis, and asserts that the league is dominated by radicals, anarchists, the I. W. W., the Bolsheviki, and Reds generally, and is against the Government and seeking its destruction.

TRY JERSEY CITY FIREMEN.

Two Plead Guilty to Leaving Posts to Prepare Union Statement.

As an aftermath to the recent reorganization of the Jersey City Fire Department by Director of Public Safety Charles F. X. O'Brien, who charged that the department had become demoralized since the men joined a union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, two firemen pleaded guilty yesterday before the Director of having absented themselves without leave and expressed regret that they had done so in order to prepare a statement in defense of the union for the press.

The men, Firemen Peter J. Mahoney and James Connell, President and Treasurer, respectively, of the Jersey City Uniformed Firemen's Association, said they left their engine houses on the morning of Nov. 20 and met at the offices of the Central Labor Union, where they prepared the statement. After the men had expressed regret, Mr. O'Brien reserved decision.

O'Connell also answered to the charge of conduct prejudicial to the department. Examined as to his connection with the union, he said he joined it last July because it favored the two-platoon system. He told the Director he feared "you would deny the two-platoon system" if the union did not force it through. After questioning he admitted remembering having heard O'Brien say something to the effect that he would favor the system after the adoption of a new pension law for the department.

Martin Duffy, a fireman, accused of using indecent language to his superiors, pleaded not guilty. His case was not completed. He is alleged to have added profanity to a declaration that "I don't care for the big guys; I will stick to the union. I can get a better job."

OLD MAIDS' DAY IN PARIS.

Midinettes Reflect Sadly That War Ended Marriage Chance for Many.

PARIS, Nov. 25.—Such a commotion was raised by the Midinettes, as the girl milliners of Paris are called, around the large department stores this morning that passersby got the impression that another strike was in progress. It developed, however, that the girls were engaged merely in besieging the flower sellers and purchasing bouquets of orange blossoms to offer their fellow-workers who had reached the age of 25.

This was St. Catharine's Day, and the Midinettes who have arrived at the quarter century mark without finding a husband are decorated on that date by their younger sisters in honor of St. Catharine, the patroness of "old maids."

Although the Midinettes were in great spirits there seemed to be lacking some of the spontaneity which marked the same ceremony last year. One of the girls remarked somewhat sadly:

"It will be my turn to be decorated as an old maid next year because I see little chance of finding a husband. Husbands are scarce in France, and the great crop of them that lies in Northern France will never rise again."

She said many of the girls were still wearing half-mourning for their fiancés killed in the World War.

SHOWS LENIN PLOTS REVOLUTION HERE

WRITTEN FOR AMERICANS

Urges Workers in This Country to "Do as We Have Done" in Russia.

FOR WORLDWIDE CIVIL WAR

Bolsheviki Not Seeking Peace; Want Only Breathing Spell, Says Alfred W. Kliefoth.

Documents tending to disprove the denial by L. C. A. K. Martens, "Ambassador" of Soviet Russia, that the Lenin-Trotzky Government issued propaganda calling for the overthrow of "capitalist" Governments of other countries, were made public yesterday by Alfred W. Kliefoth, late Assistant Military Attaché of the American Embassy in Russia, who left that country in September after a residence of nearly three years.

"The Bolsheviki are not sincere when they ask for peace," said Mr. Kliefoth. "They want a breathing spell. Here are some of their propaganda pamphlets. They are printed in English, but you will see in one corner the word 'America' in Russian, to indicate that this particular article is to be distributed among Americans."

Mr. Kliefoth showed a pamphlet entitled, "Will you be oppressors of workers' liberty?" and bearing the legend of "The Group of English Speaking Communists in Russia." This is an official organization within the Communist Party, Mr. Kliefoth said.

The pamphlet opened with the greeting, "Fellow Workers." It recited that it was "from the West, from the rulers of England, France, and the United States that the darkest clouds are spreading to blot out the rising sun of socialism now dawning in the East."

"British and American workers," it continued, "your rulers are the most dangerous enemies of ours and yours. Of all the imperialists in the world, they are the most cunning, the most treacherous."

Urge Workers to Seize Power.

Under the sub-title, "How Help Russia," the following appeal was made:

"Fellow workers, there is only one way in which you can help the Russian revolution, and that is by helping yourselves. Dare to be free! Cease to be the slave of capitalists, landlords, lawyers and generals. Make a clean sweep of the whole accursed lot. Do as we have done! Seize the whole machinery of State! Form your Soviets, of workers and soldiers delegates, seize the mines, railways, mills, works, factories, banks and all the means of production, exchange and distribution; run them in your own interests and not in the interests of your exploiters. Take away the land from the landlords and restore it to the nation.

"Take away the printing office from the bandits of the press and use it for the enlightenment of the people. Proclaim that labor rules the world, and that those who do not work shall not eat. Get out of your wretched, miserable slums in which your exploiters have kept you for ages, and take up your abode in the houses of the rich, built by the sweat of labor. All the good things of the world are the product of labor and only labor has a right to them.

"Workers and soldiers, do it now. You have the greatest chance that has ever presented itself to the oppressed and the poor. Your exploiters, in the firm belief that you are fools, have put arms into your hands that you may help them in their own dirty business. Show them that you are going to use your arms in the direction they least of all expected, namely, in your own interest. Stick to your arms and remember that you are in millions and your exploiters are few."

"Having had the experience of almost two years of the revolution we warn you against the pitfalls and snares which your open enemies and your enemies in the guise of friends and benevolent advisers (these are the most dangerous), will spread before you.

Call for General Civil War.

"They will tell you that there is no need for revolution in such countries as England and the United States; that if you wish to establish socialism you can do it in an 'orderly, legal' manner by voting at elections. Fiddlesticks! By listening to such advice you will fall into a trap. As old hands at the dirty game of politics, and with their vast command of money, they have a hundred and one tricks by which to jerry-mander [sic] elections. If necessary, they will disenfranchise you.

"Bring down the whole rotten edifice of your capitalist State with the shattering blow of your arms! Throw into the rubbish heap your decrepit talking shop — the old mother of parliaments, the hunting ground of the corrupt politicians, the hangers-on of capitalism and landlordism. You will have no need for this obsolete institution. The Soviets of your workers' and soldiers' delegates shall be the councils by which your new life shall be ordered, and in co-operation with the Soviets of other countries destroy forever the incubus of capitalism, imperialism, and militarism, and on their ruins build the real league of the toiling nations of the world."

An appeal for an international civil war was called for in another proclamation "To the toiling masses of France, England, America, Italy, and Japan," which was signed by Lenin, Tchitcherin, and Trotzky.

"German imperialism can only be defeated when the imperialism of all States is defeated by the universal onslaught of the world's proletariat," the appeal declared. "Not by a continuation of the war, but by bringing it to an end shall we secure this object. Then both you and the German workers will be freed of the fear of the foreign capitalist class and its aims of conquest; the ending of the war of peoples, and the commencement of an international civil war—a war of the exploited against the exploiters—will finally put an end to all kinds of injustice, social as well as national.

Count on Sympathy Abroad.

"We are certain that every measure against those who, on Russian territory, are hatching plots against the Russian revolution will meet with your sincere sympathy, for these plots are directed against you as well as against us. Arise to fight the Allied capitalism, which, in addition to the fetters put on us by German imperialism, wished to add new fetters, we address ourselves to you with the appeal:

"Long live solidarity of the workers of the world!

"Long live solidarity of the proletariats of France, England, America, and Italy with the Russian proletariat!

"Down with the bandits of international imperialism; long live the International Revolution!

"Long live peace between the nations!"

Mr. Kliefoth pointed to a speech made by Zinovieff, Military Governor of Petrograd, in the Soviet of that city, Feb. 6, 1919, concerning the proposed Prinkipo peace conference, as showing the real meaning behind the Bolshevist acceptance. In the speech, Zinovieff said:

"We are undertaking the move toward peace with a clear realization that in the course of time this peace will be profitable to us, and not to our enemies. And comrades, it seems to me that this has been proved up to the hilt by our experience with the Brest-Litovsk peace.

"But we are able to cast it on to the scrap heap of history, and we are already beginning to forget that there was once an evil thing called the Brest peace. Signing such a peace with the Allies would not mean that we would, for a second even, stop building our Red army. It would only mean that we would put no trust whatever in the bit of paper which we should sign. We would continue to build up our army—but at the same time we would allow our workmen and peasants to draw a few free breaths.

"We are firmly convinced that the bourgeois world is doomed, and that it cannot find any plan of action which will save it. No matter what mistakes we may make, we shall conquer in the end. No matter how cleverly the imperialistic bourgeois may push its pawns, it will inevitably perish within a few years. We should, therefore, strive to save every drop of blood belonging to our people that we can, provided there is the slightest chance of doing so.

"Let us suppose that our proposal should be accepted. Let us suppose that the Allies should propose very difficult conditions for us to accept. What will the whole working class of Russia, the great majority of workmen, peasants, members of the Red army, and sailors say to such a proposition? I am firmly convinced, that after considering the matter carefully, they would express themselves through their organized mouthpiece, the convention of Soviets, to the effect that these difficult conditions must be accepted, having in mind that the new peace will suffer the same fate that overtook the Brest peace, which was forced on us by the Germans.

"We should be bound to accept these conditions in the full assurance that history is working for us, and that every hour brings us nearer to the final ruin of our enemies, that we should use this breathing spell to gather strength, that the mere continued existence of our Government would continue the grand scale propaganda which Soviet Russia has been carrying on for more than a year.

"We would if we found it we did not make use of these weaknesses in the ranks of our enemies."

"Class" Only Thing That Counts.

Another appeal by the group of English speaking Communists in Russia, also bearing in Russian the word "America," declared that "class" only counted, not nationality. It urged the workers to join with the Bolsheviki in the fight against "capitalism and the war."

"The Bolshevist platform," said Mr. Kliefoth, "has as its aims worldwide social revolution, demolishing of nationalities, religious frontiers, and all capitalistic institutions, regardless of the suffering entailed or the methods necessary. Bolshevism is not a new experiment in democracy. It is a 'get-rich-quick scheme' of radicalism. It is a party Government, maintaining its power through military force, terror, food control, and tyrannical suppression of every form of opposition.

"The idea of peace so that they may obtain a breathing spell is being preached in every village and hamlet in the land to keep up the patriotism of the people. I was in Soviet Russia when the wireless announced that Martens had reached the United States as a business representative, and when the Bolsheviki heard of it they laughed.

"The Bolsheviki want to capitalize social unrest in their favor all over the world. I am not afraid of their establishing Soviets here, but they want to profit by every bit of unrest.

"The Soviet Government offers opportunities for graft that are seized on by the Commissars, especially those dealing with finances. A Commissar having anything to do with finance automatically becomes a rich man. The only ambition left to men under the Soviets is to become Commissars, as it provides the only means of activity to those possessing talent.

"Instead of having nationalized business, the Bolsheviki have merely made it the property of the Communist Party. The peasants were deprived of all produce raised above their own needs. As a result they raise no more than they need. Factories are producing at a minimum. Only the munition factories are going full blast, and in these the workers are conscripted, just as they are in the Red Army."

Mr. Kliefoth explained why the Soviet program had received the approval of many radicals in other countries. He said that many of the returned exiles had educational and economic fads which they placed before the Government. They were employed to write decrees embodying their proposals, and these were issued by the authority of the Government, but were never carried out. The result has been that the program of the Soviets has been irresistible to radicals elsewhere.

"It was his belief that the Soviets cannot outlast the consumption of the food stocks still remaining from the Czar's régime when food was collected for an army of 9,000,000 men. He said an immediate declaration of a definite policy toward Russia by the United States would clear the situation. He said he hoped this country would deport all Bolsheviki here and recognise the parties opposing the Bolsheviki in Russia.

Mr. Kliefoth said statements that Trotzky and Lenin were willing to make peace with the Entente and pay the debts of old Russia, were sent out for consumption abroad.

BOLSHEVIST MOVE IN JAVA.

Dutch Government Accuses Chinese of Fostering It.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 14.—The Dutch East Indian Government has revealed what is alleged to have been a Bolshevist plot in Java and other Dutch East Indian colonies under the guise of an anti-Japanese boycott.

Chinese Bolsheviki, it is stated, launched the campaign, advising the East Indian Chinese not to trade with the Japanese merchants nor to deposit their funds in a Japanese bank. Agitation was conducted advocating certain financial institutions conducted by Chinese. These latter, according to the Netherlands Government agents, were found to be Bolshevist sympathizers who had planned to use the funds thus secured to carry on Bolshevist propaganda in the Far East.

A press telegram from Makassar, Java, today announced that the boycott had been ended.

All-Russian Government Will Fight Till Victorious

A Russian Telegraph Agency dispatch from Irkutsk, Siberia, dated Nov. 21, says the All-Russian Government has issued the following:

In spite of temporary misfortunes, we are, as before, ready for a struggle until our enemy is vanquished. Our army is performing its duty and we call upon the population to support the army. We strongly believe that final victory will rest with our cause, but the salvation of Russia is impossible without the co-operation of all the Russian progressive forces.

We appeal to the citizens of Russia to struggle until the end for the land and the law, for real democracy, and a constituent Assembly.

The appeal is signed by Prime Minister Vologodsky and all the Ministers.

LUDENDORFF LEADER OF PAN GERMANS

PATRON OF 'UNION OF YOUTH'

Chauvinistic Tirade Issued Under His Auspices—Noske Disciplines Colonel Marloh.

BERLIN, Nov. 24—General Ludendorff has apparently consented to be one of the leaders of the German National or Pan-German Party. He figures prominently at public meetings of that organization, though—and this fact is significant—it is as a rule thought well not to announce his performances beforehand lest others besides the Pan-German faithful should be prompted to attend the gatherings.

Last night a memorial service was held at Potsdam Garrison Church and a "military commander" was announced to speak. The audience was surprised to find this person was none other than Ludendorff, who appeared in the ex-Kaiser's pew. He spoke on "Militarism as a School for Moral Qualification of Successful Men."

When the General had finished this address, so eminently unsuitable for a church and for memorial services, a soldier in uniform arose and shouted: "When the time comes, General, we will follow you again!" Thereupon the whole congregation rose and sang "Deutschland über Alles."

A priest who was in the chair then declared that when the time was ripe they would all be prepared to die for the sake of their honor, so that it might not be brought to shame. Then he called the congregation to assemble around the tombs of Frederick William II. and Frederick the Great and take oath to do all in their power to bring back the monarchy to the Fatherland.

As Ludendorff left the church there were loud cheers for him and the ex-Kaiser.

Soldiers garrisoned at Potsdam marched, or were brought in automobiles, to the "service" and many of them joined in the cheering as the General went away.

Ludendorff also becomes one of the leaders of an organization called the German Nationalism Union of Youth. Its leading spirit is a well-known Pan-German agitator, Professor Dietrich Schaeffer, who used to guide and direct a violent Pan-German society of wartime known as the "League for a German Peace, the main object of which was to advocate annexation of the greater part of Europe.

Schaeffer recently issued on behalf of this Union of Youth an extraordinary tirade against all who were not Pan-Germans, terming them people who unhappily were born on German soil, do not deserve to be recognized or spoken to, but only to be spat upon. Such violent nonsense goes out under the aegis of, among others, General Ludendorff.

This same Union of Youth tonight's Berliner Tageblatt declares is really the organization to which Clemenceau refers in his note commenting on German propaganda in Alsace-Lorraine.

It is well, of course, I must insist, not to attribute very great importance to the silly goings on of Ludendorff and people like him. Such doings are not even the prelude to a counter-revolutionary coup. They are interesting as evidence of the state of mind of people who once aspired to conquer and rule the world. The effect on the broad masses of the German people is, I am certain, merely to make them more scornful than ever of the caste which wrought Germany's ruin.

Meanwhile Herr Noske, the Minister of Defense, has been bold enough to send Colonel Reinhard on unlimited leave. He it was who headed the guard of honor when Hindenburg arrived in and left Berlin, and who is alleged to be involved in what is known as the Marloh case, which comes on for trial in a few days' time. Lieutenant Marloh is charged with the massacre of thirty-two sailors during the March disturbances, and some higher officers, it is said, will have to clear themselves of complicity in the affair.

EX-KAISER FEELS SAFE FROM ALLIED DEMAND

Ex-Crown Prince Less Hopeful—Breach with His Father Said to be Modified.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 26.—The Telegraaf, quoting "an authoritative source," says that both the Netherlands Government and former Emperor William of Germany are confident that nothing will come of the report that there will be a demand for the extradition of the former Emperor.

The newspaper adds that former Crown Prince Frederick William, who it says has less to fear from extradition than his father, takes the matter more seriously.

The Telegraaf's authority says that the breach between the former Emperor and his son, while it has not yet been healed, is less bitter, the son having yielded somewhat to his father because of the wishes of his mother.

POLICEMAN SHOT AS THIEF.

Storekeeper Mortally Wounds Patrolman Investigating Opened Door.

Policeman Harry Hughes attached to the West Twentieth Street station was mortally wounded early this morning by a storekeeper who mistook him for a burglar. Hughes was trying doors along his beat just after midnight when he found the door of the dry goods store kept by Paul Pissanda, at 142 Tenth Avenue, open. Believing burglars might have been in the place, Hughes walked in and cautiously proceeded to investigate.

The proprietor, Pissanda, slept in the rear of his store. He was awakened, he said, by someone moving about at the front of the store. He said he became convinced that burglars were in the place, and so when he saw a shadowy form outlined against the light that came in from the street he took aim and fired. The policeman fell with a bullet in his abdomen. The storekeeper investigated, found he had shot a policeman, ran from the store, and gave an alarm.

Hughes was taken to New York Hospital where it was expected he would die. His assailant was locked up charged with felonious assault and with having a revolver without legal right. The wounded man is 42 years old and married. He lives at 428 West Thirty-fifth Street.

Commons Won't Allow Astor to Give Up Title; Proposal to Discuss Bill Is Lost By 113 Votes

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, Nov. 27.—The refusal of the House of Commons yesterday by a vote of 169 to 56 to permit J. H. Thomas to introduce a bill enabling a Peer to surrender his peerage is a summary decision rarely exercised. If such a measure had become law Viscount Astor would have been able, on his re-election, to retain his seat in the House of Commons. Lady Astor had already announced that if she should be elected for the Plymouth seat, and the disabilities which prevented her husband from remaining in the House of Commons were removed, she would resign her seat in order to permit him to recontest it.

There was an unfavorable atmosphere from the start of Mr. Thomas's speech. He made the most of his case, but, although the House heard him patiently, he received very little encouragement.

The chief speaker against the measure was Major the Honorable Edward Wood, who happens to be a close friend of Viscount Astor. Major Wood's contention that service in the House of Lords was as important as service in the House of Commons was loudly cheered. He made the further point of the undesirability of proceeding in such a matter "by way of a private bill of a private member in order to meet an individual case," which was greeted with more cheers. Major Wood finally asserted that the bill would prejudice action later in connection with the contemplated reform of the House of Lords, and this was the view taken by the Commons.

It was evident that the House felt that the discussion of such a measure would waste valuable time which was needed for more weighty matters.

The Daily News this morning suggests that "a debate on the sad case of a man made a peer in spite of himself would certainly have been amusing and might have been instructive."

The House of Commons agreed yesterday that peeresses in their own right should not be entitled to sit in the House of Lords. The Lords had rejected an amendment inserted by the Commons in the bill for the removal of sex disqualification, entitling such peeresses to sit among the Lords, and the Commons today agreed not to insist upon the amendment, which could affect only nine peeresses.

ORDERS SUPPRESSION OF THE SINN FEIN

SHAPING HOME RULE BILL

Carson's Silence Considered a Favorable Omen for the New Program.

DUBLIN, Nov. 26.—Widespread suppression of Sinn Fein and other organizations in Ireland has been ordered by the Government.

The Official Gazette today publishes a proclamation prohibiting and suppressing Sinn Fein organizations, Sinn Fein clubs, the Irish Volunteers, the Cunnamanran and the Gaelic League in all counties and boroughs of Ireland.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—A new Home Rule bill setting up two Parliaments in Ireland, with a Council or Senate of forty to be chosen by the two, will probably be introduced in Parliament within the next two weeks.

Daily sessions are being held by the Cabinet committee in charge of the measure, the subject under discussion at present being finance, which is in charge of a sub-committee under the chairmanship of J. Austen Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer. The control of customs has always been a point of the sharpest difference when other Home Rule schemes have been debated and was one of the rocks upon which the Irish Convention was wrecked. Control of police is another knotty point.

The most hopeful sign of an agreement is the silence which Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster leader, has preserved since the latest Irish rite was flown. Sir Edward has not issued any mandates to the Ulster volunteers "to keep their powder dry," while the presence of two hitherto stanch Unionist leaders, Walter Hume Long and Baron Birkenhead, on the committee, shows that Ulster is tending toward conciliation.

It is the supposition that there has been an understanding on the main points before the committee, and that, in fact, there was a tacit agreement before the committee was named.

The final word, however, does not rest with Parliament, but with the Sinn Fein party. If that organization pursues its policy of refusing recognition of any British law, the British-planned Irish Parliament may come to nothing, since the Sinn Fein polled a majority of the Irish voters at the last election. Moderates believe that the Sinn Fein leaders may not be able to keep the mass of their followers in line against an offer of Home Rule which promises to satisfy most of the ambitions of the old Nationalist party.

The other alternative remains, that the Sinn Fein may capture the new Southern Parliament and promptly declare Ireland an independent republic. It would be possible in such a case to carry on the work of the Parliament without recognising any imperial overlordship.

Reds Hold Hostages for Bela Kun.

MAGYAR CABINET ASSUMES OFFICE

ROYALISTS START CAMPAIGN

Prince Windisch-Graetz Says That Charles Still Regards Himself as King of Hungary.

BUDAPEST, Nov. 25.—The new Hungarian Cabinet formed by Karl Huszar began its work yesterday. It includes the following:

Minister of the Interior—M. BENICZKY.
Minister of Public Instruction—STEFAN HALLER.
Minister of Agriculture—JULIUS RUBINEK.
Minister of Commerce—FRANZ HEINRICH.
Socialist Minister of Public Safety—KARL FAYER.
Minister of Foreign Affairs—COUNT SOMZICH.
Minister of Justice—DR. PARIZY.
Minister of National Minorities—JACOB BLEYER.
Minister of War—STEPHEN FRIEDRICH.
Minister of Finance—M. KORANYI.
Minister of Supplies—STEFAN SZABO.
Minister of Small Farmers—M. SOKOSPATKA.

Sir George Clerk, the allied representative at Budapest, has sent a note to M. Hussar stating that the Allies are prepared to recognize the present Cabinet as a provisional government with which the Supreme Council can negotiate until elections are held. (A brief dispatch from Budapest Tuesday announced conditional recognition of the new Cabinet by the Entont.)

Recognition of the Government depended, Sir George informed the Premier, on the following conditions: First, that elections be held without delay; second, that order be maintained; third, that the provisional borders of Hungary be respected; fourth, that legal equality be granted all citizens; fifth, liberty of the press and public opinion; sixth, free democratic elections, properly safeguarded.

Posters demanding the restoration of the royal arms on public buildings and declaring the proclamation of the Hungarian Republic unlawful appeared in this city over night. It is generally considered that these posters mark the opening of the Royalist Party's electoral campaign.

Szegedin will be evacuated by the French troops in the near future, it is announced, and the Hungarian National Army under Admiral Horthy will occupy the town.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—Prince Ludwig Windisch-Graetz, former Austrian Minister without portfolio and an intimate friend of former Emperor Charles, said to a representative of the Lokal Anzeiger today that he did not believe any one could be found in Hungary to accept the throne in the present state of the country, but that if the Entente should recognize a king it would be Charles. "King Charles never abdicated and regards himself as the legitimate crowned king of the lands of holy Stephen's crown," he declared.

MAYOR OF CANTON STRIPPED OF OFFICE

Poorman Will Contest Order of Ohio's Governor—Had Month to Serve.

Special to The New York Times.

CANTON, Ohio, Nov. 26.—Charles E. Poorman, Democrat, today was deprived of his title of Mayor after serving within one month of the expiration of his two-year term, following the order for his removal by Governor Cox for failure to maintain order during the steel strike.

It has been announced that Poorman will contest the Governor's action in the courts. His only weapon will be to question the legality of the order. The finding of error in the suspension and hearing would afford to Poorman a fighting chance for reinstatement, but his term expires on Dec. 31.

Henry A. Schrantz, elected as Republican President of the Council, becomes Mayor until the expiration of the Poorman term. Schrantz was defeated as a candidate for the office at the November elections, his defeat being attributed to the fact that on being forced into the Mayor's chair he enforced a court injunction issued against the strikers, thereby incurring the enmity of the labor vote.

Poorman's removal brings with it no regret to Canton, as his administration has been characterized by nearly two years of inefficiency, although he was well liked personally and bore a record for personal probity. He was virtually repudiated by his own party in his attempt to obtain a second term and was defeated by a large majority by Herman R. Witter, his Democratic running mate, who will take office next January. Poorman himself was Mayor through political accident, his Republican opponent, Adam W. Oberlin, disappearing in a mysterious manner a few weeks before Election Day, not to be found until months later, a victim of aphasia.

ADRIATIC MUDDLE REPORTED CLEARING

MILLO QUITS AS 'GOVERNOR'

Socialist Paper in Rome Asserts d'Annunzio Plans Surprise Descent on Trieste.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Considerable improvement in the Adriatic situation is reported here as a result of conversations in Paris between British, French, Italian and Jugoslav representatives. The latest indications are there is a possibility of a compromise settlement satisfactory to all parties, including Captain Gabriele d'Annunzio.

ROME, Nov. 26.—Rear Admiral Enrico Millo, commander of the occupation forces in Dalmatia, who was appointed "Governor" of that country by d'Annunzio, whose cause he espoused when the poet arrived to seize Zara, has resigned the latter post.

Premier Nitti held a long conference yesterday with Camille Barrère, the French Ambassador, according to an announcement made by the Epoca.

The Socialist organ Avanti today warns the Government that Gabriele d'Annunzio is preparing a surprise descent on Trieste. The newspaper says that d'Annunzio abandoned his original intention of effecting a landing at Ancona, but recently sent emissaries to sound local officers at Trieste, giving ground for the belief that the poet is aiming at the establishment there of a militarist government.

Major Giurati, Chief of Gabriele d'Annunzio's Cabinet, who recently came to Rome on a mission to discuss the Fiume question with the Italian authorities, left last night to return to Fiume, the Tempo announces. The newspaper adds that the impression is that his mission was a complete failure.

PARIS, Nov. 26—Jugoslav headquarters in Paris learns from Spalato, by way of Belgrade, that d'Annunzio proposes to return to Zara with strong forces and proceed thence to Sebenico, after which he will attack Spalato.

The Italian Admiral Millo is said to have given his word of honor that all Dalmatia would be occupied by d'Annunzio's volunteers and become wholly Italian under the King of Italy. Rosali, Ghirardi, if soldeli, are to be starved into submission, and Jugoslav functionaries who refuse the oath of allegiance to the King of Italy will be expelled.

The Italian squadrons at Genoa and Smyrna, it is reported, have placed themselves under the orders of d'Annunzio and Millo for the operations in Dalmatia.

ROME'S POLITICAL INTEREST

It Rises to Fever Heat Over Approaching Opening of Parliament.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Nov. 26.—As the day for the opening session of the Twenty-fifth Legislature approaches the demands for permits to attend it become more insistent and numerous. If one may judge from the number of applications, at least half the population of Rome is desirous to witness this historic sitting. Curiosity is especially roused by the rumors which have been in circulation concerning the intentions of the Socialists to be present during the King's speech and to prevent him from delivering his address by hooting and hissing. This contingency, however, seems remote, as the proletariat understands that such action would only harm its cause, probably bringing about a reaction in the Chamber and uniting all other parties against it.

So far as is known, the King will drive in the customary court coach to Parliament, followed by other members of the royal house, while the Queen will witness the opening from her private box.

The new Parliament Building, which is not yet entirely completed, is being hastily prepared to receive the Sovereign. The regulation red carpet is being put down in the corridors through which the King will pass; his armchair, surmounted by the crown, has been placed on the dais, while palms, busts, and statues are being removed from the old Parliament Building to decorate the still bare new structure.

The speech which the King will deliver is the subject of much conjecture. Many are wondering whether he will touch on the political, internal, and international situations and will give an indication of his personal opinion on the line the Cabinet ought to adopt in this difficult moment. The majority believe he will limit himself to exhorting all parties to work toward the same end—the restoration of all industries and commerce, which had to be stopped during the war, and to the reconstruction of the devastated provinces; in fact, the restoration of the country to its former state of peace and prosperity.

Probably the most critical and important sittings will be those immediately after the opening day, as the Socialists will then be unrestrained by the King's presence, and probably will put down their cards, revealing their intentions. The Nationalists and other parties may ask the Cabinet to find an immediate solution of the Adriatic question, which they say cannot drag on much longer without endangering the safety of the whole Kingdom.

BRITISH LABOR UNION CRISIS

"Triple Alliance" May Split Over Dispute About Railway Strike.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The Daily Express says that a crisis has occurred within the labor "Triple Alliance" and that it is possible that developments in the immediate future may result in the breakup of the most powerful trade union combination this country has ever seen. A meeting of the executives of the three constituent organizations—the Miners' Federation, the National Union of Railwaymen, and the Transport Workers' Federation—will be held in London tomorrow and a stormy gathering is expected.

The Daily Express adds that the crisis has arisen out of the recent railway strike. It is contended by the railwaymen that the procedure rendered the "coalition" weapon useless and wrecked their nationalization plans.

The Daily Chronicle's labor correspondent says:

"For some weeks past the miners and transport workers sections of the triple alliance have not been altogether satisfied with the action of railwaymen in undertaking a 'lightning' strike without consulting their colleagues and the matter will be raised at tomorrow's meeting.

"Messrs. Thomas and Smillie declined to say anything today, but other members of the alliance declared that friendly criticism of action of the railwaymen would not be allowed to interfere with the work of the alliance, nor would it endanger the existence of that body."

Got a Souvenir from the Prince.

Just after the reception on the battle cruiser Renown last Saturday the Prince of Wales sent a midshipman to request W. A. McCusker, manager of the Waldorf-Astoria, to go to his quarters. After thanking the manager for the care that has been taken of himself and his suite at the hotel, the Prince presented Mr. McCusker with a silver matchbox engraved with his coat-of-arms and the initial letter "E" in token of his appreciation.

Paris Dance Halls Closed to Save Coal Consumption

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—The boulevards, Montmartre and all the play places of Paris are disconsolate today. Since the fighting stopped a year ago Paris has been dance crazy. Today the Government ordered all dance resorts closed to save coal. No more of the nightly balls; no more pushing back of tables in the big restaurants; no more jazz bands! Lack of coal has put the lid on dancing until further notice.

Last night all the dance places from Harry Pilcer's Apollo to Montmartre's humblest "bal" were going full blast. This morning the order went forth to close them and spread sorrow in its wake. Frantic appeals were sent to the Prefect of Police, but he didn't dance, he said, and he had to carry out his orders.

GOT MOUNTAIN MAPS FOR VON BERNSTORFF

Witness Also Marked Trail for Him Near the Scene of the Murder Mystery.

Special to The New York Times.

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 26.—Before completing his presentation of evidence concerning the mysterious murder of Dr. William K. Dean at East Jaffrey, N. H., in August, 1918, before Governor Bartlett and his Council in the hope of obtaining official prosecution of the case, Bert Ford, the Boston newspaper investigator, told of visits of Count von Bernstorff, former German Ambassador to the United States, to Dublin, N. H., a few miles distant from the scene of the murder.

Ford asserted that von Bernstorff and other prominent Germans held many mysterious conferences in the hotels and inns in that mountain region in the Fall of 1916. Not long after these alleged visits mysterious lights began to flash from the peaks of Mount Monadnock and other nearby mountains. These were believed to have been the signals of German agents. It is contended that because of the untiring efforts of Dr. Dean in attempting to determine the source of these mysterious lights he was murdered and his body thrown into an abandoned well.

Charles Bean, a former nurse, now employed at East Jaffrey, alleges he aided several men, apparently Germans, in what he supposed was the marking of a trail, and that during one of these trips he overheard one of the men addressed as "Bernstorff," and later, on seeing a picture of Ambassador von Bernstorff, recognized him as the man he "had out with him that day." Bean stated that he was paid well and was hired for the work only after he had assured the men that he did not speak German. He also procured maps of the immediate country for them.

Ford showed the Council how Bean's testimony was corroborated by Charles Thomas, former telephone operator at Dublin, who served with distinction in France. Thomas said:

"I got a tip that Ambassador von Bernstorff was in town from the chauffeur who drove him. The funny part of it was that messages came for him by telephone and telegraph from New York and Washington under a different name. I wondered why he should be here incog."

The German Ambassador who von Bernstorff succeeded spent his Summers at Dublin.

ARREST BOYS IN BOND THEFT

17-Year-Old Youth Says He Stole It from a Sailor.

A $1,000 bond, part of $32,000 worth of securities lost Sept. 15 by L. M. Prince & Co. of 20 Broad Street, when a messenger to whom they had been intrusted failed to return, was recovered yesterday by the police in the arrest of Irving Rubin and George Cohen, both 17 years old and both living in Englewood, N. J. This is the fifth arrest made since the bonds were taken, and in each case the prisoners have said they stole the bonds or securities found on them from a sailor.

Detective August Mayer and Gordon Browne, who arrested the youths, said Rubin told them that a few weeks ago a sailor checked a small package at the cloakroom of the Manhattan terminal of the Fort Lee Ferry, where Rubin was employed as clerk. A week ago the sailor wrote, saying he would call for the package, which he described as very valuable. Rubin said he opened it and found it contained "a lot of bonds and stuff." Before he rewrapped it, he said, he took a $1,000 Interborough Rapid Transit bond. The sailor redeemed the package without opening it, he told the police.

Rubin said he showed the bond last Sunday to Cohen, a friend, who agreed to dispose of it. Cohen yesterday visited the brokerage office of Jones & Baker, at 50 Fifth Avenue. They took the bond and told him to return later for his money. The brokers checked up the bond with the list of lost or stolen securities supplied by the police, and discovered it belonged to L. M. Prince & Co. Cohen was arrested when he returned. At the Central Office, according to the detectives, he made a confession implicating Rubin, who was arrested while waiting for Cohen.

PARK BENJAMIN OBJECTS.

Disavows Opposition to His Niece's Marriage to Preston Gibson.

In answer to the declaration of William E. Benjamin that his entire family objected to the marriage of his daughter, Mrs. Beatrice Benjamin Pratt, to Preston Gibson, his brother, Park Benjamin, has written a letter to Mr. Gibson in which he expresses the friendliest sentiments and a desire not to be included among that number. Mrs. Gibson's parents had made a public declaration of disapproval and had asked the Supreme Court to allow them to resign as trustees of a $200,000 trust fund created by Mrs. Gibson for the benefit of her two children, Cynthia Pratt and Dallas Pratt.

The letter from the bride's uncle to Mr. Gibson quotes the petition to the court that "the marriage was contracted against the wishes and in spite of the protest of all the members of her family, including these plaintiffs," and adds: "If this refers to my niece's immediate family it includes besides the petitioners no one else but her brother, and should have been so limited. Without such limitation it obviously includes the family of her father, and this is confirmed by reported outgivings in the newspapers by W. E. Benjamin in which, still without limitations, he assumes to express the disapproval of the 'entire Benjamin family.' As to the senior members of that family will you permit me to say to you, as I have to others, that I wholly disassociate myself from that assertion."

A suit was filed by Mrs. Gibson's father against her on Tuesday for the recovery of $10,000 due on four promissory notes of $2,500 each, made last March and payable in four months. Mr. Benjamin at his home last night refused to make any comment on the letter to Mr. Gibson.

JURY NOT EAGER FOR BATTLE NOW

HE ACCEPTS APPOINTMENT

CHANCE OF MORE FRICTION

Jury Said to Feel That Attorney General Should Have Been Chosen Instead.

In compliance with the request of Governor Alfred E. Smith, District Attorney Swann appointed George Gordon Battle a Special Assistant District Attorney yesterday to act as legal adviser to the Extraordinary Grand Jury in its proposed investigation of municipal departments and the office of the County Prosecutor.

Notification of the appointment was sent to Mr. Battle in Atlantic City. The lawyer immediately offered his services to the jury and last night made public a copy of this telegram to Foreman Raymond F. Almirall:

"I suggest that I be sent a stenographic transcript of the proceedings before the Grand Jury up to this time, so that I may familiarize myself with what has taken place up to this time."

Mr. Battle said he had received this reply:

"Your request will be placed before the Grand Jury when they meet on Friday."

Previous to this message Mr. Battle notified Governor Smith, District Attorney Swann and Justice Weeks that he would accept the appointment. He also made a similar announcement to Mr. Almirall, but the latter, in his reply, apparently made no mention of acceptance by the jury, pending its next session.

Mrs. Battle is ill, and Mr. Battle had arranged to remain with her at Atlantic City until Sunday or Monday, but he notified the jury he was ready to appear before them Friday, if requested. To this he received no answer.

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 24.

After Christmas it is intended, starting with Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill., and continuing west, to visit the following places:

Rock Island Arsenal; Camp Dodge, Des Moines; Omaha, Nebr.; Fort Leavenworth, Kan.; Camp Funston, Fort Riley, Kan.; Denver; Fort D. A. Russell, Cheyenne; Fort Douglas, Salt Lake City; Portland, Ore.; Camp Lewis, American Lake, Wash.; Mather Field, Sacramento; Headquarters Western Department, San Francisco; Arcadia and Marsh Fields, Los Angeles; Camp Kearny, San Diego; Douglas, Ariz.; Camp Boyd, El Paso; Camp Travis, Camp Normoyle, Camp Stanley, Kelly Field, San Antonio (also Headquarters Southern Department); Ellington Field, Houston; Fort Sill, Okla.; Camp Pike, Little Rock, and return to Washington, D. C.

As soon thereafter as possible General Pershing will inspect the posts to the north and east of Washington.

It is General Pershing's plan to spend two days, Dec. 20 and 21, at the headquarters of the Central Department, Chicago, of which Major Gen. Leonard Wood is commander. Thence he will go via St. Louis to Leslie, Mo., where he will visit relatives. He will arrive at Lincoln, Nebr., on Christmas Eve to spend the holidays with his son, Warren Pershing, and with his two sisters, Mrs. Butler and Miss Pershing.

Before starting General Pershing will complete and deliver to the War Department his final report on the operations of the A. E. F. in France.

He authorized the statement today that he is desirous of making a most thorough inspection of all military establishments in the country so that he may make concrete recommendations asked for by Secretary Baker in connection with proposed army legislation.

The Pershing party will probably travel in a special car and will consist of General Fox Conner, chief of staff; General George Van Horne Moseley, supply officer; General Dennis Nolan, chief intelligence officer; Colonel Edgar T. Collins, who will pay particular attention to training conditions; Colonel Henry Beeuwkes of the Medical Corps; Colonel John G. Quekemeyer, Colonel George Marshall, Jr., and Colonel John Bowditch, Jr., and stenographers and enlisted men.

CHICAGO SCHOOL HEAD OUT.

Superintendent Chadsey Resigns After Being Shorn of Powers.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Dr. Charles E. Chadsey today voluntarily resigned as Superintendent of Schools after eight months of controversy in which he took little active part. The Board of Education yesterday virtually sheared him of all administrative power.

It transferred most of his duties to Peter A. Mortensen, who had been Assistant Superintendent.

"It is hard to conceive that the board would emasculate permitting me to remain in my office and draw $1,600 a month and do nothing in return," said Dr. Chadsey.

AMBULANCES OUT FOR FUND

Vehicles Advertise Hospitals Drive by Parade.

Ambulances from each of the forty-six nonmunicipal hospitals in the city toured the streets yesterday to aid the campaign for the $1,000,000 fund needed to meet the deficit of these hospitals this year. From Harlem to the Battery the ambulances paraded, fourteen forming an impromptu flying squadron which shattered speed records in the heavy traffic of Fifth Avenue and Broadway, finally breaking through the crowded curb market on Broad Street.

The traffic police co-operated all along the route, signaling traffic toward the curb as the ambulances approached. Each machine carried a United Hospital Fund campaign poster with the slogan "Every year nearly a million sick who are too poor to pay need hospital care. That care costs the hospitals $3.50 a day a patient. Give them a chance!"

The campaign has been extended until Dec. 3 to insure the $1,000,000 minimum. Pledged and cash subscriptions of approximately $700,000 have been reported.

NEWARK'S GAS RATES STAND

State Board Answers City Commissioners' Protest Against Rise.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 26.—An answer to the protest of the Newark Board of Public Utility Commissioners against the rise in gas rates allowed in that city was made public today by John W. Slocum, President of the State Board of Public Utility Commissioners. President Slocum said that his board had no authority to require a gas company to furnish gas at a rate that was unreasonably low.

He advised the Newark Commissioners to read the findings of the State Board in its hearings on the gas rate, and then to take legal action if they still thought the rate "unjust, unreasonable and exorbitant." It was his contention that it was unreasonable to require the company, in view of increased operating cost, to continue furnishing gas at 90 cents, the rate fixed in 1912.

THIRD TRIAL FOR ANSELMO.

Juries Disagree Twice in Barrel Murder—Three Sentenced.

Although Givannia Anselmo has been on trial twice for alleged complicity in the Brooklyn "barrel murder mystery," Justice Cropsey in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court yesterday refused an application for the dismissal of the indictment charging first degree murder. Anselmo must stand trial again although the two previous juries have disagreed.

He has been held by the Kings County authorities since Nov. 7, 1918, when the body of Gasarino Candello was found in a barrel in an empty lot in South Brooklyn. It is alleged that Anselmo was one of a gang of twelve men who murdered Candello in a house at 353 Hicks Street, Brooklyn.

Three men convicted of manslaughter in the first degree were sentenced yesterday by Justice Cropsey to serve from ten to twenty years in Sing Sing. Joseph McFaul of 24 Chapel Street, Brooklyn, was convicted of complicity in the murder of John Fitzgerald in a pool room fight in Carlton Avenue, Brooklyn, on May 27 last. Charles Passarelli and James Mongelli were charged with the murder of Giro Accouzzo, a butcher, on Dec. 7 last.

KEMP PUTS BLAME ON MOTHER-IN-LAW

WOULDN'T CALL IN DOCTOR

Edward Aspinwall Kemp, son of the late William Kemp, and partner in Lanman & Kemp, wholesale drugs, at 139 Water Street, filed an answer in the Supreme Court yesterday to the suit of Mrs. Josephine DeMott Kemp for a separation on the ground of non-support.

He alleged that his mother-in-law's belief in Christian Science separated him and his wife, and for the benefit of his health his doctor advised him to go to an island he owns in Lake George, where he still is. He left his wife and her mother in the Kemp country place on Rumson Road, Seabright, N. J.

Mr. Kemp, who is a member of several clubs, said in his answer that his wife always had been obedient and faithful since their marriage in 1881, with the exceptions set forth in his answer. He said he had not provided for her since July 1 because he deemed it better for the court to determine how much he should pay.

He admitted receiving $30,000 last year as his share of the profits of Lanman & Kemp, but did not believe he would receive as much this year. He also receives $2,500 a year from his father's estate. The answer read:

"The defendant, during all the years of his married life, has supported the plaintiff and their son and her mother, Mrs. Anna M. DeMott, and has largely supplied her with board and lodging. She is a believer in Christian Science. The plaintiff has been in ill health for many years and on two occasions has been seriously near death.

"The plaintiff and defendant went to their home on Rumson Road, Seabright, N. J., in June, 1919. The plaintiff was then very ill, and the local doctor for the family told the defendant he would not be performing his duties as a husband if he did not have Dr. MacNevin, a New York doctor who had been attending Mrs. Kemp, appoint a local doctor to attend her immediately, because she was likely to die at any moment. She would not consent, and the defendant believes her refusal was due to the Christian Science teaching of her mother, at that time with her.

"By reason of such conditions, the defendant himself became ill, worried and sick, came to New York for treatment, and was advised to go to the woods to be relieved of all responsibility, care and worry, and acting on the said advice the defendant has temporarily removed himself to these surroundings.

"During the time the plaintiff and his wife lived together with his mother-in-law they had great difficulty keeping servants through the interference of Mrs. DeMott."

ORANGE MARMALADE

THE OPERA

By Richard Aldrich

"L'Oracolo" and "Pagliacci."

Suitable companion pieces to "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci" are indispensable at the Opera House; for those two masterpieces cannot always be joined together for an evening's entertainment. Hence Franco Leoni's little one-act thriller, "L'Oracolo," has acquired a merit in the eyes of the authorities somewhat beyond its intrinsic worth as music, or as a vivid piece of melodrama, and has persisted in the repertory. Last evening it was given with "Pagliacci" before a large audience more especially prepared to hear and applaud Mr. Caruso in the latter half of the evening.

"L'Oracolo" is presented now even more effectively than it wa sin the beginning of its career at the Metropolitan; a performance of much finish, in which the most is made of all its striking points. Changes in the cast have been an improvement. Mr. Harold makes a valuable contribution in his singing and acting as Win-San Luy; and Miss Jeanne Gordon in the minor part of Hua Quee confirmed the remarkably favorable impression she made on Saturday night as Azucena—a voice of beautiful quality presented to good advantage and an intelligent participation in the action; on the whole, an unusually promising accession to the company. The interest in the piece, of course, centres in Mr. Scotti's extraordinary impersonation of the stealthy malignity of the villainous Chim Fang, an impersonation that has been wrought to the highest pitch of finish and intensity.

"Pagliacci" presented a group of familiar figures, headed by Mr. Caruso. Mr. Amato returned after a year's absence to the part of Tonio, in which his singing was better than it was on Saturday evening, when he made his first reappearance, serving to allay to a certain extent some of the fears that his friends and admirers have felt as to the condition of his voice. Mr. Caruso was as prodigal as ever in his outpourings; and so was Miss Muzio—more so than she could afford to be. There was much applause.

The pageant "Perils and Triumphs of Democracy" that was recently presented by the pupils of Morris High School in the auditorium of the school will be repeated on Tuesday evening. The pageant is part of the school's contribution to the work of spreading Americanism.

Rules Craps Game Is Not Crime.

Saying that he saw no violation of the law in men "shooting craps," Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan in the Essex Market Court yesterday dismissed the charge of disorderly conduct made against twenty-five men arrested in a basement adjoining the Essex Market Court on Second Street.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

There will be a show at the Strand Theatre tomorrow morning for the benefit of the Seaside Home for Crippled Children at Arverne, L. I. The program will be made up of motion pictures and music, with "Mickey," the melodrama in which Mabel Normand plays the leading role, at the top of the bill.

"The Whirlwind," by George C. Hazelton and Ritter Brown, will be produced in Pittsburgh on Dec. 8 by John Cort. Mimi Aguglia, the Sicilian actress, will have the leading role.

"Robin Hood" will be continued a second week at the Park Theatre, and "The Gondoliers" will be sung on Dec. 8.

Beatrice Collenette, a member of Pavlowa's ballet in London, has arrived here from England and will join the cast of "See-Saw" on Saturday afternoon.

A performance will be given at the Selwyn Theatre on Sunday afternoon in aid of the building fund of the Beth David Hospital.

Those who will appear include Irving Berlin, Herbert Corthell, Donald Brian, Peggy Wood, Roland Young, Ted Lewis, and others.

The leading feminine part in "Monsieur Beaucaire," sung by Maggie Teyte in London, will be played in the production at the New Amsterdam by Blanche Tomlin. She is an English singer who was heard on the American concert stage eight years ago.

The rebuilt Little Theatre is announced to open on Christmas Day with "Seven Miles to Arden," the Anna Nichols comedy.

"Opportunity," a drama by John T. Glynn, has been accepted for immediate production by William A. Brady.

Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan will attend the opening of the Elsie Janis show at the Cohan on Monday night.

"The Crimson Alibi" will open at the Strand Theatre, London, on Saturday night of this week.

Josephine Lucchese, Soprano, Sings.

Josephine Lucchese, soprano, young in years and artistic experience, appeared in Aeolian Hall yesterday, assisted by J. M. Acuna, piano, and H. Heidelberg, flute. Her clear, fresh voice has been too early trained along operatic lines, as in the florid airs from "Magic Flute," "Sommambula," and "Pearl of Brazil," for which a beginner on the stage finds few opportunities. There were lighter songs, more suited to the intimate hall and to the girlish singer, who gave "When I Was Seventeen," a Swedish folktune, in English, and others, such as Branscombe's "Happiness" and Brewer's "Fairy Pipers."

Hold Men for Woman's Death.

Two men were held without bail yesterday on a charge of murder, in the death of Mrs. Dorothy Daubenschmidt of 308 Ninth Street, Hoboken. The woman was found dead from asphyxiation in her home last Sunday. The men are Henry Ahlers of 224 Madison Street, and John Roggerman, a saloonkeeper of Ferry and Madison Streets, Hoboken. Three women witnesses were paroled in the custody of Chief of Police Hayes as material witnesses.

ASK RULING ON KREISLER.

American Legion Local Branch Was Ordered to Revoke Invitation.

County officers of the American Legion at a meeting yesterday asked their national headquarters for an interpretation of the ruling against foreigners, by which the local branch was ordered to revoke an invitation to Fritz Kreisler, the violinist, to appear at the legion's benefit at the Hippodrome on Dec. 28. At the same time, it was said that a prior claim for the big house on that date was held by the Big Brothers for a different charity.

To accommodate the legion, it has been proposed to delay the Big Brothers' benefit until March, but the Catholic Big Brothers objected to such change, as their entertainment would then take place in Lent. At the Hippodrome last night, Mark Luescher said if the Big Brothers held their original date, the legion benefit would have to be postponed until much later in the season's crowded calendar.

Gov. Smith's Mother Still Very Ill.

Mrs. Catherine Smith, mother of Governor Alfred E. Smith, who has been seriously ill with pneumonia and pleurisy at her home, 9 Middagh Street, Brooklyn, passed a restless night Tuesday night, according to a statement issued yesterday by the family physician, Dr. John H. Reb of 328 Jay Street, Brooklyn. Dr. Reb said that his patient was not yet out of danger, but that it would be possible to tell within the next three or four days whether she would recover. He said that two nights of real rest would practically assure her getting well.

Why Be Like the Sphinx?

The Sphinx, with all its wisdom, looks only to the East. It has no vision for the South, North or West. Many people are like the Sphinx in that they look continually and narrowly in one direction.

NELSON'S LOOSE-LEAF ENCYCLOPAEDIA embraces the circle of the whole World in its information. Those who form the habit of its use acquire the World-wide vision.

The remarkable events that are being enacted in our day have brought every man and woman of the United States in close touch with all other peoples and countries. The Great War has made us citizens of the world.

WANING GRIDIRON SEASON PROVIDES SOME THANKSGIVING DAY CONTESTS OF IMPORTANCE

TASTY DISHES SET FOR GRIDIRON FANS

CORNELL MEETS OLD PENN

Penn State-Pittsburgh, Columbia-Brown, and Syracuse-Nebraska Games Are Scheduled.

There was a time when Thanksgiving Day meant the climax of the football season for a majority of the schools and colleges of America. Then gradually the demands of turkey dinners and the uncertainties of weather conditions induced many of the contenders to finish up their schedules on the preceding Saturday, and for many years this date stood as the real climax. But on the backlots and in the out-of-the-way corners Thanksgiving Day still meant football and plenty of it, and the tradition was never allowed to die completely.

This year the old custom returns with greater force than ever before, a record-breaking list of important contests being scheduled this afternoon on the various gridirons of the country. The University of Pennsylvania and Cornell, two institutions which from time immemorial have represented the top-notch of Thanksgiving Day football, still head the long list of entries with their annual clash on Franklin Field, at Philadelphia, but these traditional rivals have real competition today in their bid for public interest.

Big Local Game Today.

Right here in New York an unusually interesting game is promised at South Field, where Columbia University meets Brown in the local team's hardest test of a disastrous season. Metropolitan football fans will also have a chance to see the New York Aggies and Villanova battle over at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, while the two best school teams in this vicinity, De Witt Clinton and the High School of Commerce, meet in a final championship contest at the Polo Grounds.

In the South, Georgetown and Centre College have scheduled a significant meeting, with Vanderbilt also drawn against the University of the South, and Virginia Military Institute against Virginia Polytechnic. Eastern eyes will likewise turn toward the West, with Syracuse playing Nebraska University out at Lincoln, and various other teams of that section deciding minor differences of their own. It is altogether the biggest football Thanksgiving Day in years.

The Penn-Cornell battle has been Philadelphia's own pet sporting event as long as the Quakers can remember, and even though the two teams may not be evenly matched, the game is invariably considered the classic of the season. Moreover, it is one of those affairs that cannot be considered in the light of comparative scores or past performances. In many cases the acknowledged under-dog has emerged an unexpected winner, and rarely, if ever, have advances prophecies proved at all reliable.

Penn Presents Unusual Strength.

Pennsylvania has this season an unquestionably strong football machine. Some people still think that the Red and Blue team is the best in the East, although it was defeated by Penn State and Dartmouth, and tied by Pittsburgh. The first defeat, however, came on a wet field, largely as the result of a fumbled kick, while the second represented merely a difference in the ability of individuals to kick goals after touchdowns, each side scoring three times. Penn's forward passing attack in the Dartmouth game was a thing of beauty, and completely baffled the Green representatives, as it had earlier baffled so strong a combination as Lafayette. There were weaknesses in the Red and Blue defense, particularly in the lack of a dependable man to stop touchdowns when a runner got clear of the line and its secondary supporters. Penn has also shown need of a drop-kicker, but it is said that this deficiency has been remedied by the discovery of unusual drop-kicking talents on the part of "Bots" Brunner, who already has won fame as a punter, a line-player, and a thrower and receiver of forward passes. In "Hobey" Light Pennsylvania has another back-field man who can do practically anything, and "Heinie" Miller is certainly one of the best ends of the year.

Cornell Has Shown Weaknesses.

Cornell, on the other hand, has been distinctly a weak eleven all season, with only Captain Shiverick and Full Back Schuler as dependable stars. The Ithacans were badly beaten by Lafayette, which Pennsylvania defeated just as easily, and also suffered a worse drubbing at the hands of the Penn State and Dartmouth. Seen at the Polo Grounds against the Hanoverians, they looked like a strong, game aggregation, willing enough, but without great football knowledge. Their line was steady on defense, from tackle to tackle, but there was little visible in the way of an attack. Cornell's greatest need at that time seemed to be a dependable thrower of forward passes, and this may have been remedied since.

In any case, however, the team from "far above Cayuga's waters" is always a different proposition when facing the University of Pennsylvania, and there is no way of telling what surprises may be sprung by a desperate eleven on Franklin Field. If Pennsylvania uses everything at her disposal, which she should, and if Cornell is as weak as she has seemed all season, a record-breaking score may be run up by the pets of Quakertown. Only by an impressively one-sided victory can the Pennsylvanians justify the claims that are still made for them, and it is likely that they will try everything in their bundle of tricks.

Penn State Has Good Record.

If Penn State can win from Pittsburgh on Forbes Field today her footballers can proudly point to one of the best records in the East, marred only by a close defeat at the hands of Dartmouth, and including victories over Pennsylvania, Lehigh and Cornell. Warner's team is no longer in the best of shape, and it would not be at all surprising to find Captain Higgins and his men closing their season with a spectacular triumph over the Panthers.

The West Virginia-Washington and Jefferson affair looks like a toss-up. Both teams have trampled roughly upon some of the strongest representatives of Eastern football, the former including Princeton and Rutgers among its victims, and the latter Syracuse. The Presidents, however, lost to Pittsburgh, while the Mountaineers have bowed to Centre College, which today tackles Georgetown in a game which may affect the Eastern standing quite significantly. With a victory over Annapolis to its credit, Georgetown is in a position to gather considerably more prestige by a similar feat against Centre College today.

Hard Test for Syracuse.

Out in Nebraska Syracuse faces an even harder test than in last Saturday's game against Indiana. If O'Neill's men can come through with a victory this afternoon the unexpected reserve at the hands of the Hoosiers may be forgotten, although both of these post-season games must be considered an unnecessary burden for a team whose greatness has already been well established. Syracuse has been criticised for undertaking this Western trip after proving its clear title to one of the highest places in the Eastern ranking, yet one cannot help admiring the willingness to take a chance in intersectional battles after completing a terrific schedule, with a long railroad trip in addition. It is doubtful whether any other team of the year has undertaken quite as big an assignment as Syracuse, and certainly none could have made a better showing under the circumstances.

Columbia Looks Easy For Brown.

There should be some good football in and near New York today. Brown University is reputed to have a highly finished eleven, full of football knowledge in spite of a series of defeats by the leading elevens. The Providence men got ample vengeance for their early reverses when they upset Dartmouth in the Green's final game of the year. On paper, Columbia would seem to have little chance against this formidable combination, but Brown has suffered some injuries which will keep several of her stars out of the lineup, and the local university is quite likely to spring something of a surprise in a final effort to win the respect of the metropolitan fans.

The High School battle at the Polo Grounds should draw a number of interested spectators, and good football is promised also in Brooklyn, when the New York Aggies meet the strong eleven of Villa Nova College.

GRIDIRON HOPES AT C.C.N.Y.

Plan to Raise Funds in Belief That Faculty Will Lift Ban.

Professor Erastus M. Palmer, Chairman of the Faculty Athletic Committee of the College of the City of New York, stated yesterday that the committee had as yet made no decision on the petition for the reinstatement of football presented by the student body on Tuesday, but that Dr. Frederick A. Woll, acting director of the hygiene department, had been appointed a committee of one to prepare a budget on the probable cost of outfitting the initial team, enclosing the stadium, securing a coach, and finding out what provision would be made by the Dean's office to permit men to practice every afternoon. Professor Palmer stated that it would probably be a month before Dr. Woll would be able to make up his report to be submitted to the committee for action.

What is regarded as indicating eventual affirmative action on the petition by the Faculty Athletic Committee is the fact that Sidney Unger, Chairman of the Student Committee, was yesterday instructed by Dr. Woll to continue his preparations for the football fund campaign.

Accordingly, Unger has called a meeting of his committee tomorrow morning in the A. A. room in the gymnasium. The other members are Arthur Taft, President of the Student Council, and Albert Schweizer, business manager of the college's weekly newspaper.

It is expected that the committee will adopt various plans for the campaign. Unger stated yesterday that the week before the Christmas holidays has been selected to launch the campaign. Two canvassing committees will be appointed, one to work among the students, and the other among the alumni and faculty. The campaign's goal is $10,000.

ARMY-NAVY GAME PLANS.

Traffic Arrangements Completed—Polo Grounds Open at 11 o'Clock.

The traffic arrangements for the Army-Navy football game at the Polo Grounds on Saturday were completed yesterday. All automobile traffic on Eighth Avenue will be stopped at 155th Street and no automobile will be permitted on the Speedway. More than 45,000 tickets have been disposed of by the Army and Navy athletic associations and by the New York Club. Secretary John B. Foster said yesterday that approximately 123,000 tickets and most of these applications, with the checks accompanying them, are now in the mails to be returned to the applicants.

The gates at the Polo Grounds will open at 11 o'clock and the cadets are expected to march into the stadium at 12:45. They will drill on the field before taking their seats. The midshipmen will come in later. They expect to march from the North River at 158th Street not later than 1:30.

PENN AND CORNELL WILL CLASH TODAY

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 26.—While neither the Pennsylvania nor Cornell football squad is within reach of the public here tonight, the old city is wrapped up in its usual Thanksgiving Eve spirit. The Red and Blue squad, numbering twenty-five men, and staff of coaches have been at the White Marsh Valley Country Club, ten miles from the city atmosphere, since Monday. The Ithacans arrived at Atlantic City early this morning, only to find that rain was falling, necessitating their final rehearsal indoors. This was held at the armory of the Morris Guards at the resort.

The Pennsylvanians closed their outside work this afternoon with a short signal drill, return of punts, and practice of recovering the ball on fumbles under a slight drizzle which fell across the broad links of the countryside.

The consensus of opinion here tonight is that the game will start on Franklin Field tomorrow with the teams at even terms, owing to the condition of the field, which may be sloppy, despite the fact that the caretakers of Old Penn's pasture have been spreading hay and straw over the playing field since rain began to fall last night. The football critics of this section who have followed the work of the Quakers are not giving any odds that they will win, having seen how the team went to pieces on bad ground.

Coach Bob Folwell believes Cornell will spring a strong eleven against his on the morrow. He selected his lineup and gave this combination and many second-string men a long talk on what they might expect from Speedy Rush's heavier eleven.

The Quakers fear that Captain Shiverick will outkick them if the situation dwindles down to field goal margins. Brunner and Bell are the men on whom Penn will rely if such a contest is staged, which is the chief topic here this evening.

The backfield was subject to a slight change this afternoon, when Straus, the Texan, was put in Derr's place for the getaway tomorrow. The back field which will start worked out this afternoon, with Captain Bell directing the combination, consisting of Straus, Light, and Brunner. Light is in better shape than he has been since the Lafayette game. Brunner's punting will uphold the Quakers to a great measure, and doubtless there will be plenty of it, provided the field is bad under foot.

Cornell was somewhat encouraged today by the appearance of Al Sharpe, former coach, who recently completed a rather disappointing season at Yale. Chuck Barrett, who was instrumental in beating Penn by a wide margin four years ago, joined the coaching staff.

Gathered from the formations seen in mock scrimmage indoors, it is reasonable to predict that Cornell will work a great deal on the aerial route, with Shiverick operating as a combination man. An open game is generally expected, although Penn will depend upon Joe Straus and Light on line plays:

The probable lineups:

PENN.		CORNELL.
Hopper	L. E.	Hoff
Tilsel	L. T.	Kraus
Thomas	L. G.	A. Straus
L. Wray	C.	Horrell
Neylon	R. G.	Miller
Little	R. T.	Sutton
H. Miller	R. E.	Flinn
Bell	Q. B.	Shiverick
J. Straus	L. H. B.	Cary
Brunner	R. H. B.	Mayer
Light	F. B.	Shuler

CORNELL PLANS AIR ATTACK.

Coach Speedy Rush Has Bundle of Surprises for Penn.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 26.—Cornell received its final touches here today for the annual football classic with Pennsylvania tomorrow on Franklin Field. The big Red eleven, at its best form of any time this season, is confident of a good showing if not a victory over the Red and Blue. Optimism reigns in the Ithacan camp. No one concedes defeat. The players realize that old Penn has a strong team, much better on paper than their own, and will go in with the determination to fight with the hopes of ending their season in a blaze of glory.

Coach Speedy Rush has a bundle of surprises to spring, it leaked out today. Captain Shiverick has been doing all the kicking this season, but there are dark horses in the back field who are almost as good in this department. Rush admits this fact, but only smiles when asked pointedly about the "finds."

"We are not expecting to get licked," declared Speedy Rush tonight, "but we know the strength of the team we are going up against. Cornell will be better tomorrow than at any time during the season. We have had an unfortunate season and the lineup was never the same for two games, this fact naturally affecting our team work. Our schedule was harder than ordinarily and we had battles every week which kept us keyed up to our best. Men were injured right along and this handicapped us. But Cornell will fight, and the score will tell the tale."

The Ithacans were put through a drill today on the million dollar pier. The workout was held in an auditorium a quarter of a mile over the ocean on account of the rain. Pickets kept a sharp watch to insure secrecy. It was hoped that a practice might be held at the Inlet Park, but the weather was too disagreeable.

Dr. Al H. Sharpe, Charlie Barrett, Captain of the 1915 eleven which defeated the Red and Blue, and Jimmie Munns, Captain of the 1913 team, helped in the last instructions. The grilling at the pier lasted for more than two hours. Captain Shiverick directed the "Varsity while Barrett piloted the second team. Every Penn player was diagnosed, and the second team imitated what may be expected from the Quakers.

Cornell places its hopes for a victory against Penn on a carefully prepared aerial attack. Shiverick will direct the offense, but he is not alone. It is understood that every man in the back field holds an equal part.

RAIN HANDICAPS WEST VA.

Mountaineers' Aerial Plays Against W. and J. Will Be Weaker.

Special to The New York Times.

MORGANTOWN, West Va., Nov. 26.—Both the West Virginia and Washington and Jefferson football teams worked out in the armory here tonight, the cold driving rain making it impossible for either McIntire or Morrow to take his men outside. Both practices were secret.

The betting clan gathered early tonight, but there was little wagering, the wet field making each host of supporters apparently wary. The mountaineers, with their brilliant forward passing attack, will be more handicapped by the muddy field than the visitors.

A volunteer brigade of 500 students held itself in readiness today to rush to the field with buckets, brooms, gasoline, and other materials to dry it, but not for a minute did the rain let up. Early this evening, however, it slackened and turned colder. Heroic efforts will be made to dry the playing surface tomorrow.

The coaches announced their lineups as follows:

Mills	L. E.	Loucks
Archer	L. T.	Henry
Ice	L. G.	Straw
Bailey	C.	Shields
Betron	R. G.	Garbisch
Harrick	R. T.	Stein

BROWN HERE TODAY TO FACE COLUMBIA

Both Elevens Will Miss Star Players, Yet Rhode Islanders Have Big Advantage.

For the second time in seventeen years Brown and Columbia will meet on the football gridiron when the two elevens clash this afternoon at 2 o'clock on South Field in a Thanksgiving Day battle. It will be the Rhode Island team's first invasion of New York in many years and its first tussle with Columbia since 1902, when the Blue and White, led by the famous Harold Weekes, locked horns with the Brunonians and lost, 28 to 0.

Both teams will go into the game with valuable stars missing as a result of injuries sustained in earlier contests on the schedule. The most conspicuous absentee on the Brown side will be Crowther, the first string quarter back, who was laid up in the Brown-Dartmouth game two weeks ago. Hoving, centre, and Brace, left guard, also received leg injuries in the same battle, although they probably will start today against Columbia. Johnstone and Sinclair, both from New York, will be at the tackles, Johnstone making his reappearance after a long stay on the disabled list.

Columbia will present nearly the same team that faced New York University last Saturday, the only change being the substitution of Tommy Farrell for Johnstone at left half back. Charlie Shaw, who has been out for several weeks, will not be in shape to start the game, and Quarter Back Eddie Quigley, after a trial of his injured knee yesterday afternoon, was pronounced unfit to face the Brown eleven. On top of this setback came the announcement that Frank Canapary, who made an eleventh hour application for reinstatement, had been refused by the University Committee on Athletics. After an informal meeting of the committee it was announced that the ban against the former Columbia Captain would not be lifted.

Coach Dawson at the last minute also decided to shift Sam Weinstein back to right end and to take another chance on Eccles at quarter back. In the back field with the latter will be Farrell and Mosscinski at half back, and Applebaum at full back. The line will be unchanged, and Scovil or Farrell probably will do the punting for the Blue and White, although Eccles may receive the assignment again.

The Brown team, led by Captain Ralph H. Nichols, arrived in the city last night. It was accompanied by a delegation of rooters who displayed a willingness to take wagers at any odds. Little Columbia money was in sight, however, and the Morningside eleven is hoping for little more than a close score against the conquerors of Dartmouth. Brown's reversal of form against New Hampshire State last Saturday, however, has raised the hopes of the Columbia student body and will make the outcome a little more uncertain than it otherwise would have been. The sale of tickets last night indicated that nearly a capacity crowd would see the tussle, which will be the only collegiate game in Manhattan today.

The probable lineups will be as follows:

COLUMBIA.		BROWN.
Kennedy	L. E.	Williams
Modarelli	L. T.	Sinclair
Forsyth	L. G.	Brace
Kleinhinger	C.	Hoving
Hinch	R. G.	Nichols
Scovil	R. T.	Johnstone
Weinstein	R. E.	Albright
Eccles	Q. B.	Fox
Farrell	L. H. B.	Brooks
Mosscinski	R. H. B.	Jemail
Applebaum	F. B.	Armstrong

STARS BARRED BY FACULTY.

Morrow and Dehart Fall Behind in Studies at Pittsburgh.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 26.—Coach Glenn Warner was taken off his feet today when he learned that Quarter Back Dehart and Right Half Back Jim Morrow had been debarred from all athletics by the faculty of the University of Pittsburgh on account of being back in their studies. It had not been expected that Dehart would play, anyway, but Warner was figuring on Morrow a great deal, as he was just rounding into good shape and looked much better last Saturday than he had all season. In fact, the team was made up yesterday afternoon with Morrow at right half and McCracken at quarter back, tentatively in the latter case, as it was still hoped that Dehart would get into the Penn State game, his farewell appearance.

There had been no intimation that the two players were behind in their studies until this morning. However, the athletic authorities are in full accord with the decision of the faculty, as it is well known that the University of Pittsburgh is one of the strictest in the country on this subject.

When the Panthers appeared on Forbes Field this afternoon in a driving rain they found the field nothing but a quagmire. Warner hunted up a semi-dry spot in the corner of the ball park and put the Blue and Gold through its last practice for the Penn State game tomorrow.

Ginn and Eckert were used at left end, and the latter will draw the assignment, while McCracken went to quarter back and Laughran to right half. There was no scrimmage, but some punting by Davies and Hastings, a few short end runs, and a thorough signal drill were held.

The spectators can look for a lot of new tricks by both sides tomorrow.

The Penn State team arrived here tonight in time to take part in the smoker and jollification staged by the alumni at the Fort Pitt Hotel, where speeches were made by several of the graduates and good wishes expressed for the team's welfare tomorrow. Pitt has defeated State six straight years, but Hugo Bezdek says this is his "lucky seventh."

The lineup will be as follows:

PITTSBURGH.		PENN STATE.
Eckert	L. E.	Brown
Harman	L. T.	Henry
Thomas	L. G.	Rauch
Stein	C.	Conover
McLean	R. G.	Osborn
Bond	R. T.	Cubbage
Ewing	R. E.	Higgins
McCracken	Q. B.	Robb
Davis	L. H. B.	Marr
Laughran	R. H. B.	Snell
Hastings	F. B.	Hess

ARMY HANDICAPPED BY RAINY WEATHER

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 26.—Wretched weather conditions interfered to no little extent with the Army eleven's football practice this afternoon. The field was a quagmire, and the big team was driven into the riding hall for the first half hour of its workout. There the light was very poor, and the men were sent out again into the mud and rain on the grass plain, where they floundered about until darkness set in.

The drill was of mighty little benefit to the soldiers, except as a rehearsal for any contingency which might make the footing at the Polo Grounds as treacherous as the West Point field today. In the riding hall the men ran signals and got a long position drill. On the plain they did some down-the-field work, the backs and ends going down under the kicks of McQuarrie and Lystad. There was dummy scrimmaging for the line, and the drill wound up with everybody hitting the blocking and tackling machines.

The uncertainty concerning the guard and end positions on the right side of the line was cleared up today. Vogel will play at guard and Blaik at the end position.

Vogel has played in practically all of the Army's games this year. He is undoubtedly more seasoned than the other aspirants, Herrick and Pitser, and will get the call. Vogel is the youngest man on the team, also the tallest. He is 19 years old and stands 6 feet 2 inches.

During the last couple of days, when the competition was keenest, Vogel made rapid strides, and will face the Navy at the kick-off with the satisfaction of knowing that he is the survival of the fittest in a fight which waxed hot during the last week.

Blaik Regains Form.

Blaik's early season work and his sudden return to form has governed the mentors in their choice of the auburn-thatched cadet from Michigan for the end position, the filling of which has caused no little worry for a fortnight. Blaik has all along been rated as the speediest man on the team, a hard tackler and a fair receiver of the forward pass, but his long illness made it very uncertain that he would be chosen to start in the position against the Navy.

With these two places filled, the Cadets' line-up for Saturday's game is not hard to forecast. Although no official announcement has been made of the Army line-up, close followers of the team expect Blaik and Kiefer to be the ends; Daniel and Travis, tackles; Vogel and Breidster, guards; Greene, centre; Wilhide, quarter back; McQuarrie and Schabacker, half backs, and Lystad, full back.

There will be as first-string substitutes for he backfield, Gregory, Dodd, Evans, and Warren as ball-carrying backs, with George, the Army Captain, and Whetton in reserve as quarter backs.

Army Not Optimistic.

While there is no desire to appear pessimistic, it is frankly admitted in the Army camp that the soldier eleven this year as it will face the Middies is not as strong as some West Point teams which have gone down to the Polo Grounds in late years. Folks here are devoid of the confident air which has been in evidence in former years on the eve of the Navy battle. Remembering that the material at the outset was the greenest that ever turned out for football here; that there are no cadets at the Academy who ever even saw a Navy game, the old-timers are wondering how the Army youngsters will act in a big fight.

The Navy team is not being underestimated; that much is certain. People who have seen the Middies play and know the possibilities of the Navy eleven are outspoken in their praise of the midshipmen.

Orders were issued today governing the advance movement on New York, which is set for Friday morning. Fifty-five members of the Army squad will go down accompanied by the coaches, a medical officer, Trainer Tuthill and attendants, arriving at Grand Central at 10:15 A. M.

The annual Thanksgiving Day game between the "Runts" and the "Flankers," the little men and the big men of the cadet corps, will be held tomorrow morning. Tradition, as old as West Point football, has it that if the "Runts" win the Army will beat the Navy. Therefore, the outcome is being awaited with no little interest among the cadets.

NAVY LINEUP NOT SETTLED.

Dobie Says He May Make Changes for Game with Army.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 26.—Secret football practice was held at the Naval Academy again this afternoon and a long session devoted to kicking, signal and formation work. The midshipmen will practice here tomorrow morning and on Friday on the Polo Grounds in New York. The regiment of midshipmen was out today in force to encourage the team.

Coach Dobie said this evening that some surprises might be expected when the team went on the field Saturday, and that he had not absolutely decided on those who will start the game. The whole right side of the line and two of the backs, he said, might not be the men who have been generally expected to start the game. He said frankly that he was considering replacing Clark at left half by either Rawlings or Rodes, and had not made a decision between Walter and Benoist at full back. Coach Dobie is far from satisfied with the work of Clark, and would not hesitate to start the game with Rawlings in his place if the latter's physical condition permitted.

In the line the changes contemplate dropping Captain Ewen and putting Lowe in his place, and also substituting Willkie for Moore at right guard, and Wiedorn for King at right tackle. Captain Ewen has not been in one of the really hard games this season, injury preventing his playing. Lowe and Park substituted for him. Lowe made an excellent showing and the coach declared today that he might put him in at the start. He weighs 164 pounds, six pounds less than Ewen.

Willkie, who may start at right guard instead of Moore, would add much weight to the centre of the line. He weighs 210 pounds, while Moore, though strong for his weight, weighs but 177 pounds. Willkie is the champion heavyweight wrestler of the academy, and has done good work when used in the line this season.

The Army has a considerably heavier team than the Midshipmen, and it is reported here that the average from tackle to tackle is 202 pounds. The Navy has nothing to compare to this, but Willkie's presence would bring up the average greatly. Wiedorn weighs 181 pounds, which is about the same as King, but Dobie does not hesitate to express dissatisfaction with the recent work of the latter, who has been considered one of the best men on the line.

HULSEBOSCH WINS MILE RUN

Captures Race from Scratch in White Plains Games.

Al Hulsebosch showed excellent form last night in capturing first prize in the one-mile handicap run at the games of the White Plains Y. M. C. A. in the White Plains Armory. Hulsebosch, starting from scratch, ran into the lead on the final lap and won by a convincing margin from Charles Dubois of the Hollywood Inn, A. A., who had a start of 60 yards. J. Banfield, Knights of St. Antony, who was allowed 40 yards, finished third. Hulsebosch's time was 4:54 4-5.

The New York University athletes carried off the point prize with a total of fourteen markers for the open A. A. U. handicap events. New York A. C. and the Pabist A. C. came next with six points each and the Knights of St. Antony and Oakwood A. C. representatives scored five points each. In the closed events the White Plains H. S. athletes led the Oakwood A. C. representatives in a score of 44 to 21.

The summaries:

Running High Jump; Handicap—Won by A. P. Roberts, New York A. C. (scratch), with 5 feet 10 inches; A. Courtois, New York University (4 inches), 5 feet 8 inches, second; E. Senzinger, St. Aessim's A. C. (6 inches), 5 feet 4 inches, third.

One Mile Run; Handicap—Won by Al Hulsebosch, Pabist A. C. (scratch); Charles Dubois, Hollywood Inn A. A. (60 yards), second; J. Banfield, Knights of St. Antony (60 yards), third. Time—4:54 4-5.

One-Yard Run; Novice—Won by William Curran, New York University; George Harris, Oakwood A. C., second; William Banks, Oakwood A. C., third. Time—1:28 3-5.

880-Yard Run; Handicap—Won by William Braunstein, New York University (20 yards); I. Ballister, Knights of St. Antony (scratch), second; H. McCrea, Stevens Tech (scratch), third. Time—2:11 2-5.

ERASMUS TO FILE PROTEST.

Disputes Awarding of Cross-Country Title to Flushing H. S.

Erasmus Hall High School is preparing to protest against the awarding of the local high school cross-country championship title to Flushing High School as a result of the annual race held last Saturday by the Public Schools Athletic League. The Brooklyn School officials, it was learned yesterday, will submit their protest to the High Schools Games Committee at its next meeting. The protest is based on alleged inaccuracy on the part of the officials in checking up the schoolboys as they crossed the finish line.

Fred H. Cruise, manager of the Erasmus Hall team, is prepared to submit facts to prove that a mistake was made in the positions awarded the Erasmus Hall team at the finish, which, if corrected, will give the Brooklyn schoolboys the title. Manager Cruise declares that Sands, who ran in place of Bradley, with the permission of Mr. Batchelor, Erasmus Hall representative on the High Schools Games Committee, finished forty-first in the race and earned twenty-fifth position in the team score. Sands, Manager Cruise contends, was overlooked in the compilation following the race, and the next Erasmus Hall runner to finish, Trant, who was sixty-ninth, was checked up in forty-first position in the team score.

The recapitulation, according to the Erasmus Hall manager, would give his team 59 points, and not 75, as was the case when the officials compiled their figures last Saturday. At this figure Erasmus Hall would lead Flushing High School, which finished with a total of 70 points.

WHARTON QUITS AS COACH.

Penn's Veteran Line Mentor to Devote Time to Mass Athletics.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 26.—Dr. Charles M. (Buck) Wharton, for a quarter of a century line coach for the University of Pennsylvania football eleven, has announced that he will retire from active coaching after the Cornell game tomorrow. He said he would devote his entire time to the massed athletic plan of the university, instructing the various teams from the undergraduate body in the fundamentals of football, baseball, basket ball, and other forms of physical exercises.

FEAR OF INJURIES HAUNTS MANAGERS

Pennant Races Sometimes Affected by Accidents—Other Gossip by Mathewson.

By CHRISTY MATHEWSON.

There have been many costly accidents in the big leagues, and the injured star is the fear of every manager in a close fight for the pennant or the world's championship. I don't think I am overstating the case when I say flatly that the Giants lost the pennant in 1908 because Larry Doyle got spiked in the leg in the thick of the struggle about thirty days before the close of the season. That was the year when the Cubs and the Giants finished their schedules tied and Chicago won the championship in the extra play-off game.

A Brooklyn player accidentally spiked Doyle and Larry was laid up for the rest of the season. He was hitting well that year and playing the greatest game of his career. I believe that if Doyle had not been hurt the Giants would have won the flag that season by five games. As it was, with Herzog just breaking into the league and taking Larry's place in the lineup in the excitement of this closest of all races, we finished tied—and finally lost.

Larry Doyle did not work again from the day he was spiked until the play-off contest, when he limped up to the plate to hit for me, after McGraw took me out, and popped up a foul to Kling. The Cub backstop caught the ball and almost caught a couple of pe bottles in the bean that the fans let loose in the stress of the moment. The whole Giant team was banged up and shot to pieces at the end of that race, but Doyle's hurt cost us the pennant.

Heinie Groh's Injury.

When it looked as if the Cincinnati team was going to win the pennant last season everybody on the ball club from Pat Moran down was greatly worried that some of the regulars would be hurt and out of the game.

"What would happen if Groh were hurt, or Daubert or Roush?" the members of the team would ask one another fearfully.

Groh did get hurt in a funny way when the race was almost over. A pitched ball took a shoot he did not expect and hit his hand as he held the bat. It bunged up his hand pretty well, but the Reds had too much of a lead by that time, so his injury did not affect their championship chances, but his loss would have ruined them earlier in the season.

There is no way for big leaguers to protect themselves against getting hurt. It is not possible to play easy and be safer even if the race is over and the flag won. I have seen as many vital cogs of a baseball machine injured that way as when they were playing their hardest.

For instance, a man is running for a base, starts to slide, then sees he has the throw beaten and attempts to stand up. His pin doubles under him and he doesn't get up, for his leg is broken or his ankle is sprained or broken. A sprained ankle will keep a player out of the game as long as a broken one, so that the nature of the injury does not make much difference. A base runner may even catch his toe under the bag and sprain or break his ankle.

The Case of Waddell.

Rube Waddell was the star southpaw of the Athletics back in 1905 when they won the championship and played the Giants in the series. The members of the Philadelphia team were skylarking on the Pullman car at the end of the straw ha season, breaking up the old lids. This skylarking is always a bad and dangerous practice, forbidden by managers, but hard to stop. Some one, identity not known, threw a bag or a suit case at Rube, and it hit him on the point of the left shoulder. He was out for the rest of the season and did not start a game against the Giants in the world's series. I understand even Connie Mack blew up at this. Rube was always a great trial to Connie, anyway.

There are so many ways a ball player can be hurt. Two outfielders may run together, probably because one of them does not shout. That is one thing about old George Van Haltren who played centre field for the Giants years ago. When he was going after the ball or intended to take it, you could hear him shout and keep on shouting for ten blocks.

On the other hand, some ball players can't seem to bring themselves to yell. Benny Kauff ran into Ross Young this year when Young was playing the sun field on the road and smashed his glasses and cut his nose, because he shouted only once and Young did not hear him. McGraw can't seem to get Kauff to raise his voice in

FILLY SHOWS WAY TO OLDER HORSES

PENROSE WINS . BENNINGS

Siren Maid Captures Review Purse After Battle with Martha Luckett and Kallipolis.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 26.—J. J. Hallenbeck's speedy Lunetta, which had already taken the measure of the best of the juveniles racing here, proved today that she could compete successfully against older horses. She demonstrated this by capturing the Martha Washington Handicap, which was a test at one mile for fillies and mares of all ages, in which she had little difficulty in defeating Duchess Lace, Ballet Dancer 2d, Wood Violet and Quietude. She set the pace all the way and had an advantage of a length at the finish. The others finished in the order named.

It is not unusual for juveniles to defeat older horses at this time of the year, as the youngsters are just turning into their third year and enjoy advantages in the weights. But Lunetta was put to a severe test, as she raced against high-class performers which have been winners on numerous occasions this year.

Lunetta drew an advantage in the weights for her age, carrying 96 pounds against 118 for Duchess Lace and 113 for Ballet Dancer, but the manner in which the fleet daughter of Luke McLuke scored showed that she could undoubtedly have won with a heavier impost. She was never seriously threatened and never left the issue in doubt for her backers, who had made her a favorite at a little better than even money. Duchess Lace and Ballet Dancer were also well supported.

Lunetta Gets Rail Position.

Weiner rushed Lunetta to the front when the barrier went up and gained the rail position before making the first turn. He never gave up the advantage thus gained, and Lunetta began to draw away from the others until she was leading by nearly two lengths going through the back stretch. Ballet Dancer showed fine speed for six furlongs, and was second to the leader, but after reaching the far turn she weakened and ceased to be a contender for first honors. Quietude also got into a contending position in the early running, but tired badly from the pace after going half a mile, and dropped back to last.

Duchess Lace with Ensor up was kept off the early pace but began to move up at the far turn. Ensor made a determined effort to catch the leader but Weiner was letting Lunetta run her race and she had plenty of speed left for the challenge at the head of the stretch. She kicked her heels just a little faster as Duchess Lace moved up and after racing a sixteenth of a mile at top speed Duchess Lace found she was not good enough. She was ridden hard to the finish but never gained more than half a length after her first move. Ballet Dancer could not keep up in the last two furlongs and was beaten for the place by three lengths while the others trailed in.

The Bennings Purse, at a mile for two and three-year-olds was another test in which juveniles had a chance to contend with older horses but the youngsters did not do so well in this event. The victory went rather easily to the Triple Springs Farm's Penrose which seems to be reaching top form after a rather disappointing season. This three-year-old filly made a show of her field and won by eight lengths, with Peregrine second and Star Realm third. She had the race in hand from the first turn and was eased up at the finish.

Winner Has Good Racing Luck.

Penrose had a good break in the luck at the first turn where Weiner gained the rail. Blue Devil which was next to her went very wide at this turn and carried the rest of the field out. This gave Penrose a good lead by the time she reached the backstretch and she proceeded to increase it. She was soon sailing in front by four lengths and never had real contention after that. Armistice and Peregrine took after the leader and were leading the others all through the backstretch. Meantime, Star Realm had been nearly put out of the contest by being taken so wide at the first turn and it was not until the horses were turning into the stretch that this one began to make up ground. Then Star Realm came with a rush, disposed of Armistice and was within half a length of Peregrine at the wire.

The Review Purse, for two-year-old fillies, brought out a small field but provided a good contest. This was won by M. Finn's Siren Maid which came from Kentucky with considerable of a reputation and which has run several good races here. Siren Maid got into the lead early but for the first three furlongs Martha Luckett was close up. The winner finally shook off her rival and began to draw away. Kallipolis was slow to start but had plenty of speed at the finish and disposed of Penelope in the stretch run.

There were some long shots home first early on the card. Belgian Queen, which gained a close decision in the first race, paid $33.80 for a $2 ticket, and was followed by Pibroch which defeated a field of cheap sprinters and paid $25.30. The last race on the card went to War Smoke with Ballast second and Mormon Elder third.

TO PLAN U. S. PART IN OLYMPIC MEET

Initial Steps to be Taken Tomorrow at N. Y. A. C.—Belgian Official to Speak.

Plans for America's participation in the Olympic Games revival at Antwerp next year will be adopted tomorrow night at the New York Athletic Club, when a meeting of the American Olympic Committee, of which Colonel Robert M. Thompson is President and Chairman, will be held. Announcement of the call for the meeting was made last night.

Prior to the conference the committee and representatives of the leading sport governing bodies of the country will meet Colonel Osterreith, the Belgian Director General of Sports, at a dinner at which Colonel Osterreith, who is Chief of the Belgian Military Mission in the United States as well as a member of the Committee on Preparation for the Seventh Olympics, will speak in detail of the arrangements for the international meet, the first since the Stockholm games in 1912.

The dinner at the New York Athletic Club will be attended by representatives of the Amateur Athletic Union, Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America, Western Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, National Lawn Tennis Association, United States Football Association, National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, Fencers' League, United States Revolver Association, American Trapshooting Association and National Cycling Association.

At the end of the meeting it is expected definite plans for America's part in the world games will be announced. The plans formulated probably will include the number of men who will make up the team, the amount of money which will be needed to defray the expenses of the team, the means through which the necessary funds are to be obtained, and the selection of a manager for the team.

The size of the team is a matter of conjecture, although it is understood that the committee's plans will result in a larger representation from this country than ever before in the history of the games. With regard to the selection of the team it is understood a policy similar to that of former years will be followed, when the members were selected by means of Olympic Games trials, which brought to the fore the best leaders in every branch of sport. Although nothing definite has yet been done, it is understood the committee pains to adopt a program providing for American representation in every sport and activities included in the Olympic Games program. The main strength of the team, as before, will be in track and field athletics and swimming, but it is planned to develop teams for other sports which will balance the points scored by the runners, jumpers and weight men and the swimmers.

The amount necessary for the expenses will probably reach $175,000 or $200,000. This is greatly in excess of the amount expended at the last Olympic Games in Stockholm in 1912. The increased cost of everything except breathing is responsible for the expected advance over the expenses of former years, together with the fact that the size of the team will be increased. It is likely that the money will be raised by popular subscription.

The selection of a manager for the team is another which the committee will probably decide. Matthew P. Halpin, Chairman of the New York A. C. Committee on Athletics, held the position in the Olympic Games of 1906 at Athens, 1908 at London, and 1912 at Stockholm, but whether he is again a candidate for the post is unknown.

The American team, including track and field athletes, swimmers, cyclists, marksmen, football players, horsemen and fencers, will sail from this country early in July, it is understood. The Olympic Games, according to present plans, will begin about the middle of August and will continue for three or four weeks. Try-outs for track and field athletes and swimmers will undoubtedly be held in various sections of the country, and it is probable that before the team sails there will be a final set of competitions arranged.

France, England, Italy and the Scandinavian countries have already begun their preparations for the games, according to reports which have reached this country. This preliminary activity is taken by officials in this country to foreshadow stiffer opposition for the American standard bearers than has ever before been encountered, and it is understood the committee will make its plans with this in mind.

TROTTER BRINGS $4,600.

Miriam Guy, 2:09¾, Bought by F. W. Bridgeman at Old Glory Sale.

Miriam Guy, 2:09¾, which raced on the Grand Circuit last season, brought the highest price paid yesterday at the third day of the Old Glory Sale at Madison Square Garden. This four-year-old bay mare was purchased by F. W. Bridgeman of London, Ohio, for $4,600. While the price did not approach a record, it was taken by horsemen to indicate the increase in the cost of harness horses in recent years. A few seasons ago this same mare, under similar conditions, would have brought less than half that figure.

Good prices prevailed at the sale, and there was much lively bidding. One of the features of the day was the sale of Native Belle, a twelve-year-old bay mare by Moko, to W. R. Orr of Reading, Pa., for $4,100. Native Belle was a champion as a two-year-old and as a three-year-old, but is now a broodmare.

Tommy Murphy, the Grand Circuit driver, made a private transaction in which he obtained Red Russell, a chestnut gelding, from J. H. Dillon of New Haven, Conn., for $7,000, and will race him next season.

BEGIN CYCLE TRACK TONIGHT

Throng of Carpenters Will Do Hurry-up Job in Garden.

Two hundred carpenters will start work tonight building the six-day bicycle race track in Madison Square Garden and expect to have the saucer in readiness for the riders in the sprint meet Saturday night and the long grind which starts Sunday midnight. The riders will have a chance to work out on the track Saturday morning and familiarize themselves with the banks and stretches, which will be wider and larger this year, the track being nine laps to the mile.

Manager Young has found it necessary to cut down the field on account of the heavy list of first class riders, both American and foreign. He has decided to use only men of experience and will not take chances of having serious spills interfere with the sprinting by entering weak teams.

The foreigners have worked themselves into first class trim at the Sheepshead Bay track and are confident of winning the bulk of the $30,000 prize money. The last foreign team to win was Egg and Dupuy, this combination stealing a lap on the field the last night of the race. Buysse and Stoessens, the Belgian team, from all reports, will be front runners in the race. Both are young and powerful riders and have been consistent winners of long distance races in Europe.

The $1,000 match race in which Easton, Goullet, and A. Spencer are to compete will be the big feature of the Saturday night sprint card, other attractions being the International Derby with many countries represented and the motor-paced match for the indoor title, in which Carman, Egg, Chapman, and Brocco are the contenders. All the professionals in the six-day race will meet in a ten-mile open race and a mile handicap.

NAME MEN FOR TITLE RUN.

Four Teams to Seek National Hill and Dale Honors.

The personnel of the four teams which will strive for the national A. A. U. senior cross-country running championship over the Van Cortlandt Park course at slightly more than six miles Saturday was announced yesterday. Two of the clubs, the St. Anselms A. C. of the Bronx, and the Dorchester Club of Boston, Mass., have entered the limit number of representatives allowed by the A. A. U. rules, which provide that a team shall not consist of more than eight runners. The Paulist A. C. has nominated seven, while the Millrose A. A., regarded as a likely winner of the title, will depend on five runners.

Millrose A. A.—Charles Pores, Nick Giannakopulos, Victor Voteretsas, Charles De Frank Euna, Steffano Andi and Mike Evanes.

Paulist A. C.—Patrick Flynn, Max Bohland, Harry Wigger, Joseph Losero, Jack Costello, Robert Spear, Al Hulsebosch and Joe Giorgio.

FULTON GOING HOME TODAY.

Injury to Arm Will Keep Him Out of Ring Until First of Year.

Fred Fulton, Minnesota heavyweight, has changed his plans, and will leave today for his home in Minneapolis, Minn., where he will join his wife and child. The big plasterer had a consultation yesterday with a physician on the injury to his right arm, and decided to abandon his plan for treatment here. He has decided to have the arm attended to at his home. Fulton was advised that, while the injury is not serious, it should receive prompt attention, in order to prevent any possible serious complication.

The injury will keep Fulton idle at least until the first of the year. The Minnesota heavyweight had planned to engage in a bout the latter part of this month, but on the advice of his physician Fulton had abandoned this plan and will rest. Manager Tom O'Rourke received many offers for bouts yesterday, but because of the developments with regard to Fulton's arm declined those which provided for bouts before the end of the year and took under consideration those which promised activity for Fulton next year.

Pete Herman to Box Today.

Jersey City boxing enthusiasts will see Pete Herman, bantamweight champion, in action this afternoon when he tackles Mickey Russell of Jersey City in an eight-round bout at a special matinée show to be conducted by the City A. C. The match has attracted unusual attention, and a heavy advance sale of tickets is reported by the promoters. Russell is a comparative newcomer, but has a large following in Jersey City, and his supporters are confident he can outpoint the title holder in eight rounds.

DANGLER WINS TWO MATCHES AT SQUASH

Scratch Player Advances to Third Round in Crescent A. C. Handicap Tourney.

The annual Fall handicap squash tennis tournament of the Crescent Athletic Club began yesterday afternoon on the club courts in Brooklyn. N. F. Torrance, the present club champion, was not entered, but otherwise the draw represented the best talent that the wearers of the Half Moon can muster.

H. W. Dangler, playing from scratch, was the only man to take part in more than one match during the day, his two victories, over A. R. Neill and J. A. Walkley, respectively, putting him into the third round. J. W. Ivins, also rated at scratch, defeated W. E. Merrias in the first round, while A. B. Baxter, Jr., set three aces below the lineo f love—all, won a notable triumph over P. Andrews, whose allowance was 7 points, the two games being scored 15—7 and 15—10.

L. G. Godley, with a handicap of 8 aces, managed ot put M. M. Sterling, listed at minus 2, out of the running, although it took three games to do the trick. Sterling won the opener, 15—11. In spite of the big handicap he had to allow, and the second was Godley's only after extra points had been called. In the rubber Sterling tired from his long efforts to overcome the handicap imposed against him, and lost the game and match at 15—9.

The summaries follow:

FIRST ROUND—A. S. Moses, +5, defeated H. N. Taylor, +10, one hand, 15—11, 15—13; H. Somers, +8, defeated B. J. Griffin, +4, one hand, 15—6, 15—8; A. B. Baxter, Jr., +8, defeated P. Andrews, +7, 15—7, 15—10; L. J. Godley, +8, defeated M. M. Sterling, —2, 11—15, 17—16, 15—9; C. H. Zinn, +5, defeated F. A. Ryan, +8, one hand, 15—14, 15—10; J. J. Newman, +8, one hand, 15—11, 15—11; J. W. Ivins, N oen hand, 15—11, 15—11; J. W. Ivins, scratch, defeated W. E. Merriss, +8, 15—13, 15—11; H. W. Dangler, scratch, defeated A. R. Neill, +10, one hand, 15—10, 15—11; E. P. Scipyot, +7, defeated J. Dawson, +10, one hand, 15—10, 15—8.

SECOND ROUND—H. W. Dangler, scratch, defeated J. A. Walkley, +8, one-half hand, 15—11, 15—11.

OLDS IS VICTOR AT SQUASH.

Reaches Final at Princeton Club by Beating Beekman.

E. C. Olds reached the final round of the Princeton Club's handicap squash tennis tournament yesterday afternoon by winning the upper semifinal from Leonard Beekman, in straight games, 15—12, 15—8. The winner had an allowance of only five aces, as against eight for his opponent, and, therefore, allowed the loser 3 points handicap in each game.

In spite of this initial advantage, Beekman was unable to fathom the all-around court play of Olds, who has improved greatly of late and is now able to hold his own with the Class A squash players. The former Princeton tennis Captain made a good showing in the opener, using his speed and instinctive judgment of the flight of the ball to advantage. But he faded rapidly after his rival got his strokes in working order, and the play of the winner became more and more impressive until he had put the second game and the match to his credit by a 15—8 score.

Olds will meet either H. D. Harvey or J. R. Greenwood in the final round.

Far Rockaway Five Wins.

The Far Rockaway High School basket ball team captured the Queensborough championship yesterday afternoon by defeating the Jamaica High School five at Far Rockaway, 26 to 16. Greenwald and Buschman played brilliantly for the winners.

MORAN AND MARTIN WIN.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 26.—Frank Moran, the Pittsburgh heavyweight, knocked out Homer Smith, of Benton Harbor, in the third round of their scheduled ten round bout here tonight. Twice Smith went down from hard rights to the jaw. The third time he stayed down.

Bob Martin, A. E. F. champion, had an even easier time with Tom Riley of Minneapolis, putting Riley away in the first round.

Jack Burk of Chicago added another victory to his credit by outfighting Jack Moran of St. Louis in a bout that went the limit of ten rounds. Both men missed many wild swings, but Burk carried the harder punch and inflicted more punishment.

In the final bout Frank Moran started as though to make short work of Smith. After a few exchanges Frank put Smith down with a straight right to the jaw. Smith rested to his feet at the count of two and flopped over until the referee counted nine.

The second round was a complete reversal. Smith began using a left jab that lodged at will on Moran's nose and mouth. Moran seemed unable to avoid it, and his attempts to land on Smith were futile, practically all his swings going wide of the mark. The round was Smith's by a wide margin.

Shortly after the opening of the third round Moran uncorked his famous "Mary Ann" punch. Smith apparently had recovered his confidence and was working his left jab to good effect when Frank landed a punch flush on the jaw, and Smith went sprawling. He got up gamely only to go down again for the count of nine. Once more he came up, and Frank let go with all his might, and it was all over.

Riley never had a chance with Bob Martin. He assimilated a lot of punishment during the brief period he was in the ring. Martin knocked him down six times.

FOUR IN BILLIARD TIE.

Round Robin Tournament Will Be Played to Determine Winner.

As a result of last night's game in the pocket billiard tournament at John Doyle's Academy there is a four-handed tie for first place. George Barton succeeded in defeating Raymond Crane by a score of 50 to 44. Had Crane won he would have clinched the tourney. Crane, Barton, Harry Holden, and Edward Kirby are now tied for first place. It has been decided to play off the tie in a round robin tournament in which the four players will compete, beginning a week from next Monday.

In the snooker pool tournament for the championship of the American Amateur Billiard Association Bill Wathey, after two straight defeats, found his stroke and won from Louis Paley, 125 to 114, in four frames. Wathey's high run was 26 and Paley's 18.

William Morrisson was the winner in an English billiard tournament match, defeating Alfred Shepperd, 300 to 190. In spite of the wide margin by which the victory was scored it was an interesting game. Morrisson made a high break of 48. Shepperd's best was 17.

COUSINS IN CUE TILT.

Charles Steinbugler Scores Victory Over Robert, 150 to 125.

Whenever these cousins, Robert and Charley Steinbugler, meet, a real billiard battle is assured. Last night at the National Recreation Academy in Brooklyn was no exception. They met in a metropolitan championship Class C 18.2 balkline match and the war was on afresh. Charley finally won by a score of 150 to 125, thereby causing no little surprise in billiard circles, for Robert has generally been regarded as the probable winner of the title. The outcome dethroned Robert and left Charley and Sidney Brussel tied for the lead, each with seven games won and one lost. Robert is trailing with six and two.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Liberty Bonds Decline Under Heavy Sales—Stocks Meet with Light Demand.

The demand for stocks was of the reluctant order during much of yesterday's market session, and this factor appeared to be seized upon by professional traders as a medium for acquiring profits through short sales. Probably buying was under the pre-holiday handicap to a greater extent than usual by reason of the momentous problems of the hour at home and abroad, which, it was felt, might bring unusual developments before the markets reopened. The coal strike deadlock, rumors of a possible railroad strike of wide proportions in the near future, and the strained situation with Mexico were domestic matters to which traders devoted comment during the course of the day. As far as the foreign financial outlook was concerned, the market following had little that was new to consider, but it has been noticeable since the Peace Treaty was defeated in the Senate that the Street has centred more attention upon the need for credits and upon Europe's lack of adequate raw materials and food than in previous weeks. Whatever the elements to promote caution in buying and holding stocks, the market was weak most of the time and declines of 2 to 4 points and more were common in the final price array. Call money was quoted at 7 per cent. for renewals and at 6 per cent. later on. The demand was reported light. Unlike the session of Tuesday, no particular groups of stocks were under pressure; the declining process was general among industrial, railroad, mining and oil shares.

Liquidation of Liberty bonds, which had been on the increase for a week, reached record proportions for the year. Several issues sold under 92, the retreat to the lowest level's bringing a net decline of more than a half point. Just why the Government bonds are coming on the market in quantity has' not been fully explained. Presumably, the approach of the year-end is bringing the first wave of the annual output of securities sold to establish losses for income tax purposes. Last December, it will be recalled, a general declining movement among stocks and bonds was traced to heavy selling by individuals who sought to fulfill the mandate of the law that losses on securities must actually be suffered. It would seem as though the statute could well be revised so as to allow an inventory to be taken by tax payers, other than security dealers who are protected already by a clause allowing inventory valuations and remove from the markets an onus upon quotations which is looked for each Autumn. The fact that extensive sales of stocks and bonds may be expected is hardly a supporting influence to securities at this season of the year, referring especially to those whose highest quotations were scored early in the year.

The foreign exchange markets were dull with unimportant changes of rates. In the cotton market a fairly sharp declining movement in the morning was turned into a recovery, leaving quotations irregular at the end of the day. News of the steel and iron trade indicate that something of the pinch resultant from strike influences is being felt by consumers. The Iron Age estimates a loss in steel output between 2,500,000 and 3,000,000 tons from the strike.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Money and Discounts.

The call money market showed nothing unusual yesterday, opening and renewing at 7 per cent., and then tapering of to 6 per cent., notwithstanding a widely circulated report that the Federal Reserve Bank Directors, at their meeting yesterday, either had, or would, advance rates for discounts and rediscounts. The Governors of the Reserve Bank met in the forenoon, but it was not until after the closing hour, 3 o'clock, that it was definitely stated no changes in rates had been made.

Bonds and Losses.

The extremely heavy selling of Liberty and other bonds yesterday and on several other recent days was generally attributed by dealers to the desire by individuals and corporations to get their losses "on the record" for income tax purposes. The law, or at least its administration, requires that individuals and corporations actually sell their securities to establish their losses. Dealers in securities are allowed to inventory their bonds at a price and establish their losses in that way. As the Government loses nothing by the inventory system, and as its practice makes for stability by relieving the market of the end-of-the-year pressure, it would seem a way might be found to allow the security holder who is not a dealer figure his loss in this way, instead of forcing him to sell out for whatever he can get.

Liberties Under Pressure.

The pressure directed against the Liberties was excessive. It gave the day the largest turnover of any day of the year, and the second largest for all time. The total amount of bond sales was $21,871,000, of which $22,556,000 was in Liberties and Victories. On Dec. 31 last year the total volume of bonds, par value, was $27,331,500, of which $25,564,000 was in war bonds.

Liberty Bonds vs. Polish Bonds.

Information from Polish-American quarters shows that the Poles here are by no means unanimous in their support of the interesting project to collect the Liberty bonds they hold and exchange them for new Polish Government securities at a higher rate of interest in order that the American securities can be used for a credit upon which Poland may obtain the raw materials she needs. Very little is known about the personnel of the syndicate which induced President Paderewski in Warsaw to indorse this proposal, and there is some hesitation here about accepting the assurance that the $250,000,000 of Liberty bonds to be so obtained will not come upon the market to depress the price of the bonds. Meantime, Prince Lubomirsky, the Polish Ambassador, preserves a discreet silence in regard to the scheme, which is under close scrutiny by the Treasury officials, before American consent to its adoption is given.

GENERAL MOTORS PLANS EXPANSION

Stockholders to Vote on Proposal for Subdividing Old Shares on 10-to-1 Basis.

TO BRING $85,000,000 CASH

President Durant Tells of Needs for Large Capital Investments in the Industry.

The Directors of the General Motors Corporation yesterday recommended to stockholders a proposal for subdividing the old shares on a ten-to-one basis and called a special meeting for Dec. 30 to consider the plan. This proposal was first suggested several days ago by William C. Durant, President of the General Motors Corporation, but at that time it had not been formally passed upon by the Directors.

The present authorized capitalization of the General Motors Corporation consists of $500,000,000 in common stock, $500,000,000 in 6 per cent. debentures, and $20,000,000 in 6 per cent. cumulative preferred stock. It is now proposed to change this capitalization by the retirement of the preferred and the debenture stock and the issuing of $500,000,000 in 7 per cent. cumulative, non-voting debenture stock, which will be redeemable at $120 a share. The holders of the 6 per cent. preferred and the 6 per cent. debenture stock of record of Dec. 31 of this year will receive a subscription warrant entitling them to subscribe to two shares of the new 7 per cent. debenture stock at par. This may be paid for in cash, or 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent. in preferred or in 6 per cent. debentures.

This plan will supply about $85,000,000 in cash to the corporation's treasury. The right to subscribe will expire on Feb. 2, 1920. With relation to the common stock, the number of shares of which is to be increased from 5,000,000 to 50,000,000 on the ten-for-one subdivision basis, it is asserted that none of the new stock shall be issued for less than $10 a share, nor can the Directors declare dividends in an amount which reduces the value of the assets as shown on the books of the corporation to a point where the capital, with the common stock valued at $10 a share, is impaired.

W. C. Durant, in commenting to stockholders on the proposed plan, has this to say:

A careful forecast, looking far into the future, indicates that, for your corporation to continue occupying its leading position in the automobile industry, large capital investments will be required, which requirements can likely be better met by financing that portion of our growth which is not supplied from earnings, through the sale of a 7 per cent. rather than a 6 per cent. senior security. This at once gives us an opportunity and a privilege; an opportunity to issue our senior securities at or above par, instead of at the substantial discount necessary in the sale of our present securities, and the privilege of extending to our senior security holders the right to subscribe to this new 7 per cent. debenture stock on a most attractive basis.

The plan, with all of the subscription rights taken up, will supply about $85,000,000 in cash for the corporation's treasury, which added to our present cash, sight drafts and Liberty bonds, will give us a total of approximately $175,000,000—ample to provide for the normal and safe expansion of the business, to properly develop recently acquired and extremely profitable lines and to maintain cash reserves sufficiently large, to care for a gross business for the calendar year 1920 of approximately $800,000,000.

The Board of Directors of the General Motors Corporation yesterday declared a dividend of 1½ per cent. on the debenture stock, 1¾ per cent. on the preferred stock, and 3 per cent. on the common stock. All of the dividends are payable on Feb. 2, 1920, to holders of record Dec. 31 of this year.

COAL A STEEL PROBLEM.

Trade Journal Says Output Depends on Mills Getting Fuel.

The coal situation is becoming one of the pressing problems in the iron and steel industry, according to The Iron Age, which considers that there can be no dependence placed on steel output as long as the railroads continue to take coal belonging to the steel companies which the latter are shipping from their own mines.

In discussing other conditions in the industry the publication says:

In Illinois and Indiana four iron rolling mills have had to close down for lack of coal, and others may soon reach that point. Generally, the large steel companies have maintained output and there has been some further gain from the return to work of strikers.

Loss of output by the steel strike is estimated at 2,500,000 to 3,000,000 tons of finished material, and the outlook for a material increase over the present rate of production, with Winter at hand, is not promising.

That there are buyers and sellers to whom the attempt to hold the market in bounds does not appeal appears from such quotations as $50 for rerolling billets, $65 for forging billets, and $63 for wire rods. Little business is done on any such basis, but premium transactions are likely to increase.

Railroad buying now comes up to compete for mill space with tonnage that was on the books before the strike. The Pennsylvania Railroad has decided to buy 200,000 tons of rails and have the price adjusted later. Deliveries run over ten months. The Buffalo mill has already received 32,000 tons of this total, and the remainder will go to Bethlehem, Cambria, Carnegie, and Illinois Steel Company mills. The Norfolk & Western is inquiring for 26,000 tons of 100-pound rails. At Chicago pending rail business now amounts to about 300,000 tons.

Pig iron prices continue to advance and, while it is clear that the steel strike and the refusal of the miners to return to work are factors in the scarcity of iron and therefore the upward movement of prices, it is likewise clear that consumers are extremely busy, some foundries having more orders than they can care for. It will be necessary to reline a number of blast furnaces, and it will be impossible to re-establish normal production for a month or two. Several furnaces are ready to blow in, but cannot obtain coke. Considerable buying of steel making iron is expected in Pittsburgh this week. At St. Louis an inquiry is out for 30,000 tons of basic iron, and at Canton, Ohio, for 10,000 tons, part of which has been bought.

The Iron Trade Review says:

Various cross currents continue to influence production and prices in iron and steel. The direct effects of the steel strike at present have been minimized, but operating efficiency in many plants has not yet been restored to the basis prevailing before the various suspensions. In some cases this is due to a reorganization of works forces which has been found necessary. Blast furnace labor is lacking in some districts, and this is preventing a resumption of certain stacks. With demand of large proportions and apparently growing, these drags upon production, added to tonnage already lost, serve to intensify the strength of prices and to point the market to constantly higher levels. Actual and possible effects of the continuing coal strike are more of a factor. In sheets it is feared that production, which has been rising steadily, may again be set back unless the reduced supplies of fuel to the mills are replenished quickly.

NATIONAL SURETY INCREASE

Capital Stock to be Raised from $4,000,000 to $6,000,000.

Recommendations for an increase in the capital stock of the National Surety Company from $4,000,000 to $6,000,000 were made to stockholders at a special meeting yesterday by Directors. The plan contemplates giving to present shareholders the right to subscribe to the new stock to the extent of 25 per cent. of their holdings at $150 a share. This would provide the company with $1,500,000 additional capital and surplus. The stock of the company is selling in the neighborhood of $265 a share.

By the proposed increase the company will have a combined capital and surplus in excess of $10,500,000, with a qualifying power on any one bond under Government regulations of over $1,000,000. The proposed new issue has been underwritten and heavily oversubscribed.

COTTON IRREGULAR, TRENDIS DOWNWARD

January Evens Up, but Other Options Close with Losses of 13 to 45 Points

LIVERPOOL ALSO REACTS

Trade Damped by Fear of Warning Against Overspeculation in Commodities.

Cotton moved irregularly yesterday, with occasional swings of considerable extensions and at times without any uniformity as to options. On the whole, however, the trend was downward, at one time prices being as much as 75 points under Tuesday's closing, and at the close they were down 13 points for December, 10 for March, and 40 to 45 for the distant months. January, thanks to a special spurt at the close, finished the day unchanged in the bid price.

The uncertainty of the stock market and the circulation of a report that the Federal Reserve Board was about to issue a warning against overspeculation in commodities served to check the advance of the several days previous to yesterday. This advance, which had brought prices back about half-way from their decline of last week, was expected to continue, but fear of drastic action by the banking powers not only damped bullish enthusiasm, but brought out quite a little selling.

Liverpool, which had been coming along well, also turned heavy and irregular, and, after a small gain at the opening there, that market reacted rather sharply. This also contributed to the pressure here, and all of these factors, and the additional influence of evening-up sales in anticipation of the holiday, gave the market a weaker tone than it had experienced at any other time of the week.

The huge exports kept up uninterruptedly. Yesterday's total was 102,538 bales, very well distributed, making the total for the week to date 201,717 bales and the total for the month to date 758,183 bales, or within 38,405 bales of the high record, made in October, 1916. As there are four days left of the current month, it seems assured that the previous record will be considerably exceeded.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

HARTOG CLAIM DISALLOWED.

Jury Decides Against Brother Who Sued Glucose Contractor.

Special to The New York Times.

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., Nov. 26.—Following a trial of more than a week, a jury at White Plains late today found a verdict for the defendant in the suit brought by Ferdinand Hartog, Jr., against his brother, Louis N. Hartog, for $829,000 in commissions claimed for the sale of thousands of tons of glucose to the British Government during the war.

The North Kensington Refinery and the Fame Maltine Company were co-defendants. During the trial the name of Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, was frequently mentioned, as the defendant admitted Murphy had subscribed $50,000 for stock in his enterprise. The jury deliberated only thirty minutes.

The plaintiff said that there was a verbal agreement between himself and his brother for the commissions, and today a memorandum attached to a contract with Paul Klopstock, the broker representing the British Government, which Ferdinand said he found in his brother's desk, was produced to show it contained the words "Ferd's commission." Louis N. Hartog said the paper was a forgery. He used a magnifying glass and said his original words, written in lead pencil, were "tin cont." meaning "tin containers," and that they had been written over to mean "Ferd's commission."

INSURES AGAINST SICKNESS.

American Woolen Company Extends Benefit to All Employes.

BOSTON, Nov. 26.—A sick and accident benefit insurance plan for all employes was announced today by the American Woolen Company. The benefits will cover all cases of disability from sickness or accident, whether suffered in the course of employment or not, and will be in addition to the provisions of State Compensation Acts and the Group Life Insurance already provided by the company.

All employes working on full time Monday will benefit immediately by the new plant, which requires no payment by the operatives. Thereafter employes must have been with the company for six consecutive months to be eligible.

The amounts in all cases will be dependent on length of service, no employe to receive less than $8 nor more than $30.

TEST REVENUE EMPLOYES.

All Workers in Brooklyn Office Undergo Hasty Examination.

The 100 employes in the Internal Revenue Department in Brooklyn were ordered to go through a test yesterday morning by Louis E. Renard, Assistant Supervisor of Revenue Collectors, who came from Washington. His sudden visit and order caused excitement which bordered on consternation. One of the collectors said that he understood tests were being made all over the country. As a result of this test, it was stated about the building that there may be some changes and that some of those recently appointed were inefficient and that the work of the department had suffered. Every one connected with the office had to undergo the test.

EGGS—6,881 cases. New laid eggs still very scarce and the market fully sustained, although the sales reported indicate no further change in values. Supplies of mild very wide owing to the wide difference in value between new laid eggs and the older goods, with which they are more or less mixed. Very fancy storage eggs are in fair demand and, held with considerable confidence. Average good and lower grades are very freely offered and meeting a slow outlet, with the tone in buyers favor. Nearby white eggs are fully sustained with a fair demand for the fancy qualities. Another car of Californias in but not yet on the market. WANTS CONTROL OF CAPITAL

Berlin Paper Urges Regulation of Investments by Foreigners.

BERLIN, Nov. 25. (Associated Press)—Discussing foreign financial participation in German commercial organizations, the conservative Morning Post suggests the creation of a board to control traffic in the shares of companies whose stockholders come in active touch with German corporations. The purpose would be to check up the source of transactions and forestall transfers of stock which are calculated to result in the inimical shifting of majority interests.

The belief is expressed by The Post that a certain amount of outside financial participation in German corporations is desirable. It says that this would stimulate interest in keeping Germany supplied with raw products and other needed commodities and insure the profitable operation of concerns in which foreigners are interested.

Labor M. P.'s Want More Pay.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Labor members of Parliament here are agitating for an increase in their Parliamentary salaries, which now are about $2,000 per annum. The present salary, which represents a pre-war purchasing value of approximately $800, is regarded as hopelessly inadequate for the maintenance of a legislator in London. It is understood that a proposal is to be put forward for a modified plan of payment by attendance.

PUSHES CLAIM TO LINERS.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 26.—The Post says today that diplomatic negotiations are proceeding to bring matters to a head, owing to the attitude of the United States Shipping Board in refusing to hand over the seven remaining German liners, which action is said to be due to dissatisfaction with the decision of the Supreme Council in allocating the German tankers to France, Belgium, and Italy.

The newspaper says that there is really no connection between the questions of the liners and the tankers, and it is suggested that the difficulty with regard to the tankers arises from a claim by the American Government, on behalf of the Standard Oil Company, to ownership of them.

"It would appear," The Post continues, "without full official knowledge of the exact inner history of this matter, that the Shipping Board has put the British Government to a very considerable expense and delayed the process of repatriation for reasons that can hardly be defined."

Gray Goods Buying Snappy.

Neither the bad weather nor visions of Thanksgiving viands could keep buyers of gray goods from trading actively in this market yesterday. Deliveries ran all the way from spots to June 1, although most of the sales of staples were for shipment this side of April. Nineteen cents was paid for December 38½-inch 64-60s during the day, while for delivery in the closing days of this month and through next 39-inch 72-76s brought 24 cents. March and April deliveries of the same goods sold for 23 cent less. For February-March, 22½ cents was paid for 39-inch 68-72s. January-March lots of 5 and 5.50 yard sheetings sold for 17¾ and 16¾ cents, respectively. Standard 40-inch 8.50-yard combed lawns, for shipment in February, March, and April, brought 38 cents, and the same price was paid for 64-104, 4.20-yard sateens for shipment as far ahead as June 1. Sateens and twills were especially active.

May Not Deduct Fur Taxes.

In an emergency bulletin sent to members of the National Garment Retailers' Association, Secretary John W. Hahn of that organization calls attention to the fact that taxes on furs cannot be deducted from individual income returns. The position of the Treasury Department, says Mr. Hahn, is that taxes which may be deducted are those covering only merchandise set down in Section 904, the so-called luxury tax provision, and taxes on admission and transportation. In the eyes of the Treasury Department the fur tax ceases to be a tax after the manufacturer, producer, or importer has paid the money to the Government. The consumer, consequently, not paying the tax directly to the Government, may not deduct it.

Drug Prices Are Firm.

Business in drugs and chemicals in this market is less active. Drug and Chemical Markets will say today, but prices are firm. There is a shortage of many botanicals, but imports are improving. Sulphate of ammonia is higher and there has been considerable speculation in second hands. Stocks of fatty oils are small, but there is little demand except from a few large consumers. Essential oil stocks are so far below normal that the steady upward movement of prices continues. There is an active inquiry, but buyers are conservative and purchase in small lots. Coal tar intermediates are in good demand, and producers are refusing business for export owing to the difficulty of filling domestic orders.

Cannot Complete Deliveries.

With Christmas less than a month away, it is becoming more and more evident that the orders taken for the holiday season by manufacturers and wholesalers of handkerchiefs cannot be delivered in full. Shipments of imported goods were said yesterday to be much more nearly completed than those from domestic sources. Not only are large quantities of domestic goods still uncut, but some of the manufacturers here are said to be unable to ship the finished handkerchiefs because of a shortage of pasteboard boxes. The present situation is regarded as unfortunate for the retailers, inasmuch as the consumer demand for handkerchiefs, especially novelties, has never been better in spite of the high prices asked both for linen and cotton goods.

Sports Angora Featured.

In the sport models created for resort wear, sports angora is figuring very prominently. This brushed surface woolen material is utilized in the production of sweaters, scarfs ,and vestees. As a rule, the colors which are featured are bright shades, with light greens and rose taking a leading place. Where the entire garment is not made of sports angora the trimmings are very likely to include some of the material.

Simple Tailored Lines Favored.

The coat and suit manufacturers started operations for the Spring season with the idea in mind that simplicity should be the leading style characteristic for the period. As operations progress there seems to be nothing to change the original fashion note. Tuxedo and flare effects are promised along very simple lines. One reason, of course, for this style policy is that the more ease there is in manufacturing the more production will benefit. There is some talk in the trade of irregular skirt borders, but it is understood that this will be confined in most cases to those houses which desire to make something different from the rest of the industry.

Men's Knitted Scarfs Active.

The improved demand for men's knitted neckwear which was manifest some little time ago has now reached a point where the manufacturers find it difficult to cope with orders. The situation from the standpoint of material for goods of this sort, however, is little easier than that which prevails in ordinary tie silks. For this reason manufacturers are encouraging business in this branch. Black knitted scarfs are most popular, although solid colors of a rich type are also freely bought. The economy of buying such neckwear, which outlasts silk goods, is one of the explanations put forth for the good consumer demand.

May Get More Goods Direct.

There is said to be just enough uncertainty regarding the business outlook for next Fall to induce the woolen mills to be less free in handing out goods to the jobbers and pay more consideration to the cutters-up. This, at least, is the way one clothier looks at it. He said yesterday that when the heavyweight season is opened the manufacturers ought to find themselves favored over jobbers, rather than the opposite, which has been the case many times in the last two seasons. The mills, he said, ought to realize that, in selling goods to jobbers and thus making it impossible for the manufacturers to buy direct, a condition has been created in the clothing market that it regarded on all sides as unsatisfactory.

Show New Trimmings Here.

There seems to be no end to the novel trimmings that are being used in local millinery circles this season. Among the newer ones are all nail heads and flat iridescent spangles. These are scattered profusely over the hats they trim, without any idea of symmetry. Natural quills are in considerable favor with satin hats, particularly models that incorporate split brims. For use on dark brown satin hats, burnt pheasant quills are very well liked. Fruit clusters are used on some of the larger satin hats, "frosty" grapes being favored for this purpose. Flat discs of gray velvet also are seen. These trimmings come in two-tone effects, with the darker discs used on satin and lighter-hued ones. French knots of chenille and loops of ostrich are also employed here.

Wants Piece Work Back.

The solution of the present difficulties surrounding production in the men's clothing market by more than one manufacturer is considered to be a restoration of the piece work system in the inside shops. The leaders in the local market are urging this change from the present week-work plan in order that a premium may be paid to those workers who put forth the best effort. It is understood that the suggestion will be made to union officials, who may sanction the change in order to strengthen their organization, which is not so well represented on the inside shops as in the contracting field.

Education Notes.

The statement that there will be no more school luncheons after Jan. 1 next does not apply to Brooklyn and Queens. The Brooklyn School Luncheon Committee of the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities has been furnishing luncheons to the children in public schools of those boroughs for a considerable length of time. Its budget has been prepared for the fiscal year ending April 30, 1920. In some sixteen of the schools it is providing a regular substantial luncheon to all the pupils. In addition to these regular luncheons it is providing in about forty-five open air classes and fifteen crippled classes especially nourishing food and practically all of the milk that the children can drink, at only a nominal cost. If any of the children in the special classes are unable to meet this nominal cost, money for this purpose is provided by the Committee on the Prevention of Tuberculosis of this society. It has no intention of discontinuing its luncheon service until such time as the Board of Education is ready and willing to take it over.

The Federation of Teachers' Association has decided to co-operate with the State Teachers' Association in asking the Legislature to repeal that provision of the education law which distributes over a period of three years the salary increases of teachers.

Travel Service

Seventy-eight years ago, when we started business, a journey on land or sea to a large extent meant discomfort. Mule and horse drawn coaches were still rivaling the infant railroad systems. Sailing vessels still outstripped the iron steamers.

Our service for travelers, born in those far off days, has kept step with the times, until today it is a completely organized, dependable and unequaled system of a large number of offices distributed all over the earth.

CUMMINGS ASSAILS RECORD OF CONGRESS

Democratic Chairman Declares Republican Leading Has Brought 'Incalculable Loss.'

SEES FLAG 'TRAILED IN DUST'

Charges Senate Has Broken Faith with Allies and House Has Wasted Its Time.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26—Homer S. Cummings, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, in a public statement tonight, sharply arraigned the Republican Congress, charging lack of accomplishment. The months that the Senate has spent in debating the Peace Treaty, he asserts, have brought incalculable financial, economic and moral loss to this country.

Mr. Cummings's statement reads:

"Congress has adjourned. When the Republican Party won the election in November, 1918, upon the faith that it would apply superior statesmanship and efficiency to public affairs, it went into power with high hopes. An elaborate program of reconstruction was published in the newspapers and the leaders of the party were unable to conceal the satisfaction which they felt in the opportunity which had come to them.

"Since that time we have had six months of Republican control. We have had a taste of Republican leadership. It is impossible for the most ardent partisan to point to one single constructive measure which has been adopted.

"The House frittered away its time in the futile investigations of war activities, and in the face of the issues of the high cost of living arranged to adjourn, and was kept at its post of duty only upon the insistence of the President.

"The record in the Senate is even more discreditable. The Senatorial leaders have broken faith with our Allies. The American flag, which was held so high on the fields of France, has been trailed in the dust by men who do not seem to understand what American honor requires.

"America has won the moral, financial and the political leadership of the world. It was our duty and our opportunity to retain that leadership. We should have been the first of the great powers to ratify the treaty of peace. We should have led the way in the reconstruction of the world.

"The Senate has just completed six months of ghastly ineptitude and political floundering. It has occupied six months in sterile debate and has not yet been able to say 'Yes' or 'No' to the treaty.

"Peace has been postponed, international chaos still exists, the trade of the world is slipping away from America, the work of reconstruction has not been taken up, and, Republican leaders seem to remember only that they are Republicans.

"Our soldiers in France gave a picture to the world of a generous, helpful, and courageous America. The Senate has reversed the picture and shows to the world an America selfish, hesitating, and lacking in the courage to face its own manifest destiny.

"These six months have brought incalculable loss, financial, economic and moral, to America. The people have, indeed, paid a staggering penalty for the folly of electing a Republican Congress last November."

HASSAM SUES ART DEALER.

Claims Painting That He Says Was Stolen from Him in 1903.

Childe Hassam, artist, filed suit in the Supreme Court yesterday against Frank K. M. Rehn, an art dealer at 6 West Fiftieth Street, to recover possession of a painting, "Flower Girl Selling Peonies," which Mr. Hassam says he painted in Paris in 1889 and was stolen from him in 1903. He values the picture at $1,500, and wants $500 additional because Mr. Rehn refuses to give it up.

Mr. Hassam states that the painting was stolen with other property when he moved in 1903 from an apartment in West Sixty-seventh Street to the one he now occupies at 130 West Fifty-seventh Street. He searched for it, but found no trace until Oct. 25 last, when Mr. Rehn showed him the painting, which he had just bought, and asked an opinion as to its value. The defendant refused to give it up because he had bought it in good faith, and Mr. Hassam decided to sue.

WILLIAMS HAS MILK PLAN.

Food Administrator Asks Distributers to Arrange Store System.

Federal Food Administrator Williams took a hand in the milk problem yesterday when he summoned to his office representatives of the distributers and suggested that they evolve some plan by which bottled milk could be sold through the grocery stores at a price that would mean a saving to those who buy on the cash and carry plan. At present they have to pay more for milk at grocery stores, the price being 19 cents a quart for Grade B, as the distributers charge the storekeepers the same price they charge the consumer.

While looking with disfavor upon the plan suggested, giving numerous objections to it, the distributers agreed to consider the suggestion of Mr. Williams and to meet with him again some time next week. It was brought out at the meeting that Health Commissioner Copeland is going to try out this plan of distribution.

EX-CONVICTS SEE OSBORNE.

Hosts of Former Sing Sing Warden at Hotel Dinner.

More than two score former convicts who are now "going straight" entertained Lieut. Commander Thomas Mott Osborn, superintendent of the Naval prison at Portsmouth, N. H., and former warden of Sing Sing prison, at dinner last evening in the Park Avenue Hotel.

Most of the hosts were formerly from either Sing Sing or Auburn prison. They not only told the Lieutenant Commander how much they thought of him but presented to him a cowhide kit bag. The latter spoke as did Dr. George W. Kirchwey and Spencer Miller, both formerly interested in the management of Sing Sing.

The first speaker of the ex-convicts was a man who had spent most of his twenty-six years of life in prison. He was followed by a reformed housebreaker who said his former "beat" was Riverside Drive and added that he had always found it unprofitable to go below Eightieth Street. The third speaker was a long-timer who told of his struggle to keep going straight. A safe robber and a forger, both reformed, also spoke.

Commander Osborne said he was going to Chicago next week to look into prison conditions, particularly in Joliet penitentiary.

A DISCOVERY THAT BENEFITS MANKIND

Two discoveries have added greatly to human welfare.

In 1835 Newton originated the vacuum process for condensing milk with cane sugar to a semi-liquid form.

$20,000 GEM THEFT AT BRETTON HALL

POLICE ENJOINED SILENCE

Promoter and Wife Returned from Theatre to Find Rooms in Disorder and Jewels Gone.

It became known only yesterday that on Saturday night burglars broke into the apartment of Frank A. Skelton, on the tenth floor of the Bretton Hall Hotel, at Eighty-sixth Street and Broadway, and stole about thirty diamond rings, watches, necklaces and other valuable pieces of jewelry. Mrs. Skelton said last night that she would neither affirm nor deny the report that the total loss was more than $20,000.

When Mr. and Mrs. Skelton returned to their apartment, about midnight last Saturday, after attending the theatre, they found everything topsy turvy. Drawers from dressing tables, desks and bureaus were scattered on the tops of the tables, and clothing had been thrown upon the floor by the visitors in their search for the jewels. Two jewel cases had been emptied and left open on one of the tables.

The condition of the apartment caused the belief that the unwelcome visitors either had been frightened away before they had finished their search, or that they were seeking only jewelry, to the exclusion of small sums of money. A gold mesh bag, containing some American money, was taken, but a similar bag, containing Canadian currency, was not disturbed. Several smaller and less valuable pieces of jewelry apparently had escaped the sight of the burglars, or had not been coveted by them.

A report of the burglary was made at once to the detectives of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station, who advised the hotel management and Mrs. Skelton to say nothing whatever about the crime so that the pursuit of the burglars would not be impeded. The hotel detectives immediately started to work on the case, and a private detective agency was called in. No clue to the burglars has been found.

"Neither Mr. Skelton nor myself cares to make an estimate of the loss," said Mrs. Skelton last night. "Some of the pieces were so old as to be considered treasures; others were new, made of diamonds and platinum, and were of unusual design. The loss is heavy."

The home of the Skeltons is in Montreal, but they are spending the Winter in this city. Mr. Skelton is a promoter, and has offices with the Sampson Appliance Corporation at 52 Vanderbilt Avenue. Until about a year ago he was Treasurer of the Canada Car and Foundry Company at Montreal, a company that held large munitions contracts during the war.

Detectives from Police Headquarters on Tuesday night held twenty men at bay in a saloon at 18 Cherry Street while one of them arrested Philip Bonner of 36 Henry Street, who has been sought on a charge of grand larceny in connection with the theft of $25,000 worth of merchandise on Oct. 6 from the Lamport & Holt Line piers in Brooklyn. Six other men are awaiting trial on the same charge, and the police say that, with information furnished by these men, they will be able to break up several gangs that have made pier robbing a business. Bonner was held for the Grand Jury without bail.

FEW HOTEL ROOMS VACANT.

City Thronged with Holiday and Army-Navy Game Visitors.

The double attraction of the holiday and the Army and Navy football game has forced the New York hotels to resort to stringent measures to accommodate their guests. The Vanderbilt and the Astor, which have for years served as the meeting places for the military and naval officers, several days ago closed their bookings for the holidays, and other hotels are receiving their overflow.

Guests from all over the country are demanding reservations, for there is added interest in the game this year because of the recent service of so many civilians, and the friendships that have been formed between them and the men who are still in the service. The problem of caring for these crowds is one that is perplexing the hotel managers.

BISMARCK, N. D., Nov. 26.—The State Senate late today passed the Federal suffrage amendment by a vote of 43 to 3.

Judge Mulqueen Directed Verdict, Holding Evidence Insufficient.

By direction of Judge Mulqueen in General Sessions the jury that has been trying Michael Troy for the murder of his wife, Bessie, brought in a verdict of acquittal and the defendant was discharged. The case attracted attention because it marked the first decided clash of opinion between Chief Medical Examiner Charles E. Norris and Dr. Otto Schultze, medical assistant to the District Attorney.

The body of Mrs. Troy was found in the morning of May 4 on the sidewalk outside her home, 1,455 Amsterdam Avenue. Assistant Medical Examiner George Hohmann made an examination and said it was a case of suicide. Two days after death and after the body had been embalmed Dr. Schultze made an examination and came to the conclusion that the young woman had been strangled. The husband was arrested.

HELLMAN BOOK SALE ENDS.

Stevenson's Manuscripts Bring $6,900—Total Reaches $26,625.

The sale of association books and manuscripts from the collection of George S. Hellman was concluded at the Anderson Galleries last evening. The grand total for the two sessions was $26,625.35, of which $16,745.35 was realized last evening.

The highest price during the sale was $6,900, paid by George D. Smith for No. 368, original manuscripts of Robert Louis Stevenson's poems, essays, fiction notes, and prefaces for novels and plays and also a special collection from Stevenson's library. The manuscript part comprised ninety-three items, of which fifty-one are unpublished. Mr. Smith also obtained for $1,700 No. 257, a collection given by President Andrew Johnson's daughter, Martha Patterson, to her friend, Mrs. L. C. Langford, author of "The Women of the White House." It is in many ways, it is said, the most remarkable collection ever offered for public sale relating to a President of the United States.
